FRED STRASSHEIM.

Bares Excuses for Freeing Lake.

As the stenographic record of Schwantes' testimony, taken by Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman during his investigation of the Druggan-Lake scandal, was made public yesterday, so also were given out the excuses made by Hans Thompson, discharged first assistant warden, for having let Lake out of the jail twenty-two days before his sentence expired.

Schwantes first told the sheriff of the absence from the jail at the same time as Thompson and Westbrook between Aug. 16 and Aug. 20, during which time Druggan was absent continuously. Thompson declared Capt. Westbrook's office had told him to go on his vacation on Aug. 16 and that the captain would be back that day. Instead, Capt. Westbrook remained away until Aug. 20.

Then Sheriff Hoffman questioned Schwantes as follows:

Q.—Did you hear a rumor that Druggan paid some money to Capt. Westbrook? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you hear that rumor? A.—I don't know whether it was just hearsay; but the general opinion was that such liberties would not have been granted unless someone received something.

Suspected, but Didn't Know.

Q.—Who do you think the some one was? A.—We figured it was Capt. Westbrook, but of course we had no way of knowing.

Q.—Did you ever hear Druggan or Lake say they paid anyone? A.—No. Assistant Jailer Thompson, in trying to explain to Sheriff Hoffman how figures had been juggled to give Lake eighty-two instead of sixty days off for good behavior, testified as follows:

"We decided that Lake was entitled to sixty days for good behavior, adding twelve days for the $1,000 fine, which if he had filed a pauper's petition would have added thirty days to his sentence. Then Lake had been working in the hospital, night and day part of the time, and we felt that he was entitled to some consideration for that and allowed him one day for each month, making ten days, which brought the total to eighty-two days. That is all a matter of jail record. There was no effort at concealment."

Names Those at Conference.

Asked who was present when the release of Lake's release was decided upon, Thompson said, "Westbrook, the prisoner, Strassheim, Fitzgerald, Schwantes, and myself." Then these questions and answers appeared in the record:

Q.—Did you think that the arrangement was proper? A.—Yes. We thought it was entirely legal and proper.

Q.—Was there any consideration that caused the decision of letting Lake out eighty-two days before his time? A.—No.

Harry Hennenberg, the jail storekeeper, told in another statement how Druggan used the telephone in his office for business purposes and to bet on horse races.

Denies Druggan's Talk to Lake.

When Druggan learned that his brother in, and out of the jail was being investigated," Hennenberg said, he called up his partner, Mr. Lake, and used language that I would not use before the young lady stenographer. He accused Lake of going out with some women and getting him in bad. He said, 'I have told you to keep away from there, that these women will talk. You know that I have not

NEW SECURITY PACT TO SCRAP WILSON TREATY

Puts Germany on an Equal Basis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 19.—THE TRIBUNE is now able to give an accurate summary of the contents of the European security pact agreed upon by the leaders of the French, British and German governments. It is expected that the pact will be adopted practically unchanged by the conference of ministers which will meet in Switzerland early in October.

The document is very short, containing less than 500 words, and is confined to a statement of general principles and good will. The chief features in it practically set aside the treaty of Versailles, which is not mentioned in the document and which is only related to it because the pact deals with the territory neutralized and demilitarized by the treaty.

Scrap War Criminal Features.

Otherwise the whole principle of the Versailles treaty in which Germany is treated as a conquered nation and a war criminal has been scrapped for a pact which in the opening clauses establishes the absolute equality of all the signatories and makes discrimination against any party impossible. This is made perfectly clear by the wording of the British guarantee.

AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN.

The pact recognizes only the nations signing it and provides for discipline of any nation, no matter whom, violating its provisions.

The second main point is that the signatories agree to place the pact absolutely under the supervision of the league of nations, not excepting even a case of sudden aggression by any nation, and reserving to the attacked nation only the right of self-defense.

A Document of Good Will.

These two points sum up practically the whole pact and it is a testimony of the good will of all parties, and particularly of the mediation of Great Britain, that so simple a document was evolved out of so complicated a situation.

All parties pay the highest tribute to Dr. Gaus, the German legal expert, who has done more to restore German pride and position in Europe than any other one man.

The history of the negotiations shows the difficulty of the task and how the problem was overcome only by the working of a new spirit in European affairs. When the Germans first made the offer of a pact on the British suggestion, the French began at once to draft suggestions for its working. These were long and involved and led to a seemingly interminable interchange of notes and aide memoirs between London and Paris.

Experts Add to Confusion.

The experts on both sides added to the confusion by drafts and redrafts based on technical considerations, until it finally seemed as if a deadlock had been reached. Then Aristide Briand and Joseph Chamberlain, the French and British foreign secretaries, got together, brushed aside formalities and technicalities, and arrived at an agreement. M. Briand is much to be praised for abandoning the French attitude of refusal to compromise on technicalities.

M. Briand argued that a firm entente with England was worth many times any legal advantages which he might obtain, and he said, in effect, to Mr. Chamberlain:

"My predecessors tried insisting on their legal rights against Germany. They have failed. I am willing now to try your way of conciliation, which, I believe, is, after all, the right one."

When M. Briand came to London with his experts, MM. Berthelot and Fromageot, he allowed the experts to develop their arguments and then he brushed them aside and came to an agreement with Mr. Chamberlain in a few minutes.

The next step was a meeting of the

THE TROJAN HORSE

RODGERS' PLANE, LOST 200 HOURS, AGAIN TAKES AIR

HONOLULU, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The famous trans-Pacific seaplane, PN-9 No. 1, reconstructed at the Pearl Harbor air station, after being picked up off Kauai more than 200 hours overdue from San Francisco, made a successful four hour test flight this morning.

Six men were assigned to go up in the seaplane today, but when noses were counted in the air, it was found three others also had stowed away that they might have the first ride in the seaplane that carried Commander John Rodgers and his men on their historic journy.

While the big ship was in the air radio messages were sent to the navy department at Washington and to Commander Rodgers aboard the U. S. S. Idaho enroute to San Francisco, telling of the successful flight in progress. The message to the flight commander congratulated him on the wonderful condition of the seaplane despite its nine days at sea. Repairs were effected in less than a week.

Real estate news will be found on pages 15 and 16, part 2.

Mercury Tops 91 for Record; Colder Today

A weather bureau record of thirty years' standing was shatteredw in Chicago yesterday afternoon when the mercury shot up to 91.2 degrees at 3:45 o'clock. But the hot spell will be short lived, according to Forecaster Henry J. Cox, who in his prediction last night said that today will be overcast with local thunderstorms and "much colder" by afternoon or night.

The equinox tomorrow is generally accompanied by radical weather changes and the weather bureau promise is fair and colder. Seemingly summer is to end. Fresh to strong southwest winds shifting to northwest are in the offing for today and tomorrow.

Up to 91 in 1895.

On Sept. 19 and 20, 1895, the temperature in Chicago reached 91 degrees, but never rose above that reading as it did slightly yesterday.

The rapid ascent of the mercury yesterday started at 9 a. m., when the reading was 72. At 11 o'clock it had reached 81, at 1 o'clock it stood at 87, and at 3 the record of 91 was equaled. By evening breezes were stirring and there was a considerable drop.

SNOWSTORM IN MONTANA.

Havre, Mont., Sept. 19.—[United Press.]—A heavy snowstorm in western Montana today interrupted communications and hampered traffic.

West Coast Mountains White.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Washington, Oregon, and northern California received their first snowfall of the season today with a storm that left mountain summits white. Reports from the Cascade mountains in the two northern states said the snow was about three weeks ahead of the usual time.

Record Heat at Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The temperature here at 2 o'clock today was 98.5 degrees, smashing by 7.5 degrees all previous records on this date for 55 years.

President Doffs Felt Hat for His Trusty Old Straw

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—President Coolidge, setting out on a stroll today, decided it was too warm for a felt hat, prescribed as the proper headgear after Sept. 15, and wore a straw sailor.

FLAMES DAMAGE DAVIS ANNEX; LOSS IS $15,000

Fire broke out last night in the basement of the Davis company's new annex at 332 South Wabash avenue and destroyed a stock of surplus goods, mostly shoes, causing a loss of $15,000. Owing to the high wind which prevailed and to the danger of the fire spreading from the basement upstairs and to adjoining buildings, most of them very old, a 4-11 and special alarms were sent in for additional apparatus.

Dense clouds of smoke poured from the basement. The large crowd which gathered caused the sending in of a call for police help. Two firemen, Lieut. Albert White and Pipeman William Clinton, both of Truck company No. 1, were overcome by smoke and taken to the Iroquois Memorial hospital. Other workers were cut about the face and hands when a large plate glass window collapsed.

Wabash avenue street cars were rerouted over State. Outside of the basement, the building was damaged only by the heavy streams of water poured in to keep the flames from spreading. One of the department's new towers, capable of shooting a stream several stories, was on hand, but was not needed.

Chicago Convict Flees Joliet in Bullet Barrage

Eugene Crowley, a convict serving a term of three to twenty years for robbery, escaped in a hail of bullets from the Joliet penitentiary yesterday. Last night and early this morning forty men were searching the countryside for him.

Crowley, who was sent to prison from Cook county last June, was working in the stone quarry outside the walls. At quitting time he hid behind a stone crusher and at a favorable moment made a dash for freedom. The guards fired on him, but were forced to desist when he dashed into Collins street, which was filled with automobiles. He fled into a wooded region and disappeared.

Nab Ex-Congressman for Pilfering Beauty Records

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Manuel Herrick, former representative from Oklahoma and later central figure in a breach of promise suit, was arrested here tonight on a charge of taking property without leave. He was released under $500 bond. The arrest followed charges of a local private detective agency for which Herrick has worked. The agency charged Herrick had taken newspaper clippings relative to beauty contests from the office files.

Woman Dies of Burns; Realty Dealer Is Held

Unexplained features about the death of Rose Tabor, 31 years old, claiming to be the daughter of the late U. S. Senator Tabor of Colorado and an old note she wrote on a picture resulted last night in the arrest of John Reid, a former saloonkeeper, who has of late been engaged in the real estate business.

Miss Tabor was found leaning over a bed in her room at 3802 Ellis avenue. Her back and legs had been severely scalded. To neighbors who heard her screams and rushed to her aid she said she had caused the scalds herself by tipping over a pan of water. On the radiator, however, was a pan nearly filled with luks warm water.

Note on Picture.

She died without disclosing any more information that would tend to show what caused her death. Deputy Coroner Chester Mitchell, investigating the mystery, found the note penned on a picture. It stated:

"Jack Reid, who nearly killed me and who still threatens to kill me. If I am hurt or killed, have him arrested, for he will be responsible."

Coroner's Physician H. G. W. Reinhardt, who examined the body, asserted that he was satisfied the scalds could not have been self-inflicted or caused by the accidental spilling of water, and that the burns had evidently been made several hours before Miss Tabor died.

"The case aroused my suspicions," he added.

Reid Denies Seeing Her Recently.

Reid, at the Stanton avenue police station, declared he had not seen the woman for nearly a year and that he knew nothing of her death.

Dr. L. Gulliver Walton, 3456 Cottage Grove avenue, said Miss Tabor had been a patient of his for several years, that she had been drinking heavily, and he had warned her a shock might cause her death. He said also that she had told him she was a former motion picture actress and a daughter of the late Senator H. W. A. Tabor of Colorado, a friend of President Theodore Roosevelt. In her happier days, she said, she had been known as "Silver Dollar" Tabor.

Deputy Coroner Mitchell ordered the inquest continued yesterday to permit a further investigation. Reid is being held by the police subject to the orders of the coroner.

CHRIST WOULD BE CRIMINAL IN U. S., BISHOP STATES

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—"If Christ came to America now he would be regarded as a criminal," declares Bishop Anderson of Boston, Mass., in an article appearing in today's issue of Reynolds Illustrated News.

Prohibition has steeped American federal and state public services in corruption, according to Bishop Anderson.

"There is scarcely a department that is unaffected," he writes. "Even the navy has had thrust upon it work dealing with rum runners. Our agents directly engaged in enforcing prohibition have frequently discovered scandals that do not enhance the good name of America. Nor are the police and law officers immune from temptation. It has been claimed that prohibition has emptied the jails. That may be true but it has filled the hospitals with people who are victims of the vile, poisonous stuff purveyed in spite of the law."

[There are two Bishop Andersons in Boston—one a Methodist and the other a Roman Catholic.]

THE PACIFIC FLIGHT

Flyers' Own Story of the Adventures on the PN9-No. 1

Commander John Rodgers' story of the epic flight and rescue of the naval seaplane PN9-No. 1 begins in The Tribune tomorrow morning.

There will be six installments of this story of the most thrilling recent adventures in American naval and aircraft annals.

Collaborating with Commander Rodgers in this story of the air and sea are Lieut. Byron J. Connell, Radio Operator Otis G. Stantz and the other two members of the intrepid crew.

The marvel of wireless has been enlisted to bring this saga of the air and sea to you while the thrills of the flight, the search and the unexpected rescue of these five naval heroes are still fresh in the reader's consciousness.

Don't fail to get the full value of this unusual recital of adventure. Begin tomorrow and read the entire series of six installments.

POLICE SUSPECT TERROR DROVE HER TO SUICIDE

Captain Analyzes New Evidence.

Investigators striving to solve the mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Marion Jacobsen, whose disfigured body was found early yesterday morning in the lake at Oak street, shortly after midnight were inclined to abandon the theory that she was tortured and slain for revenge.

Statements made by two icemen and substantiated by a woman living in the vicinity of the Jacobsen restaurant at 535 Rush street swayed Chief of Detectives Schoemaker and Capt. Daniel Murphy of the Chicago avenue station to the belief that the woman was a suicide or possibly the victim of a peculiar accident.

The restaurant was bombed and caught fire at about 4 a. m., an hour after Mrs. Jacobsen was last seen in another restaurant she and her husband conducted at 1652 North Clark street. Striving to connect the bombing and the death, the investigators interviewed residents of the neighborhood. From Mrs. Agnes Cotter, 111 East Ohio street, they obtained a statement that indicated Mrs. Jacobsen fled from the building while the fire was in progress.

Sees Woman Leave Restaurant.

"I was sitting on my back porch," said Mrs. Cotter. "I saw the smoke coming out of the restaurant. Then I saw a large woman walk out rapidly and through the alley toward Grand avenue. The two icemen were in the alley and spoke to her. It seemed that she didn't want to talk. She went on quickly, like she was in a hurry to get somewhere."

Other residents said they had heard the two icemen talk about the peculiar meeting with Mrs. Jacobsen, whom they recognized in the semi-darkness by her unusual size. These icemen, both employed by the Huron Ice company, had not been found at an early hour this morning, but the police were satisfied their testimony would establish beyond doubt that Mrs. Jacobsen was in the restaurant, or at least in the alley, at the time of the fire.

Body Taken from Lake.

The body of the woman was taken from the lake at 7 a. m., shortly after the husband, Maurinus Christian Jacobsen, had reported both the disappearance of his wife and the bombing of the restaurant to the police. The arms and legs had been burned. There was a gash in the left cheek, and the lower portion of the body appeared to have been scalded.

There was no water in the lungs and Coroner's Physician L. K. Eastman was certain drowning had not caused death; that Mrs. Jacobsen died before she sank in the lake.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said that while many factors remained to be explained, he was confident a solution would be reached before noon today. He gave credence to Mrs. Cotter's statement and the reported conversations of the icemen.

Shock Possible Cause of Death.

"She may have been burned in the restaurant," he said. "Her unwillingness to talk to the icemen indicates that she was suffering, possibly in a hysterical state, and her hurried manner that she was trying to get away from the scene. It is possible that, scarcely knowing what she did, she went toward the lake and decided to plunge in to get relief from her burns. She was a large, fleshy woman, and she may have died of shock when she struck the water."

All this, he admitted, was conjecture. He had no information, he said, about who set off a bomb in the restaurant and there were several plausible explanations.

Neither had he any reason to offer why Mrs. Jacobsen went to the Rush street restaurant after telling her husband—he told this to the police—that she was going home. She lived over the restaurant on Clark street. Perhaps, the chief said, she had a reason of her own.

The bomb in the restaurant was set off in the basement, a mere coal hole. In this place the police found a large milk can with the lid tightly squeezed on. Inside was a bed sheet saturated with chloroform. This constituted one of the puzzles and an explanation was that the woman might have been rendered unconscious and tortured there. With the abandonment of the torture theory there is no expressed opinion on the chloroform angle.

Husband Is Questioned.

The police, with Assistant State's Attorneys Robert E. McMillan and William McSwiggen, worked late into the night on the case. They questioned Jacobsen for hours. They also quizzed Marie Davidson, a blonde waitress in the Rush street restaurant, and Ernest Johnson, the chef, who was asleep when the bomb was exploded.

Jacobsen at first said he thought his wife had committed suicide. Then he asserted she might have been driven to jump in the lake by threats emanating from Verne Bridgman, a former waitress against whom his wife had placed a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Other features investigated by the police were the disappearance of Anna Berger, a waitress, and her apparent intention to elude the police; and a meeting of Jacobsen and another waitress, Hannah Hanson, in front of the undertaking room at 341 North State street, where the body was taken.

Waitress Taken in Custody.

The Hanson girl telephoned the Rush street hotel during the afternoon and was suspicious of a policewoman who answered. Later she was taken into custody by a detective bureau squad at the restaurant on Clark street. She denied any knowledge of the affair.

Two men, supposedly dynamiters or gangsters, were seen much in the vicinity of the Rush street eating place recently and the police are seeking them. Another puzzling feature was the inability of the police to find the Bridgman woman. She was in the South Clark street court yesterday to answer Mrs. Jacobsen's charges, but disappeared after the hearing had been continued.

Husband Tells of Threats.

It was Jacobsen's story about Miss Bridgeman that led the police to seek her and several man friends who, according to Jacobsen's story, threatened Mrs. Jacobsen with death unless she dropped her charges against the girl.

Jacobsen told the police Mrs. Jacobsen two weeks ago "fired" the girl working as a waitress. The two women quarreled, he said, and the girl threw a glass at Mrs. Jacobsen, cutting her hand severely, after which Mrs. Jacobsen had her arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Following the arrest, Jacobsen said, a number of man friends of the girl visited Mrs. Jacobsen by intercepting her at her restaurants and other places, and threatened her with death unless she dropped the assault charges against Miss Bridgeman.

Leaves for Her Home.

Mrs. Jacobsen was last seen at her husband's North Clark street restaurant at 3 a. m. She walked out with the remark that she was going "upstairs," meaning to their home above the restaurant.

About an hour later Jacobsen went to their flat. His wife was absent. He started to hunt for her. In an hour he received word that the Rush street place had been damaged and set afire by the bomb placed in the rear.

Jacobson hurried there. The restaurant was still burning when he arrived.

SON IS NOTIFIED.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 19.—Bordge Jacobsen, 120 East North avenue, stepson of Mrs. Marion Jacobsen, whose body was found in Lake Michigan today, could assign no reason tonight for the possible murder of his stepmother. Jacobsen, who came here with his wife from Chicago a month ago, did not know of the woman's death. A telegram reading, "Come at once," arrived at his home early this evening while he was at work in a downtown grocery store. He will leave immediately for Chicago.

Waitresses Sought in Death Mystery Quiz

Police are at loss to explain the mystery in the death of Mrs. Marie Jacobsen, wife of restaurant owner. Her body was found in the lake yesterday.

Miss Marie Davidson, waitress at Jacobsen's Rush street restaurant, was in the place when it was bombed yesterday. The bombing is linked up with the mystery.

Miss Hannah Hanson, waitress in the Jacobsen restaurant, is sought for questioning in the death mystery.

JUDGE CONDEMNS CHILDLESS WIFE SEEKING ALIMONY

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Justice Selah B. Strong of the Supreme court announced today that he did not intend to help in any scheme of a childless woman to force alimony. In this day of equality of the sexes, he said, there was no reason why divorced husbands should be compelled to contribute to the support of wives who had borne them no children.

Justice Strong said that recently a man who had been impoverished by the payment of temporary alimony appealed to him to compel his wife to move her case against him for immediate trial.

For five years, said Justice Strong, the husband had been paying alimony pending trial of his wife's suit for separation and in all that time she had made no effort to press the case.

"I do not believe in awarding alimony," Justice Strong said, "unless there is good and sufficient reason. No flimsy excuses will avail before me. In these days of equal rights there is no reason why a woman should be awarded alimony. I except cases where there are children.

"If a woman tires of the marriage bargain or decides she does not love her husband or can not stand his treatment, let her separate from him. There is no law compelling a woman to remain in his home.

"Of course, where there are the children the husband must expect to support them and the law forces him to do so. Generally it is the mother of children who is the last person to appear in the divorce court.

"But I find there are twenty separation suits started to every divorce. Women only want alimony. They tire of their husbands, get rid of them, but still hold out their hands for cash. Imagine the predicament of a man who is compelled to pay temporary alimony for five years to a woman who hates him but who will not divorce him! It is nothing short of slavery."

SEA FLEA USED AS MODEL FOR NEW OCEAN PLANE

LYONS, France, Sept. 19.—(AP)—An "ocean plane"—a new device for water travel, patterned after the sea flea, which jumps from wave to wave, is being completed by Count De Hasenko, Russian engineer, under the sponsorship of the French government.

The count plans to test his craft in a voyage from Marseilles to Rio Janeiro, with his German police dog, "Lob," as his only companion.

Count De Hasenko's queer device consists of an enclosed shell hanging from two airplane wings with long, freely moving stabilizers, resembling legs, suspended below. At the end of these are boat-like "feet" filled with helium. These draw only three inches of water when the apparatus is at rest and merely touch the waves as the plane skims along, supported by its wings and driven 95 miles an hour by an airplane propeller.

CONVICT'S GIRL TELLS POLICE; HE'S RECAPTURED

Nich Cardinella, an escaped murderer from the Michigan state penitentiary, might still be free had he not enraged his sweetheart, Rose Ross, 240 West 31st street, by his caveman tactics.

Rose called the police yesterday and told them that Cardinella, who escaped nine years ago, was to be found in the neighborhood of her home. A squad under Lieut. James O'Brien went out and captured the convict, who was armed, at 31st street and Princeton avenue.

Cardinella had been doing from 5 to 15 years and had completed three years when he escaped. The murder for which he was sentenced was committed at Niles, Mich.

NEW OIL BURNER SELLS AT REMARKABLY LOW PRICE.

A remarkable new burner which costs only a few dollars and which heats any stove or furnace perfectly has been perfected by the International Heating Company, 119 South 14th Street, Dept. 462, St. Louis, Mo. This amazingly simple and sturdy device works without electricity or gas. It burns a cheap oil, gives one of the hottest, quickest, and safest fires known, and can be easily slipped into the firebox of any stove or furnace by any one. ROYAL WEDDING IN ITALY TO UNITE 2 MODERN HEARTS Bride Speaks 5 Languages —Is Adept Musician.

RACCONIGI, Italy, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Two modern young people will be married next Wednesday—Princess Mafalda, second daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, and Prince Philip of Hesse.

PRINCESS MAFALDA.

The princess is a scholar, musician and sportswoman. She speaks five languages fluently, plays four musical instruments, and is an expert at several sports. Under the guidance of her English governesses, Miss Margaret Brongton and Margaret Brown, she learned English; from her lady-in-waiting, Mlle. Pasquet, she acquired French. She speaks German as well as she does Italian. From her mother, she learned Russian.

The princess plays the piano, violin and mandolin, but she is especially fond of the guitar.

Is Essentially Feminine.

With Prince Humbert as her companion, Mafalda has been in the habit of taking almost daily physical exercise. She drives her own automobile, is a capable cyclist and a good fencer.

With all her modern accomplishments, however, Princess Mafalda is of an essentially feminine type, in this respect resembling her mother. Her kindness of heart and her devotion to those closely associated with her are seen by her inviting to her wedding all the servants who attended her in childhood, including her aged nurse, Vincenzina Stirpe.

The princess is not the first daughter of the house of Savoy [The reigning house of Italy] named Mafalda whose marriage has been surrounded by romance. Eight centuries ago, hardly a century after the foundation of the Savoy dynasty by Umbertus Biancamano [Humbert the White Handed] in the eleventh century, Princess Matilde, daughter of Humbert the third, was happily married to Alfonso Henriquez, first king of Portugal. When she went to Portugal, her name was transformed to Mahalda or Mafalda.

Philip, although the scion of an ancient family, is a thoroughly modern man. He has been trained as an architect and an engineer, as well as a soldier. He served as a lieutenant in the German army. Already he has drawn plans for a small villa in the grounds of the royal villa Savoia at Rome, which, it is understood, the couple will make their favorite residence after they return from a honeymoon in Germany and Northern Italy.

EVANSTON BLIND BOY'S FLOWERS AWARDED PRIZE

Although 7 year old Billy Brannon, 3333 Wartray avenue, is totally blind, he was declared the winner yesterday of the Evanston Garden club's prize for the best asters grown by a pupil of the Crandon school.

Billy tended the flowers throughout the growing period, according to members of the family. His lack of sight has not prevented him from following the same course of studies as the other pupils in his grade.

The aster contest was held in all the Evanston schools and the winning specimens in each were then taken to the public library for a final showing. For the third time in five years Lincolnwood school children had the best exhibit and a bronze cup presented by the garden club will remain permanently in possession of that school.

U. S. Girl Marries One of Italy's Wealthiest Men

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Charlotte Osgood, daughter of Mrs. L. Marley Osgood of Los Angeles, New York and Palm Beach, was married here today to Umberto Chiarena of Milan, one of Italy's wealthiest men. The couple met at Lido, a fashionable Venice seaside resort where Miss Osgood and her mother were summering. Sig. Chiarena is a noted amateur dancer and Miss Osgod is a well known horsewoman, having won prizes in society horse shows. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Paris. The girl's father was the late Charles Osgood, theater owner.

DISCHARGE THREE CORONER'S AIDS; SEAL VAULTS

Wolff Silent Over Cause; Fitzner Out.

Coroner Oscar Wolff last night summarily dismissed three employés of his office, including Chief Deputy Charles Fitzner.

At the same time he ordered Deputy Coroner Adolph Herrman, whom he appointed to take Fitzner's place, to seal the safes and steel drawers in the coroner's vaults and to make a check of all property of deceased persons to learn what, if anything, is missing. Herrmann is specifically ordered to have a witness present at the time the check is made.

Those discharged besides Fitzner are E. M. Cleaves, colored, custodian of the vault, and Walter Yunkers, secretary to the coroner. Edward Lambert was appointed to succeed Cleaves and Miss Isabel Larson, who has been chief statistician for the coroner, becomes his secretary.

Expect Interesting Disclosures.

Coroner Wolff declined to comment on his action other than to say he was making an investigation that would result, he believed, in interesting disclosures. In his letter informing Fitzner that he was deposed, the coroner declared that so far the investigation had disclosed conditions that rendered it necessary to "make several changes in my office to protect my interests as Cook county's coroner and for the good of the public service."

The gesture with which the three employés were dismissed was abrupt. They were notified that their co... tion with the coroner's office ceased ... 5 p. m. last night. The letters writ... them by Coroner Wolff were not mail... until more than an hour later.

"I cannot talk any more about th... matter now," the coroner said ... started to the post office with the le... sives, "but there will be surpri... later. Letter to Fitzner.

A portion of the letter to Chief D... uty Coroner Fitzner follows:

"For some time I have been co... ducting an investigation pertaini... to certain conditions in my office ... have not completed this as yet, b... reports I have at hand and certain ... ficial documents make it necessary ... me to make changes in my office ... protect my interests as Cook co... coroner and for the good of the pe...

...AVES KID WEIL AS HE IS RUSHED TO BRIDEWELL

...scue Is Climax of 24 Hours of Anxiety.

...GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

...ph R. (Yellow Kid) Weil, Chi...'s man of parts, whose deeds get him into trouble and whose words get him out again, was rescued from a horrible patrol wagon, bound for the Bridewell, yesterday morning in the climax to twenty-four topsy turvy hours that had the Kid, Frank McDonnell, his attorney, and Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen, the somewhat mystified jurist, doing legal handsprings all ...the court record.

JOSEPH R. WEIL.

...he story is a bit complicated. But ...are all the stories connected with ...arterially perfect and the rhetori...superperfect Mr. Weil. And, like ...other tales, this one has to do with ..., a restless check, as a matter ...hat.

All Started by $300 Check.

...seems that the Kid had given his ...d, Robert McNair, a real estate ..., a check for $300, in return for ...t sum in cash. Mr. McNair, having ...own Weil for fifteen years, cashed ...check at once. But the check ...ced back and Mr. McNair bounced ...rs to the Sheffield avenue police ...ut Friday to tell it to the judge.

...Judge Immenhausen fined the Kid ...00 and sentenced him to six months ...the Bridewell.

Then the Yellow Kid of the moulten ...ables began to do his stuff. He ...nted out that he had made restitu...tion in the shape of a thirty day ...te that he had reformed, absolutely ...is time; and that Mr. McNair was ...ered to think of his penitent friend's ...ing to jail.

The judge granted the Kid proba...on.

But about midnight Friday the judge ...arned that the conversational pleader ...vice had languished in the Joliet ...ate penitentiary, whereas the pro...tion law applies only to first of...nders. The judge speeded over to ...wn Hall station, issued a mittimus ...r the rearrest of Weil and dispatched ...out. John Stapleton and Sergt. An...w Klerman to the Shenandoah hotel ...find the Kid.

Bundled Into Patrol Wagon.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning, with ...o further ado, Mr. Weil was informed ...at he was about to start for the ...ridewell and a six months' rest. He ...ooked about the Sheffield avenue court ...oping to spy his attorney. But it ...s a fugitive hope. At 8:30 Weil was ...ded into the patrol; the door ...ed; the engine whirred and they ...e off. Attorney McDonnell rushed ...o court a few minutes later and ...an to talk to Judge Immenhausen. The judge granted McDonnell's mo...n for a new trial and said he would ...r the case Oct. 7.

Then began an impassioned search ...the Black Maria. It had a beauti...head start, and nobody could catch ...Presently a court attaché remem...ed that the wagon was due to stop ...the South Clark street station to ...k up some prisoners. The police ...rator phoned the South Clark street ...tion.

The operator there rushed to the ...r. The paddy wagon was just about ...leave. There was a yell; the engine ...d. The operator relayed the mes...e to the officers; they told it to the ...t. The door opened.

JAIL WOMAN, 157 OTHERS, IN RAIDS ON ROMAN REDS

ROME, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The national campaign against the communist revolution plot, discovered during recent raids in Messina and Florence, was centered today in a raid by Roman police. They searched 234 houses and arrested 158 suspects.

The police raided offices in a building also occupied by the general secretariat of the Italian communist party. The meeting place of the conspirators was discovered. A woman, Ida Mazzoliliani, said to be corresponding secretary of the organization, was arrested.

In subsequent raids of private houses, tons of documents, pamphlets, and letters from and to Moscow were seized, in addition to large sums of money, four guns, and one bomb.

Minister Not Speeding, but Nabbed on Parking Charge

The Rev. Stuart B. Edmonson, pastor of the Lake Forest Methodist Episcopal church, was surprised last night to get a summons for speeding yesterday afternoon. He hurried to Justice of the Peace Ed Burgess to protest that he could not have been speeding, because his car was parked outside the church all afternoon. "Can't doubt the word of a minister," said Judge Burgess. "Trial next Monday for parking overtime."

Student Loses Sight of One Eye in Class Rush

LIQUOR SEIZED AT ROADHOUSE AS GUESTS LOOK ON

Fifty couples dining and dancing to the strains of a mechanical piano at the Sans Souci road house at Ballard road and Milwaukee avenue spent an anxious few minutes last night when federal prohibition agents "pinched" the place. The guests were not molested, but the agents confiscated a stock of wine, whisky and beer, which was found in an outhouse.

The raiders were provided with search warrants based on previous buys of liquor by under cover men. Joseph Schmitt, the proprietor, was arrested and brought to Chicago, where he was locked up pending a hearing before United States Commissioner Glass tomorrow.

ROCKEFELLER TO RESCUE OF UNION HOMES PROJECT

Gives Support to Plan Labor Abandoned.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Failure of the first attempt by labor unions to provide decent homes for their own workers at a nominal cost has been averted through the assistance of John D. Rockefeller Jr., a man who has been more bitterly assailed by organized labor than perhaps any other living person.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER JR.

The Empire Mortgage company, a Rockefeller institution, has taken over title to the block purchased by the labor homes building corporation in the spring at grand concourse, Sheridan avenue, 158th and 159th streets, the Bronx. At that time plans drawn by Andrew J. Thomas called for a beautiful garden apartment with larger and better rooms at one-half the market price for the garment workers, which fostered the plan, than could be obtained at other concourse apartments.

Unions Hesitate Over Project.

Details of the financing, however, had not been arranged and officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union, the Furriers, the Cap Makers, the International bank and other interested organizations hesitated over actually starting work.

In this state of indecision the proposition has hung fire since April and for two months the prospects were that the whole thing would be abandoned.

Then, Mr. Rockefeller, whose interest in housing has manifested itself many times, made inquiries as to the progress of the needle trades homes. As soon as he had been informed of the state of things negotiations were immediately begun to acquire the property and to go ahead with the original plan.

Rockefeller Buys Property.

Purchase of the property this week was the first step.

No definite announcement has come from any of the parties concerned but it is understood that Mr. Rockefeller has commissioned Mr. Thomas to proceed with erection of the four story garden apartments as planned last spring. The apartments probably will be sold on a cooperative basis to workingmen, as was the original intention of the unions.

5,000 CHRISTIANS HOMELESS, SAYS BISHOP IN SYRIA

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Archbishop Cadi of Hauran, Syria, in a letter to Mme. Myriam Harry, a well known Belgian writer, which will be published in the Matin tomorrow, asserts that the situation in Syria is "critical, but not desperate."

"More than 5,000 Christians have been expelled, and are homeless, living like vagabonds, owing to recent attacks by the Djebel Druses," says the archbishop. "Eight hundred French soldiers have been killed or are missing and 700 are besieged at Suedia. A French expedition is preparing to march against the Djebel Druses, but there is need of 15,000 disciplined and well equipped troops to restore French prestige, which has suffered greatly since Aug. 3."

The French foreign office announced today: "Things are quiet in Syria."

Hoover Goes to Baltimore Where Son Is Under Knife

TOKIO, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Baron Kelshiro Matsui has been chosen as ambassador to Great Britain.

31 PUBLIC NIGHT SCHOOLS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Thirty-one public night schools, operated by the board of education, offering nearly seventy courses of instruction, will open for the fall term tomorrow evening.

Registration, which began Friday of last week, will continue for several days while classes are organizing. A total enrollment of nearly 70,000 is expected.

A fee of $2 is required from high school students, those attending three-fourths of the session receiving a refund later except in cases where machines or tools are used. In this event $1 is retained for depreciation.

Courses in the high schools will include home economics, stenography, automobile repairing, various kinds of shop work and the usual classes in the sciences, mathematics, English, history, economics, and music. The elementary grades will offer courses in grade work, manual training, sewing, cooking, printing, lip reading, millinery, and citizenship.

FAIR RUM SHIP OWNER DOGGED BY MOVIE MEN

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Madam Gloria de Verre Casares, whom the London papers call "the Beautiful Rum Runner," asserted today that she had regained control of her schooner, the Gen. Serrett, appointed a new skipper and settled the difficulties with the crew over wages.

She said that her new skipper, Capt. O'Flaherty, has boarded the ship but will not assume command until Monday, as Capt. Whitburn, the former commander, still is considered to be in command.

Madam Casares is receiving many offers from movie producers and newspapers for the use of her life story for filming or for serial articles. There promise to be interesting new developments in regard to what Madam Casares' friends say is a plot to ruin her.

JOHN KELLEY, TRIB VETERAN, HURT BY FALL

John Kelley, veteran TRIBUNE police reporter, wrenched and bruised his back yesterday when he slipped and fell off a wet cement step in the rear of his home at 4742 West Adams street. Although his condition is not considered serious, he is confined to his bed. The veteran has served close to forty years as police reporter for different newspapers. He has been with THE TRIBUNE for the last fifteen years, and served the previous years with the old Herald and Record-Herald.

COP, BATTLING IN DARK, SLAYS BANDIT, NABS 2

Holdup Victim Has Been Tried as Robber.

Robbing a man who often had been accused of robbery brought death yesterday to Nick Russo, alias Ross, alias Russ, 1836 Taylor street. Sergt. Thomas Connelly killed him early yesterday after a desperate fight, and then Lieut. Michael Grady recognized Albert Martini, 1501 Warren avenue, who had been robbed, as a man tried twice for loan bank robberies.

Two companions of Russo were captured—Frank Giarrotano, 18, and Fred Fogl, 29, of Gary, Ind. The three had held up Martini at Warren and Ashland avenues were were escaping in an automobile when along came a detective bureau car containing Sergts. Connelly, George Tapling, and William Schimmel. The police gave chase.

Leap Out as Cops Draw Near.

North in Ashland avenue went both cars at top speed, then west in Fulton street. The bandits saw they were being overtaken so they leaped from their car and sought shelter in a shed in the rear of 1632 Fulton street.

Sergt. Connelly went in after them. In the dark there appeared flashes of light as the bandits fired. Connelly fired at the spot from which he saw one flash. The bullet mortally wounded Russo. The two others exhausted their ammunition and then surrendered.

In their possession were found the diamond stickpin, diamond ring, and $35 taken from Martini. Martini positively identified the two. Then Lieut. Grady came in.

Recalls Record of Victim.

He recognized Martini who, he said, has the following recent record:

Jan. 17, 1922—Arrested for robbery of Loan Star bank, 5083 South Halsted street, in which $20,000 was taken; found not guilty before Judge John R. Caverly.

March 23, 1922—Arrested for robbery of Berger Loan bank, 128 South Halsted street, in which the loot was $15,000; found not guilty by jury.

April 20, 1922—Arrested with three others in automobile containing revolvers and ammunition; found not guilty.

A scholarship in journalism at the college is to be offered this year's senior class of Rosary high school. Classes will begin Thursday in the college journalism course.

Weds Author's Son

MRS. A. G. RINEHART.

South Dartmouth, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Miss Gratia Buell Houghton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amory Houghton of Corning, N. Y., and niece of Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to Great Britain, was married here today to Alan Gillespie Rinehart of New York. Mr. Rinehart is a son of Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, and is connected with George H. Doran and company, publishers.

The bride made her debut two years ago in Berlin.

The ceremony was performed in St. Aidan's, a private chapel on the Houghton summer estate, by Bishop Coadjutor Wilson R. Stearly of Newark, N. J., assisted by Rev. John M. Groton of New Bedford.

TWO PICKPOCKETS CAUGHT AFTER 12 LOOP ROBBERIES

Two busy pickpockets who had stolen the pocketbooks of twelve persons were arrested yesterday afternoon at State and Madison streets by Sergts. Noonan and Trant of the detective bureau.

The men are Louis Sanopes of Cleveland and Joseph Montaga of Indiana Harbor. A crowd gathered around the detectives when the arrest was made and they were forced to draw their revolvers to open a lane through the throng.

All the pocketbooks, which contained more than $100, are being held for identification by the owners. One was the property of S. T. Nowotarski, 2434 North Lotus avenue. Another bearing the name of Dr. Arthur Elinstop, 39 South State street, held a pair of tortoise shell rimmed glasses.

MOUND TOMBS GIVE UP PEARL SHROUDED BABIES

New Wonders Found in Ohio Sepulchers.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The bodies of two infant princes of the ancient mound builders, supposedly descendants of the four members of the prehistorical royal family whose sepulchre was uncovered near Bainbridge last week, were discovered in the tomb just before it was sealed for the summer, H. S. Shetrone, curator of the Ohio Archaeological and Historical society announced today.

The infant members of the royal family, like their elders, had been buried in shrouds of pearl. The bodies of the two infants were found placed at right angles to those of the adults. With one of the small skeletons were several small designs cut out of mica; with the other, four large bear tusks, each set with two pearls.

The explorers believe that the mound, which has been excavated one-fourth of its length, contains the bodies of still more members of the important family.

The discoveries, however, complicates the question of how the burial was made and enhances the belief that the bodies of the royal dead had been temporarily entombed and finally gathered into one great burial place for several generations.

Another last moment find was a ceremonial pipe, eleven inches long, made out of stone in the image of an eagle with spread wings, the finest specimen of mound builders' stone sculpture yet found.

STEAL CAB AND CASH.

Two men and a woman who hailed the taxicab of Fred Walsh, 4415 Dover street, early yesterday robbed him of his cab and $8 at 4340 Park avenue, he reported to the police.

COURT DELAYS SOLVING GIRL'S STRANGE CASE

Archie Noble, 115 West Ontario street, was held yesterday in bonds of $2,500 by Judge William E. Helander in the Morals court, and a charge of immoral conduct against him was continued until Tuesday. Ruth Malvis, daughter of C. M. Smith of Rossville, Kas., a wealthy rancher, whom Noble brought to Chicago last May and who was married last week to Walter Williams Jr., although she was not divorced from a former husband, was charged with bigamy and her case also was continued to Tuesday.

Noble and the girl had been living at the Ontario street address, where she posed as his sister. When she married Williams, Noble, through jealousy, fabricated a story that she had been abducted and was held prisoner somewhere on the south side. He telegraphed this story to her father, who hurried to Chicago.

Williams also was held in bonds of $2,500.

13 YEAR OLD GIRL ELOPES; PARENTS REPORT TO POLICE

Birdie Schley, 13 years old, but big for her age, and Ted Thomason, 20 years old, who worked for Birdie's father and lived at the Schley home, 2328 Washington boulevard, disappeared about the same time yesterday, and the parents told Warren avenue police that they believed the pair had eloped to Sioux City, Ia., or Omaha.

Birdie left a note to her mother which read: "Have gone away. I can't stand daddy any longer. He doesn't like me, and maybe he will treat you better when I am gone."

Thomason's car and license plates of the Schley automobile were gone. The father told the police he had objected to the young man paying attention to his daughter because of her age.

FALL FATAL TO WORKER.

Archie Cline, 55, died yesterday at the county hospital of injuries he received in a fall Wednesday at the Bloom Bros.' coal yard, 6657 Oliphant avenue, where he was employed.

VER CALLS A ONFERENCE ON RAIL TERMINAL

cials Asked to Meet Him Friday.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

e presidents of the fourteen railinterested in south side termiwere invited yesterday to confer Friday with Mayor Dever, Comsioner of Public Works Sprague, ation Counsel Busch, and the committee—James Simpson, ore Robinson, W. R. Dawes, and G. Leonard.

he meeting is to be held in the of- of President James Gorman of Rock Island lines and its purpose he straightening of the river and development of south side railroad ities.

May Ask Delay.

y officials had expected that the ads would say at the Friday ing whether they will pay the of straightening the river, but a ite answer on that date is now imible. It is much more probable the railroads will ask Friday for y or ninety days more time to t out their own agreements which consider a necessary prerequisite declaration on river straightening. is contended that the city admination's aggressiveness in pressing matter of cutting streets through network of tracks, without river ightening, has not aided the prosts of agreements among the roads. addition to the fourteen south terminal roads, three west side ways which will sell property for river straightening—Pennsylva, Burlington, and Northwestern—l also be invited to the meeting. It reported yesterday that these sellg roads are not satisfied with the ue placed upon the land to be taken m each. That was expected. They e reported to want $5,600,000 for the perty for the new channel, instead $1,400,000.

Loesch States Stand.

Attorney Frank J Loesch of the nsylvania is quoted as saying that t road should not be expected to ll land for $7.50 a square foot for hich it paid $12 a square foot sevral years ago. He made the same obction at the meeting last Monday. fter hearing his protest, however, y officials and the citizens' committe said that the prospect of an agreeent was bright.

The Pennsylvania and the Burlingn are obligated by the Union station dinance to sell land for the new ver bed at an agreed price, but if t is impossible the deal is to be ranged through an arbitration valtion. The Northwestern has a free nd, but there has been no indication at it will not sell at a price it deems r. And it is expected that the Pennvania, Burlington, and Northwestn will attempt to get all they can property sold, unless they are dift from nearly every real estate ner in Chicago, and the buying railds will purchase as cheaply as they That feature of the river ightening is not causing any conn at present.

Should Agree on Cost.

But it is contended that all of the roads which will use the proposed south side terminal should agree the river straightening cost before roads undertake it; this because, e chimed, that each road will be mpelled to pay its proportionate re of the cost and interest on the estment.

t would not be surprising if the w York Central, Rock Island and timore & Ohio roads will say next day that they are willing to undeto straighten the river. But such announcement would probably have string attached: "If other roads ich will use south side terminal approve of the expenditure."

e point lies in the fact that all the railroad property acquired by river straightening will be part the terminal property, under the plan, on which each road will pay its share in proportion to the use it makes of the terminal.

Want Fixed Sum.

The fact is that none of the fourteen railroads have agreed to the proposed terminal because its estimated cost has not been decided upon. It is improbable many of them will agree to add to this uncertain amount the cost of river straightening, even if it does add more needed land to the terminal area. In a word, several railroads want to know first what the proposal terminal will cost before agreeing to bear cost of river straightening. That is their viewpoint.

When that estimated cost is known, then the Illinois Central will attempt to convince several roads they should move over to the lake front.

Incidentally the railroads do not appear disturbed by the threat of Mayor Dever to open up needed streets through the terminal district without river straightening. The city probably will not be ready to make a formal statement on this substitute plan until after the meeting Friday.

THE ENDLESS CHASE

Police Battle Sluggers Beating Taxi Chauffeur

Residents of exclusive apartment houses on Surf street were awakened yesterday morning by a revolver battle between police of the Sheffield avenue station and six men who were found beating Paul Rowland, 1210 North La Salle street, a cab driver. One of the attackers was captured. He gave the name Paul Hutyera, 1948 Patterson avenue, and is said to have a record as a slugger in taxicab wars. Four of the gang escaped in an automobile and the fifth on foot.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS AID WIEBOLDT STORE OPENING

Mayor Speaks on Business Progress.

Mayor Dever, County Treasurer P. J. Carr and other officials were present yesterday at the formal opening of the new W. A. Wieboldt company department store at Monroe street, Ashland and Ogden avenues.

Thousands of customers gathered in the morning hours to look through the store and to view the style show.

Dever Makes Speech.

In a short speech the mayor complimented the company, declaring its new building was a symbol of the progressive spirit of the city's merchants.

Numerous floral designs, the gifts of neighborhood merchants, were placed on the first floor, and two orchestras played during the day. The store has a total frontage of more than 500 feet.

Merchants Give Pageant.

In celebration of the opening, the Midwest Business Men's association is staging an eight day pageant, which began yesterday. It comprises free vaudeville, street dances and band concerts. On Thursday a parade, in which 200 decorated floats will appear, is to tour the streets of the surrounding districts.

Bustling Evanstonian Flies to Party in Lake Forest

Wellington Quirk, 819 Dempster street, Evanston, was in a hurry yesterday when he started to the coming-out party of Miss Bertha Alling, daughter of the Van Wagenen Allings of Lake Forest. Mr. Quirk went to Wilmette harbor, boarded his hydroplane and flew to Lake Forest at the reported rate of 100 miles an hour. His explanation was that it was the quickest way—automobiles were too slow.

RAIDERS, SEEKING MURDER SUSPECT, FIND BIG STILL

Searching for the slayers of Jules Portugese, west side highjacker who was killed recently, Detective Captain John Stege raided a garage at 6035 Wentworth avenue yesterday, arrested thirteen men found there and uncovered the plant and distributing center for a bootleg organization which apparently operated in several states.

The leaders of the band are John and Thomas DeCoursey, well known in the booze racket. The others are henchmen of the alky gangs. All will be grilled with reference to the killing of Portugese.

In the place were found forty drums and 175 gallon cans of alcohol, coloring and bottling pharaphernalia, nine trucks, three touring cars and several revolvers. License plates from several adjoining states were there. E. C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator, was advised to the catch, and said the government would be willing to prosecute.

SUBWAY PLAN IN LOOP DISCOUNTED AT CITY HALL

Leaders Doubt Success of Simpson Proposal.

City administration leaders, including Mayor Dever, made light of reports that rialto property owners headed by James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., are considering the construction of a pedestrian subway in Randolph street from the Illinois Central suburban station to La Salle street at their own expense.

In view of the refusal of pedestrians to use the subway built under Michigan avenue at Randolph street and the acknowledged general aversion to walking up or down stairs, the sincerity of the proposal was doubted in the city hall. Nor did the suggestion of Mr. Simpson that the underground boulevard might eventually form the first unit in a comprehensive traction subway system make any considerable impression.

Claim It Would Not Pay.

"It would never pay the merchants and property owners to build such a subway for pedestrians," declared Mayor Dever. "People simply will not walk up or down stairs if they can avoid it. This is proven beyond question in the city's experience with the existing subway at Randolph street and Michigan avenue, built at great cost, but practically unused.

"I can remember when the original La Salle street tunnel was built under the river. It was hoped that the tube would prove a boon to pedestrians who were delayed while the bridges were up or turning. Sidewalks were put in the tunnel and at first many people walked through, merely for the novelty of it. And then when that had worn off, they stood at the river bank, or on the bridge as it turned, rather than walk down and under the river. The sidewalks were taken out."

Plan Itinerary Tuesday.

Members of the council local transportation committee's subcommittee on terminable permits, composed of Ald. Donald S. McKinlay [19th], Arthur Albert [43d], and Wiley W. Mills [37], will meet Tuesday morning to chart, it is announced, the itinerary they will follow in a study of the operation of indeterminate utility franchises in nearby states.

It is probable that the aldermen will visit the principal cities of Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio in an independent investigation soon after the council's first fall meeting on Oct. 28, and perhaps accompany the joint legislative committee which is planning a country-wide study of terminable grants.

TIP IS A THANK YOU FOR SERVICE GIVEN, THIS JUDGE DECIDES

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—"A tip is only a gratuity and is given for extra service. There is nothing in the law to compel a man to give a tip. If he does so, it is in consideration and appreciation of service."

In these words Magistrate George W. Simpson today defined a tip and the occasions on which it may be given, and thereby decided a question which long has troubled the taxi-riding public; long, in fact, before Benjamin Knaster, 23, a taxi driver, hurled five pennies of a ten cent tip back into the face of a fare.

MEXICO SETTLES WITH BANKS TO SPEED UP CREDIT

Loans Obtained During Revolutions Paid.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, Sept. 21.—The most important financial news since the opening of the Bank of Mexico came today in an official statement that the government has made a settlement with the Bank of London and Mexico, the heaviest creditor for debts caused by the revolution, either through voluntary or forced loans.

Permission is granted to the Bank of London and Mexico to reissue its own bills which have been in its vaults since the days of Venustiano Carranza. The government will also pay a part of the debt to the bank in the same bills.

Increases Paper Circulation.

Through the deal with the Bank of London and Mexico, the government will get into circulation 7,500,000 pesos ($3,750,000) bills of the Bank of Mexico. It is understood that a similar arrangement will be made with other Mexican banks to whom the government owes more than 100,000,000 pesos ($50,000,000), of which 21,000,000 pesos ($10,500,000) alone are due the Bank of London and Mexico.

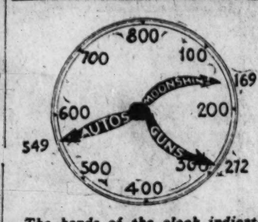
The influence of the new deal was felt on the exchange today, where all banks' values rose considerably. It is reported semi-officially that all the old banks of Mexico have decided to stand behind the government bank, helping it in every way as the best means of strengthening the financial credit of both the government and the banks.

Sees Old Credit Restored.

With the reissue of the old bank bills, which have been retired from circulation since the time of Carranza, and the issue of new bank bills, the paper currency, fully guaranteed, will be as large as in the closing days of the Diaz régime.

"This will be a solid move toward the reëstablishment of the national financial credit, such as was enjoyed in the days of Diaz," one of the nation's leading bankers told THE TRIBUNE today.

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the two hundred and sixty-first day of 1925.

Rob Crowded Fish Market of $456; Flee in Auto

Two men armed with revolvers walked through the crowded fish market of Louis Leistekow, 2700 West North avenue, early yesterday morning and forced Leistekow to surrender $456, the proceeds of Friday's business, as he was counting the money in a rear room. They made their escape, West North avenue police believe, in an automobile.

Hold Ex-Manager for $18,000 Embezzlement

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Fred G. Kimberly, 28, former office manager of the Milwaukee branch of the General Cigars company, Inc., was arrested tonight, charged with embezzlement of $18,000.

THREE INJURED AS TRAIN HITS TRUCK OF MILK

Three persons were injured yesterday morning when a Chicago and Northwestern express train crashed into a milk truck at the Oliphant avenue grade crossing in Edison Park.

The injured are Henry Allard, 1342 Henry street, Des Plaines, flagman at the crossing; Leonard Hendrickson, 29 years old, and William Pehlke, 13 years old, both of Park Ridge, who were riding in the truck.

The gates at the crossing were not operating. Friday an automobile crashed into them while lowered for a passing freight train.

Hendrickson, who was driving the truck, apparently failed to see the flagman's warning and drove on to the tracks in the path of the speeding train which struck the rear end of the car. The impact carried the truck several yards and overturned it, pinning the flagman underneath.

Train-Truck Wreck Kills 3.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Shafer and Ernest Simmons were killed and Frances Shafer, 6 years old, was seriously injured this afternoon when their automobile truck was struck by a Michigan Electric Railway Limited car.

VOTERS' LEAGUE OFFICIAL TO LEAD CLASSES AT U. C.

Mrs. William G. Hibbard, fourth regional director of the National League of Women Voters, will preside at the meeting Oct. 13 at Mandel hall, which will open the citizenship school to be sponsored by the Illinois League of Women Voters at the University of Chicago.

An address will be delivered by Mrs. James Morrison, president of the Illinois organization. Prof. Charles E. Merriam, head of the university's department of political science; Prof. S. P. Breckenridge, Prof. Ernst Freund, and possibly Dean Edith Abbott, will be the lecturers at the school.

SUNKEN GARAGE DOUBLES SPACE IN GRANT PARK

Parking space in Grant park now accommodating 1,500 automobiles will be doubled in size within a few months and depressed to sixteen feet below ground level, south park commissioners announced yesterday.

Excavation work on the sunken, open air garage, which will cost $296,320, has been started. The space will cover the entire area from Monroe to Randolph streets and from the Illinois Central tracks east to the proposed new outer drive. It will be lined with covered walks, furnishing shelter for motorists going to and from their machines.

The plan for depressing the area to hide the parked cars from view is a substitute for the suggested underground garage.

ENGINEERS O. K. NIAGARA FALLS WATER RIGHTS

Washington,, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Water diverted from the Niagara river for power purposes on the Canadian and American sides of the river has not exceeded the legal limit, in the judgment of the Niagara control board, which has submitted its report to both governments after an extensive investigation.

This limit, fixed by treaty with Canada, permits an aggregate diversion of 19,500 cubic feet per second on the American side, and 36,000 cubic feet per second on the Canadan side.

"All the power plants," said the report, "have been, and are being, operated in entire compliance with provisions of the treaty."

Self-closing Faucets are on the Way

Metered water for Chicago is going to make self-closing faucets popular from now on.
If you have Chicago Faucets, no matter how old, you can convert them to the self-closing type easily and at small expense.
All you have to do is change the present working unit to our new unit with the self-closing feature.
Ordinary faucets cannot be converted. The fixtures must be torn out and replaced with new.
Considerable expense and trouble can be avoided by installing Chicago Faucets throughout. They cost almost nothing to maintain and never have to be replaced. See your plumber or consult us. Call in person, write or telephone

Cadillac Standard Five-Passenger Brougham

Painstaking Care The Source of CADILLAC Perfection

With the utmost sincerity we say to you that the new Cadillac is the finest expression of what a truly modern automobile should be. Literally every individual part in it has been scrutinized with critical care and, where possible, perfected and refined, to be in complete harmony with the Cadillac ideal.

The camshaft driving chain is of a new type, the joints of which require less clearance and which is far less subject to stretch. The fine teeth, distributing the contact over a large surface, insure quietness at all speeds. To eliminate all maintenance, even adjustment, the tension of the camshaft driving chain is automatically maintained and no subsequent adjustments are needed.

This, therefore, reduces by one more the items which ordinarily require service from time to time. There are many other improvements—some of them slight in themselves, but each contributing to make this new Cadillac the wonderful car that it is.

More than $2,500,000 has been invested by Cadillac in new jigs, tools, dies and special machinery to enable Cadillac to develop and perfect even the smallest details of its construction. Great as Cadillac has always been, it is, today, a finer, a greater Cadillac than any the world has ever seen.

TURKEY FLOUTS LEAGUE; MOSUL PARLEY FIZZLES

Council Sidesteps, Refers Question to Hague.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—The attempt of the league of nations council to arbitrate the Mosul question collapsed today.

After the manner of Premier Mussolini in the Corfu affair and M. Pilsudsky in the Vilna coup, the Turkish foreign minister, Tewfik Rushdi Bey, personal mouthpiece of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, openly and dramatically flouted the council this afternoon, defiantly repudiating the promise of Fethy Bey, former Turkish delegate, before the extraordinary meeting of the council at Brussels last September, to accept in advance the league's arbitration of the Mosul vilayet dispute.

Turk Defies Council.

"The Turkish national assembly is not bound by any engagement it has not ratified," shouted Tewfik in the face of the council, and later he told correspondents that the Turkish repudiation of Fethy Bey was not anything more than was America's repudiation of Woodrow Wilson.

L. S. Amery, British minister of colonies and member of the council, thereupon announced that the British pledge to accept the league's arbitration was consequently null until Tewfik's statement was withdrawn.

"Until Turkey agrees to accept in advance the council's decision, the British pledge falls to the ground," declared Mr. Amery, but Tewfik refused to withdraw his statement. Mr. Amery added that Britain would observe the military status of the Mosul frontier as long as Turkey does.

Pass Buck to The Hague.

Gracefully to wash their hands of the question, Louis Loucheur, chairman of the council, then proposed to accept the subcommittee's recommendations to refer to the international court of justice at The Hague the question of whether the council is supposed to arbitrate or merely mediate in the Mosul question, and, second, whether the decision must be unanimous or not. In reality the Turks have definitely rejected the league's intervention and the negotiations now stand exactly where they stood in July, 1923, when the Lausanne treaty was signed.

The moment the subcommittee made its recommendations to the council this afternoon, Mr. Amery, reading the minutes of the council meeting on Sept. 30 of last year, quoted Fethy Bey as accepting the arbitration of the council.

Britain Stacked Cards, Charge.

"The British control the majority of members of the council and have stacked the cards against the Turkish claim, so we refused to accept the council's decision in advance," a leading Turkish delegate said later.

Tewfik based the whole argument on the fact that the council was simply mediating the question instead of arbitrating on the Lausanne treaty.

In conclusion, Tewfik bitterly opposed sending the matter to The Hague, saying that if The Hague gave the council full arbitral powers, Turkey would not accept its intervention.

Chairman Loucheur reminded Britain and Turkey that they had agreed at Geneva last year not to undertake any military movements along the frontier. The Turks are expected to withdraw from Geneva at any moment and to begin menacing the Mosul frontier, but not seriously to attack it.

Chemical Warfare Chief to Speak Here Thursday

Maj. Gen. Ames A. Fries, chief of chemical warfare, United States army, will deliver an address on chemical warfare next Thursday evening at a dinner at the City club. The dinner has been arranged by the Chicago section of the American Chemical society, the United States Chemical Warfare association, and the Chemical Warfare Reserve Officers' association. Maj. Gen. Fries will speak on the relative humaneness of chemical warfare as compared to other weapons, its relation to national defense, its political aspects, and popular misconceptions concerning it.

MASKED PAIR KIDNAP CHILDREN ASLEEP IN HOME

South Weymouth, Mass., Sept. 19.—[United Press.]—Snatched from their beds by two masked men, Shirley Fisher, 4 year old daughter of Austen L. Fisher, and her 3 year old brother Jack were kidnaped from their father's home here early today.

The little girl was sleeping with her grandmother, Mrs. Alda A. Fisher, and the boy was in another bed. A window of the room was open. The grandmother was awakened by a noise. At first she thought Shirley was getting out of bed, but soon discovered there were two men in the room.

Before Mrs. Fisher could get out of bed, the intruders, each carrying one of the children, climbed through the window.

The father and an uncle, Roy W. Fisher, were asleep on a veranda on the other side of the house and knew nothing of the kidnaping until awakened by Mrs. Fisher.

For nearly a year the children's parents have been separated and the mother has been living in Lowell. Police of Lowell have been asked to question the mother in the belief she may be able to throw light on the mystery.

Price of Bread Rises in Persia; Wheat Crop Poor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Persia, Sept. 18.—The price of bread in Persia is rising, owing to the scarcity of wheat, caused by the extreme cold, lack of winter rain, locusts, and spring rust is telling on the poorer classes. Russia has offered to sell Persia part of its wheat crop.

THE RIFT IN CANADA.

Our middle west and northwest is meeting severe opposition from the port interests on the east coast who fear the consequences of the St. Lawrence seaway; but our difficulties in this regard are as nothing to those of the Canadians of the middle provinces.

French Quebec starts with a prejudice against Ontario and the Canadian west which runs far deeper than economic interest. West of the province of Quebec, Canada is Anglo-Saxon. There is a vast amount of mutual distrust arising from differences in language, religion, and customs. What Toronto proposes is opposed in Quebec and Montreal almost as a matter of course. When Ontario with its outlet on the great lakes, proposed the St. Lawrence seaway, Montreal first said "No" and then began to hunt for reasons.

Montreal's opposition was more vehement than that of any of the eastern ports in our country to the seaway proposal exactly because Montreal is Canada's only great port on the Atlantic. It was as if Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Charleston, and the rest were nonexistent in our country, and all of the nation's foreign trade were handled through New York. Clearly, any proposal which might in any manner reduce the importance of New York as a port would then meet with a far more violent opposition, because the opposition would be concentrated and united.

Our east is being won over, if slowly, to the St. Lawrence proposal. The seaboard states are beginning to understand that anything which makes for the prosperity of the middle west will not diminish, but increase the export and import of the seacoast business. That argument is fully as applicable to the controversy between Toronto and Montreal as it is to the controversy between Chicago and New York, but it can make no headway against the stubborn distrust which divides the two races in Canada.

Fortunately for those in our country who want to see the seaway in operation, economic laws are at work in our behalf. Montreal fears above everything the loss of her grain trade if the seaway is constructed. The fact is that she is already losing it and will continue to lose it in greater amounts as time goes on. Last year, 50,000,000 bushels were exported from the Pacific port of Vancouver which has been exporting grain for only five years. It is estimated that this year the export westward will be very much larger, in consequence, as the Toronto Globe points out, of relatively high rail rates to eastern ports and relatively low water rates on grain cargoes to Europe through the Panama canal. If this western movement continues much longer, Montreal will find the communities which are served by her port greatly weakened in purchasing power and that will, indeed, cut into the business which Montreal may properly consider hers.

We do not believe it will take long for Montreal to see the light. Her own interest, if she would but examine the question impartially, is on the side of the seaway.

LABOR RADICALISM IN BRITAIN.

British labor seems to be swinging definitely to the left. At the recent trades union congress at Scarborough the delegates passed resolutions supporting the right of the colonies, including India, to secede; they denounced the Dawes plan, despite the fact that it was fostered by the MacDonald government, as a capitalistic scheme to exploit the German workers; they voted to further the culmination of an international amalgamation of trades unions, a move interpreted as an overt invitation to the third international of Moscow.

Such talk sounds more like Russia after the war than Great Britain as we knew it before the war. Ramsay MacDonald and the other political helmsmen of the labor movement seemed to have learned conservatism through their responsibilities in leadership and especially perhaps in government—brief though their term of office was. But meanwhile the unions have been getting more radical under the pressure of conditions and possibly by Red education and they may repudiate their older leadership.

Britain faces as serious a crisis as ever a nation faced in modern history. Her foreign markets have dwindled; her shipping supremacy has passed; her population is still on the increase; her unemployed number close to the million and a half mark and she is paying a tremendous sum in doles; she is burdened with an enormous war debt; she is struggling to help balance the delicate international situation in Europe and at the same time keep her subject peoples in check.

Upon the heels of these cares comes the recent coal crisis, and the government is forced to place the crushing weight of a nine months' subsidy of the coal industry on the bowed backs of the taxpayer. The time is facing England, if it is not already upon her, when the outgo abroad from her treasury will exceed the income, and she will be forced to begin living on her capital.

The coal subsidy purchased a truce. Perhaps the next step will be nationalization of the coal industry, a long step toward the socialization of British industry, though not perhaps a decisive one. But it would seem that the British people must determine pretty soon whether they are to try the Socialist state or make a real fight for freedom. For years they have been directed by their leading intellectuals in socialist idealism and drifting in practice in the same direction. Liberalism, once champion of laissez faire, has become pretty thoroughly Fabianized. The Manchester Guardian, venerable journalistic pontiff of the liberals, is a sentimental pink from cover to cover, as is the Nation, and the fate of the once powerful liberal party is significant of what has been happening to individualism in England. The choice seems to be tory or radical socialism, and the time seems to have arrived when the choice must be made. There is too able a middle and upper class, we are assuming, to permit Great Britain to fall into a morass like Russia, although the currency of communist fallacies in England must be disquieting. But if Great Britain is to be saved from socialism, revolutionary in fact if polite in form, the middle class will have to stand fast pretty soon, and fight it out. We think the fight would be worth making. Soon it will not be.

EXTEND THE FOREST PRESERVE.

Cook county's forest preserves are, we believe, the most extensive to be found in the vicinity of any great city in the country. They are a monument to forward-looking citizenship. They are delightful playgrounds now, and they will be priceless assets in the near future when the city has been built up solidly around them.

Cook county's activity in this connection should serve as an inspiration to some of her neighbors. With the exceptions of Du Page and Kane counties nearby and Winnebago county of which Rockford is the seat, we believe none of them has taken advantage of the forest preserve act to set aside land for public purposes. The other counties in Chicago's metropolitan district are reluctant to prepare for the future that inevitably will be theirs. The subdividers and speculators are wiser. They are picking up at moderate cost the most desirable lands.

Lake county rejected the forest preserve idea a few years ago and has not as yet reconsidered its decision. Meanwhile its population has grown enormously. It does not now require much imagination to foresee the day when Highland Park and Lake Forest will be as thickly settled as Evanston is today. When that time comes, the existence of a park in Lake county including a mile or more of beach and bluff will be a priceless asset. That is the first of four sites in the Chicago region which, above all others, we believe, should be set aside for the public benefit. The need for a lake front park to the north of the city is accentuated by the fact that shore property in northern Cook county is now held at prohibitive prices. It is not too late, however, to obtain desirable tracts in Lake county at a more reasonable figure.

Lake county also has the opportunity to cooperate with McHenry in acquiring lands in the region of Fox lake, while McHenry county ought to buy stretches of land along the upper reaches of the Fox river. Will county should cooperate with its neighbors in acquiring tracts along the Kankakee and Des Plaines rivers. The Des Plaines is none too attractive today but will be delightful when the sewage treatment plants are in operation.

Finally, a site which strikes us as particularly appropriate for park purposes is Dresden Heights, just over the line in Grundy county. Dresden Heights is scarcely fifteen miles beyond Joliet. In it is a plateau dominating the low lying prairies for miles around. From it three rivers—the Illinois, the Kankakee and the Des Plaines—can be traced long miles into the country. A few hundred acres of Dresden Heights purchased now will be a boon and a bonanza in a few years.

ANOTHER CHEMIST ATTACKS THE GAS WAR PROTOCOL.

Dr. W. Lee Lewis, well known chemist and inventor of Lewisite, said to be the most powerful of lethal gases, expresses his views on gas warfare in the current Independent. As did his distinguished British confrère, Prof. Haldane, in the little essay "Callinicus," Dr. Lewis contradicts the professional humanitarian's assertion that gas is an especially cruel agency of combat. Prof. Haldane spoke with peculiar authority because he had been gassed himself and also wounded with shell fragment, and he did not hesitate to express his choice of the former as the lesser evil. He also cited statistics to support his assertion that gas offers a more humane method of putting an enemy hors de combat than any other, and this Dr. Lewis also supports with other statistics quoting the report of Surgeon General Fries of our army. Says Dr. Lewis:

"Briefly, the record is as follows: Gas produced roughly 28 per cent of the American casualties. Less than 2 per cent of these soldiers wounded by gas died. Of the remaining 72 per cent of all casualties, being those caused by weapons other than gas, 24 per cent died. As Gen. Fries has tersely put it: 'Had the 70,552 boys admitted to American hospitals suffering from gas alone been struck with bullets, bayonets, or bombs, we should have buried 16,455 more in Flanders field where poppies grow. Had the survivors of that 70,552 been struck with bullets, bayonets, or bombs, 3,161 more would have been maimed, blinded, or disfigured for life.'

"War history brings out the further interesting facts that among the 224,089 total American casualties there were 70,552 gas wounds, 12 saber wounds, 235 bayonet wounds, and 242 injuries from pistol shots. The question honestly arises whether the saber should not cease to be the dress symbol of the army and navy! Haldane states that though mustard gas caused 150,000 casualties in the British army alone, less than 4,000, about 2.5 per cent, of these died, while only about 700, or one-half per cent, became permanently unfit. Mustard gas killed one man for every forty it put out of action; shells killed one out of every three wounded. In fact, the comparative ease of becoming a casualty by gas was exploited by the Germans who dropped dodgers from airplanes explaining to any allied soldier languishing for home and a furlough how he could acquire a wound consistant with personal safety by deliberately exposing himself to mustard gas vapor."

We think a fair and scientific consideration of available data indicates clearly that gas warfare involves the least unnecessary suffering and serious or fatal injury. It was a novel thing and objection borrowed force from the human fear of the unknown. It was the subject of hysterical exaggeration and also of a very shrewd interest; that is, the Germans used it and the allies wished to make it appear to be another Hun outrage. After the war the French and British wished to interdict it, because Germany had the greatest chemical industry in the world and it is difficult to prevent the manufacture of gases which can be used in war. The United States government and our public are hypersensitive to the humanitarian appeal and extremely suggestible sentimentally. We swallowed all the war propaganda of the allies. We responded to all the horror suggestions, and after the fighting was over we fell in with the crusaders against gas warfare and actually took what we thought was a leading part in getting a protocol adopted at Geneva prohibiting the use of gas.

Fortunately, that protocol must be ratified by congress. We hope it will be rejected. It should be rejected in the name of humanity and in the name of common sense. We think it can be shown that the use of gas is more humane than the use of bayonets or shrapnel or high explosives, which latter, by the way, generates "poison" gas and is in a real sense gas warfare. It can be shown that gas is not only more humane but that it is less expensive than the classic agencies of combat, and that it therefore is the interest of the physically weaker but intellectually advanced peoples to permit its use. It offsets mere brute weight and should be regarded as a weapon of civilized defense.

Finally, it is virtually impossible to enforce a prohibition, for peace time chemical industry cannot be abolished and at threat of war can be used at once for war gases. As Dr. Lewis says: "If national gas strength lies inevitably in a country's industrial and chemical development, any attempted limitation of this branch of arms becomes essentially impossible." The governments disposed to respect the protocol will be at a disadvantage as against one that in a crisis defies it, as any government will if the stake is victory or the imagined alternative of ruinous defeat. Also there are bound to be charges of breach of treaty to justify the use of gas. As Dr. Lewis points out, high explosives produce gas and this "will lead to misunderstandings, to reports that the agreement has been broken, with resulting retaliation and counter retaliation more severe in kind."

Like many other efforts of plausible humanitarianism, the gas protocol will defeat its own objects.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Three Lakes, Wis. Morning with the sun breaking through the mists arising from the warm water of the lakes and thoroughfares into the crisp air. Kingfisher chattering in his flight. Blue heron in the marsh from which a bittern arises croaking. Blue jays with rusty notes. Robins with a touch of fall in their complaint.

Red squirrels picking the seeds out of the white pine cones and scurrying up and down the rough pine bark. A great flight of teal out of the wild rice. Noon flooded with brilliant sunlight. Quiet. Even the aspen leaves are asleep. Cool and odorous in the depths of the hemlock and balsam. Wild asters and golden rod in the brown bracken. Blueberries and late raspberries still on the hills. The wind freshens in the north and little waves break through the sedge into foam on the white sand. The day with its flame of maples goes to join its forebears in the west.

At dusk, back in the encircling blue shadows where the pine, hemlock, and spruce stand massed, a white throat sends forth an exquisite song, fragile in the gathering immensity of the night but filling all the darkening spaces with a beauty which lifts the purple of eternity.

A great owl hoots and is answered across the thoroughfare. A mighty sky of suns spreads out and, late, Orion and the Dog Star come up to hound the summer suns into the dark.

MORE FETTERS FOR FREEDOM.

[Kansas City Star.]

Liberalism everywhere will deplore the tide of toryism that is apparently setting in strong in Mexico. In that republic, one of the last strongholds of free institutions, a bill is pending in congress to prohibit deputies and senators from using firearms in debate. The reason alleged for this invasion of the right of free speech is that Deputy Wenceslao Macib, ignoring senatorial courtesy, drew his pistol and shot Deputy Marin Peres dead, in the middle of his peroration.

But who can doubt that this reason was trumped up? The bitter truth is that all over the world reactionary forces are at work to throttle free government. In Mexico government has been freer than anywhere else, and it has been the inalienable right of legislators to shoot in debate; it was, in fact, the regular parliamentary method of applying cloture. Toryism saw its opportunity here to deal a new blow to liberalism, and if it succeeds in making legislators check their guns at the door it will have reduced parliamentarism in that country to the abject place it now occupies in Britain. In the house of commons members are not even allowed to throw things.

We hope this latest assault on democracy will be resisted. It is our shame in America that we have submitted to the steady encroachments of reaction until we have no liberties left. In the senate, Mr. Heflin can speak for hours and no senator shoots him. We have lost our old love of free institutions, one of the freest of which was sidearms, and make no effort to defend them when attacked. If our legislators carried pistols instead of our bandits, can anybody doubt we should have fewer laws and therefore fewer bandits? If every legislator was shot the moment he got on his feet to propose a new law, the courts would soon be so crippled they couldn't acquit a bandit.

We can only look now to the younger nations to carry on the principles of free government. Mexico, we had thought, was well equipped to do it, but if even in Mexico toryism is fastening its manacles on the strong young limbs of democracy, it looks as though the jig were up.

STAGE HEAVYWEIGHTS.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The ax—or shall we say the cleaver?—has fallen at last upon embonpoint on the cinema stage. Dorothy Mackaill, with the sylphish figure of 18 years and 115 pounds, has been given a five year contract, which will become null and void if Dorothy passes the 120 pound mark before its expiration. And this goes for others to be hired by the First National Screen company.

The way of the movie manager has become difficult, says Richard A. Rowland, because prominent stars have developed the tendency to "allow themselves to grow stout" and become almost unavailable for the parts they are expected to play. The phrase "allow themselves" is sanctioned, we believe, in cases of youthful adiposity by the best medical authority. The chief cause of excessive fat, we are told, is pampering the palate. Is it not in the nature of things that a screen idol with the world at her feet should regard it among the least of her privileges to poke candy, ice cream, and melting steaks down her pretty throat?

Now that the precedent has been set of preserving normal figures on the screen by contract, we hope it will spread to the operatic stage. How long is the public to be asked to accept in rôles of youth and romance figures whose combined weight in a given scene would shock a county fair?

How to Keep Well, By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

ACIDOSIS.

E. C. writes: Please write another article on acidosis, acid forming, and alkaline foods, and explode the idea, still prevalent, even with some physicians, that tomatoes, oranges, etc., produce acid in the system. I know a lady troubled with acidosis, and her physician forbids tomatoes, etc. The relation of food to disease is not well understood, even by those who are supposed to investigate dietetic subjects.

REPLY.

As you say, there is considerable confusion in respect to acid foods and acidosis. In the first place, many of the foods, such as the sour milks, the sour fruits and vegetables, and meats cooked in certain ways are sour to the taste. On the other hand, foods prepared with soda, such as certain breads, rye, hominy, and some vegetables, have that peculiar taste that we know as the "soda taste," or alkali taste. This group of acid foods (but not the alkali group) are thought by many people to cause acidosis when eaten in quantity. These are not the acid foods we are writing about.

The better informed people confuse two conditions under the general head, "Acidosis." Certain foods contain sulphur, phophorus, and other acid minerals. When these foods are eaten the body burns them to an acid ash. The acid in this ash combines with some of the alkali in the body to form salts, which in turn are secreted by the kidneys and other organs. When the acid ash picks up alkali it robs the body of something it may be in need of. Eating large quantities of bread and cereal robs the body of alkali and in that way reduces the alkali reserve. Acidosis is a condition in which there is a lowered alkali reserve.

The other condition, also going by the name "acidosis," is that in which there is an accumulation in the blood of organic chemicals, perhaps somewhat akin to chloroform. Neither the origin nor the nature of these chemicals is as well known as it should be. Acidosis is a name given to a combination of coma, convulsions, and sometimes fever, due to the accumulation of these substances in the blood.

Eating sour things can be overdone, though we do not know just how. We say it "puts the teeth on edge." There are those who say combining sour fruits with starchy foods does harm, but they have never been able to show how, nor even to prove their point. At that they might be right. If any one wants to avoid eating acids that are acids when eaten he has a good sign post to go by. It is sour to the taste.

The science of the acid-ash question is very much better proven. In his excellent little book, "The Normal Diet," Sansum gives the following list of acid ash foods, ranging from oysters, 30, to white bread, 2.7, for each 3 ounces: Oysters, egg yolk, chicken, haddock, rabbit, veal, lean beef, pork, oatmeal, pike, frog, eggs, rice, crackers, egg white, sweet corn, peanuts, and white bread. Plums, prunes, and cranberries belong somewhere on the list, just where not having been determined.

The alkali-ash foods ranged from dried lima beans, 41.65; to asparagus, .81 for each 3 ounces: Lima beans, dried raisins, dried beans, carrots, beets, almonds, potatoes, muskmelon, lettuce, celery, chestnuts, oranges, bananas, cauliflower, dried currants, lemons, peaches, apples, cabbage, cow's milk, radishes, turnips, and asparagus.

The foods with neutral ash are: Butter, cornstarch, cream, lard, sugar, and tapioca.

Further analysis will show that foods not on the lists belong to "near foods" of the same character. For instance, all grain foods belong near the cereals; all lean meats near beef; all fats near butter; all sugars near sugar, and all fruits and vegetables near their kin as given.

In chronic Bright's disease, high blood pressure, and apoplexy, and perhaps in rheumatism and gout, it is well to favor the alkali-ash group. A simple guide post is to keep the acidity of the urine low.

The coma-acid group of acidosis is not so well understood at any of its angles. In all of them except those due to diabetes the sovereign remedy is orange juice, with or without sugar, and starchy foods. Orange juice by itself is as good a medicine for this condition as any that ever came out of a bottle. It can be given very freely. Other fruit juices are good. So is sugar. The vomiting of pregnancy may require starchy foods as well as sugar.

In diabetes starchy and sweet foods are needed, but sometimes they cannot be assimilated. Taking insulin makes it possible for some diabetics and some with other troubles to take the starches and sugars they need to overcome acidosis.

EATING EGG SHELLS.

Reader writes: Please settle an argument, between myself and a friend. I told him egg shells can be eaten to put a new lining on the stomach. I have seen an old person do it.

REPLY.

There is no objection to eating finely ground egg shells, though doing so will not put a new lining on the stomach. The powder will probably pass unabsorbed.

THE SEVEN WONDERS.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—What are the seven wonders of the world and what are considered the seven modern wonders of the world?

J. J. M.

The seven ancient wonders are the Pharos [or lighthouse] of Alexandria, The Olympian Zeus, The Pyramids of Egypt, Hanging Gardens of Babylon, Temple of Diana at Ephesus, Colossus of Rhodes, Mausoleum at Halicarnassus.

Leading scientists have pronounced the seven modern wonders to be the wireless telegraph, telephone, flying machine, radium, antiseptics and antitoxins, the X-ray, and spectrum analysis.

PITY THE CHICKENS.

Antioch, Ill., Sept. 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there any department where a complaint might be put through against a poultry house which ships half dead chickens?

A. B. W.

We do not understand whether you are interested in the cruelty feature or whether the chickens were not fit for your use as a purchaser and you wish to recover damages.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 20, 1865.

ST. PAUL.—The question of street cars is being agitated here. A New York company has offered to lay down the tracks if the city will grant the right of way and permit the collection of a 5 cent fare in specie.

WASHINGTON.—At the trial of Henry Wirz, commandant of the Andersonville rebel prison, on trial for cruelty to prisoners, J. M. Moore, a quartermaster in the United States army testified that the number of burials at Andersonville was 13,912.

FORT SMITH, Ark.—The rebel Greek, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Osage and Comanche Indian delegations at the council here have signed the treaty of peace. Judge Cooley, for the commission, explained that it is the government's object to form an Indian government or territory of the different tribes and give them a delegate in congress and territorial officers.

NEW YORK.—The Herald's correspondent from the Dry Tortugas writes concerning the conspirators to assassinate President Lincoln, now serving prison sentences there: "Dr. Samuel A. Mudd is the prison hospital nurse; Samuel Arnold is clerk in the provost marshal's office; Edward Spangler and Michael O'Laughlin are working at their trade, carpentering, in the engineer department."

WASHINGTON.—Extra Billy Smith arrived from Richmond. He is very humble and, notwithstanding his declaration that he would suffer damnation before he would apply to a tailor for a pardon, he is as eager to get hold of such a document as any of his rebellious comrades. Billy's appearance is decidedly seedy.

CHICAGO.—J. R. Woodward of St. Louis and Miss Annie Webster of this city were married by the Rev. E. J. Goodspeed.

CAIRO.—Gen. Forrest, late of the rebel army, is running a sawmill in Mississippi.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 20, 1900.

WASHINGTON.—The reply of the United States to the German note proposing to punish the Chinese responsible for the Boxer outrages before peace negotiations have begun will voice disapproval of that course. It will say the United States is anxious to begin negotiations for peace which will include punishment and reparation. Minister Wu declared that the conditions of the German note are impossible of fulfillment.

LONDON.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Mail says that Russia will demand an indemnity of $500,000,000 from China.

TAKU.—The allies attacked the Petang forts at daybreak. Heavy cannonading is going on.

LONDON.—The Times says negotiations have been practically completed for the sale of the parliamentary charter of the Charing Cross and Hampstead underground railway line to Charles T. Yerkes of Chicago. It is said construction will be started at once.

HAZLETON, Pa.—With 126,000 men now out and colliery after colliery forced to abandon operations, the striking anthracite miners continue their talk of arbitration. Many rumors of impending trouble are heard and elaborate preparations have been made by the authorities to prevent violence. Sheriff Harvey is said to have sworn in secretly 1,500 deputies to guard the Coxe colliery.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gen. John A. McClernand, Black Hawk and Civil war veteran, lawyer and statesman, died at the age of 68. Although always a stanch Democrat, it was he who introduced the resolution in congress on July 15, 1861, providing funds for the prosecution of war against the seceding states. Shortly afterward he resigned from congress and with John A. Logan and P. R. Foulke organized a brigade of volunteers, known as McClernand's brigade. He participated in some of the most stirring campaigns of the war.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 20, 1915.

LONDON.—Mrs. Maldwin Drummond, formerly Mrs. Marshall Field Jr. of Chicago, died at her Hampshire home, Cadland, near Southampton. Her husband, Capt. Drummond, and her daughter, Miss Gwendolyn Field, were at her bedside when death came. One son, Marshall Field III., who was in New York on his honeymoon, is on his way to England. Her other son, Henry, is in the British ambulance corps. Mrs. Drummond was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Huck of Chicago.

CETTINJE.—Heavy fighting continues on the Bosnian border. The Montenegrins have repulsed the Austrian attacks. The Austrian artillery at Cattaro fruitlessly bombarded the Montenegrin positions at Leojoen.

NEW YORK.—The Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, successor to Henry Ward Beecher and Dr. Lyman Abbott in Plymouth church, Brooklyn, one of the most famous churches in America, author and noted orator, from his pulpit told his congregation that his ambitions for wealth and power had crushed his life, brought him to the brink of poverty, and humbled him so that he said he was "not worthy to unloose the shoe latches" of a poor worker of the slums. The audience for weeks had been reading of the financial troubles of their pastor and serious innuendoes concerning him had reached their ears. The day before he had been served with a summons in a suit for libel filed by his nephew.

LONDON.—Vilna has capitulated to the Germans. The city has been evacuated and it is reported that a part of the Russian force is entrapped in the railroad triangle of Vilna, Lida, and Vileika. A terrific battle is being waged in this sector.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full name and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

FROM BRIG. GEN. MOSELEY.

Schofield Barracks, T. H., Aug., 25.—I do not see why Uncle Sam should not know exactly who his citizens are. In my opinion, each citizen, male and female, over a certain age, should be required to carry a card of identification. This card should identify the holder by a photograph and give such information as full name, residence, how employed, physical condition, with notations of any defects or diseases which might have a bearing on the community at large. Such a card secured during any calendar year, to be good until the end of the next calendar year, unless for any reason, the holder was taken up and subjected to further examination either for crimes or misdemeanors committed or diseases contracted.

The work of actually getting out such cards of identification would be a great task in itself. To spread this work over an entire year and also to provide for financing the plan and to make it inexpensive to the individual who would have it so, it might be arranged so that cards of identification secured during the first quarter of the year would cost the applicant only fifty cents, cards secured during the second quarter, one dollar; cards secured during the third quarter, two dollars; and cards secured during the last quarter, four dollars. In each case a retained copy of the card should be made out and filed in the locality where the holder resides and transferred from time to time as the holder changes his place of permanent residence.

No good citizen should object to such a policy and it would certainly be the means of our locating and keeping track of the shifting part of our population as well as the dangerous elements. The card should be required of all persons, male and female, over a certain age to be agreed upon. Such a system would enable our local civil officers to know definitely who was residing in their communities. If taken out in the first quarter it would cost little. The effect would be to make every grown person contribute to the government. It would go far to improve our man power and this, after all, is our guarantee for the future.

In my opinion, most of our present difficulties could be corrected by the system roughly outlined above.

GEORGE VAN HORN MOSELEY,
Brigadier General, U. S. Army.

THE NAVY ARRAIGNED.

National Home, Wis., Sept. 14.—I have just read Admiral Moffett's reply to Col. Mitchell in this morning's TRIBUNE, and would like to ask three questions.

1. Why was Commander Rodgers sent on his flight without provisions? There was a known possibility of failure and of becoming lost. The Hawaiian islands were originally discovered by a crude people in frail craft who knew the value of carrying provisions.

2. Why did it take nine days to find the lost aviators? It would seem that, in view of the fact that Hawaii is our "Key to the Pacific," our navy should know something of the air and sea currents in the vicinity of these islands, and would know in what direction a disabled seaplane would drift.

3. Why did the navy fail to use the Langley "mother ship in this attempt to fly to Hawaii? It should have been stationed toward the Hawaii end of the course, where the possibility of failure was greatest. SAMUEL E. RODEKOFF.

THE WORM IN THE ROSE.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Permit me, just one of your many, many friends, to express my hearty approval of your editorials, "The Worm in the Rose" and "Citizen Snoopers." Instead of these pretentious good people howling and praying about silly prohibition why don't they encourage temperance among themselves and respectful conduct and a just regard for others? WILLIAM PRICH.

WANTS MORE BUS SERVICE.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—I often hear these questions, "Why don't the Chicago motor busses run all night, as the elevated or street cars do?" and "Why don't they start a bus from Devon avenue south as early at least as 6 a. m.?"

A. R. MAYER.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—One notes with [illegible] surprise, if not some doubt, the [illegible] that large numbers of the teachers [illegible] Chicago are unwilling to accept the [illegible] schedule of salaries that Mr. McAndrew is urging the Board of Education to adopt. On that ground, a committee which included some prominent [illegible] leaders waited upon Mayor Dever, [illegible] questing him to "halt the pay raise."

In the light of the fact that [illegible] some years labor has set its own price on its product, isn't it with rather [illegible] grace that these labor leaders propose [illegible] Mayor Dever to prevent a "reduction [illegible] of the purchasing power of the salaries of Chicago teachers?"

Labor has made its demands [illegible] able by the board of education. [illegible] building erected, every piece of [illegible] work done, every bit of material [illegible] whether brick, wood, or stone, [illegible] per, books, or what not, are charged [illegible] to the board on a scale that labor [illegible] dictated. The prices are paid by [illegible] board, even though the amounts [illegible] necessarily expended are so much [illegible] than formerly that the building program has had to be slowed down in consequence. The labor leaders, right enough, have secured for their [illegible] an adjustment of wages, not merely to make up for the deflation of the [illegible] but to raise the level of living [illegible] By what logic do they ask that [illegible] teachers be not allowed an increase to meet the mounting prices?

The schedule Mr. McAndrew speaks [illegible] has been worked out as a minimum schedule with respect to the two elements which usually determine pay; that is to say, the cost of living, and the character of the service required. I venture the opinion that a large majority of Chicago teachers are heartily in favor of it. W. N. BURNS.

HIGH SCHOOL SOCCER.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Now that the high school football season is at hand I find plenty of space being given to it, this and that school has done, and what this and that player expects to do, but very seldom, if ever, do we find a word about our high school soccer players.

Evidently you do not know that in order to develop a championship team, it requires a great many hours of assiduous training in dribbling, change of force and accuracy in goal shooting, head work, etc. If you will visit Englewood, Harrison, Tilden, Medill, Lane, or any of the other high schools you will find squads daily working enthusiastically and indefatigably.

But there is just one thing that [illegible] dampens the spirits of the boys [illegible] that is the great publicity given by [illegible] paper to high school football [illegible] while they are simply ignored by [illegible] sporting editors.

Obviously soccer is rapidly increasing in popularity. There are thousands who prefer it to football. One excellent feature of soccer is the fact that the [illegible] boy has an equal chance with the [illegible] of becoming a famous player. This is not true of football. It is only natural that the high school soccer boys [illegible] to secure newspaper attention and praise as well as those playing on the gridiron.

O. G. ALEXANDER.

PRESIDENT FRANK.

Oregon, Ill., Sept. 12.—In today's TRIBUNE appears a summary of an address by Glenn Frank, new president of the University of Wisconsin, in which the educational savant is cited as declaring that America was stampeded into the world war, "under the inspiring leadership of a President equipped with a new wizardry of words that brought the war in terms of a spiritual crusade."

Frank assumes that the people of Wisconsin are all of a kaiseristic bias and must be propitiated by recourse on his part to pro-German flubdub. If she is to keep his job. If Frank doesn't know that the American people, far from being led into the world war by the "wizardry of words," emanating from a President fairly exerted the pressure necessary to force that executive to face the imminent menace of Prussian world domination he might better undertake an elementary course than presume to administer the affairs of a great educational institution.

"TO TRADE OR NOT TO TRADE"

Have you ever seriously stopped to question the relative trading values of the firms from whom you buy? Do you judge by physical bulk or by some other real value? If you do, perhaps you find that there are shops where it may be more to your value to deal.

Should one join a church because it is a large church with a large congregation, or should one ask oneself what the inherent religious or spiritual values are in association with the organization? There are spiritual values and there are business values. Actual values should be the moving —motive power—to direct correct decision.

To trade or not to trade with any given firm may prove a matter of serious import. It might unnecessarily reflect a diminishing purse, or a restricted measure of comfort.

30,000 NORSE TODAY HONOR LIEF ERICSON

Germans Also to Hold Giant Celebration.

More than 30,000 Norwegians from all parts of Illinois are expected to join today in the celebration of Lief Ericson day at the Municipal pier, where Mayor Dever, Congressman M. A. Michaelson, and Capt. Magnus Andersen will be the principal speakers.

The event will be the closing fête in the nation-wide observance of the 100th anniversary of the landing of the first organized group of Norwegian immigrants in America, inaugurated with the celebration at St. Paul, which was attended by President Coolidge.

Many Societies to Parade.

All Norwegian societies in Chicago, including ski clubs, athletic, musical, fraternal, social, and other organizations, will participate in a parade from Lincoln park down Lake Shore drive to the Municipal pier.

Another parade, on the water, will be led by the replica of a Viking ship, escorted by boats from the Chicago Yacht club, the Chicago Motor club, and the Lincoln Park Rowing club. Mayor Dever and the other guests of honor will be aboard the ship.

All kinds of water sports, yacht, motor, and rowing races and swimming exhibitions, will be held during the afternoon. In the evening, the Viking ship will be illumined, and 200 singers will board it to sing the old Norwegian folk melodies.

Germans to Celebrate, Too.

Meanwhile, in Grant park at Adams street, members of 250 German organizations will gather for the march to Soldier field, where Chicagoans of German descent will commemorate the achievements of their race since the arrival of Franz Daniel Pastorius and his band of Mennonite refugees at Philadelphia on Oct. 6, 1683.

When the 5,000 Germans, following the colors of their organizations, have marched to the stadium, they will be greeted by Mayor Dever, and by Ernest J. Kruetgen, former member of the school board. Music will be provided by a chorus of 1,500 voices, led by Karl Rackzeh, and by a band of 100 pieces, under the direction of Fred Rothe and Martin Ballman. Athletic contests and a soccer football game also are on the program.

Proceeds of the fête will be devoted to charity, THE TRIBUNE'S Camp Algonquin and free ice funds being among the beneficiaries.

Battery F of the 124th field artillery, commanded by Capt. A. J. Bradley, will fire a flag salute of twenty-one shots from a seventy-five centimeter gun, which was used on the American front in France during the war. The shots will be fired at intervals of twenty seconds.

OBITUARY.

SERGT. WILLIAM SAUER, 2424 Burling street, for 38 years a member of the Chicago police force, died yesterday at Mercy hospital. He was 71 years old and when he retired three years ago was attached to the Sheffield avenue police station. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at St. Paul's church and burial under Masonic auspices will be in Memorial Park cemetery. Sergt. Sauer is survived by five daughters.

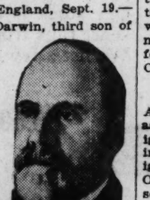
SIR FRANCIS DARWIN, WHO AIDED FATHER IN EVOLUTION STUDY, DIES

CAMBRIDGE, England, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Sir Francis Darwin, third son of the famous British scientist, Charles Darwin, died here today, aged 77.



SIR FRANCIS DARWIN.

Educated in Trinity college, Cambridge, he became an assistant to his father at Down, being especially interested in the latter's botanical researches. After his father's death Sir Francis came here to live.

He was the author of various papers on physiological botany from 1876 onward, and also wrote several books touching on the life and work of his illustrious father, among them "The Life and Letters of Charles Darwin, published in 1887, and "Foundations of the Origin of Species," in 1909.

LEGAL AND CIVIC CLUBS TO HONOR EATON'S MEMORY

Funeral Services Are Set for Tomorrow.

Committees of the Chicago Bar association, the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Hamilton and Union League clubs will attend the funeral services of Marquis Eaton tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Hyde Park Congregational church. The burial services will be attended only by members of his immediate family.

Mr. Eaton, who was forty-nine years old, died suddenly at 5:45 yesterday morning. He succumbed to pneumonia which seized him following a severe cold contracted nine days ago. For 36 hours before his death he was unconscious.

Active in Many Fields.

Mr. Eaton was a member of the law firm of DeFrees, Buckingham and Eaton. He was for years chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the American Red Cross and leader in civic affairs.

In 1908, Mr. Eaton organized the "safe and sane" Fourth of July movement.

As chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the Red Cross, Mr. Eaton went through the most trying time of that organization's activity, the period of the World war. His services were untiring and in recognition of them he was decorated by the Italian government. Among other activities, he was for many years consul for Bulgaria in Chicago.

University of Michigan Graduate.

Mr. Eaton was a member of the American, Illinois and Chicago Bar associations. He belonged to the Michigan society—having been graduated in law from the University of Michigan—the Zeta Psi and the Alpha Omega fraternities and he was a Mason. He also was a member of the Chicago, the Hamilton, the Mid-Day, South Shore Country, Union League, Flossmoor Country and Quadrangle clubs and the Chicago Athletic association.

He is survived by his widow, Jaquette Hunter Eaton, his sons, Hunter, 20, and Norman, 15; his daughter, Eleaner, 6, and by his brother, Frank S. Eaton of Detroit, and an aunt, Miss Harriet Joiner of Chicago.

CAPT. RYERSON, SHIP PIONEER, IS DEAD AT 81

Capt. Mathias Ryerson, 91 years old, a Chicago pioneer and one time owner of a fleet of lumber schooners on Lake Michigan, died late yesterday of heart disease at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. F. Falk, 3520 Sheridan road.

According to members of the family, Capt. Ryerson came to Chicago seventy years ago and in a short time established a shipping company. With the passing of the sailing ship, he sold his boats and fifteen years ago engaged in the coal business. He retired from an active business life several years ago.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at the home of his daughter. He will be buried in Mount Olivet cemetery.

BOY STEPS ON NAIL; DIES.

Henry De Bora, 13, 1006 North Franklin street, died at the North Chicago hospital yesterday, supposedly from blood poisoning caused when he stepped on a rusty nail a week ago.

PLAN FUNERAL SERVICES FOR DR. COPELAND

Funeral services were being arranged yesterday for Dr. William Lowry Copeland, for 35 years a faculty member of the Chicago College of Dental Surgery, who died suddenly on Friday at the West Side hospital. Dr. Copeland was 75 years old and was a native of St. Catherines, Ont.

Dr. Copeland was graduated from McGill university in 1872, and engaged in private practice at St. Catherines until 1879. He came to Chicago in 1884 and subsequently held every chair at the Chicago College of Dental Surgery. He retired in 1920.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Charles A. Henninger and Bell Copeland, and two brothers, Arthur G. and Dency J. Copeland.

JOKE OF BRITISH PREMIER HELPS ATTACK OF FOES

War to Oust Baldwin Gains Strength.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George's sensational return to politics with the scheme for land nationalization, which he launched this week, is the political sensation of Great Britain, and has complicated the already obscured political situation. Rumors of an early election are growing in intensity, and the intrigue against Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin inside the Tory party is gaining in strength.

STANLEY BALDWIN.
[K. & H. Photo.]

Mr. Baldwin by his honesty and independence has offended many career seekers and intriguers, and also many honest Conservatives feel that he is too casual and easy going to be entrusted with the helm of the ship of state in times as troublesome as at present.

Much is being made of his remark on his return from his holiday this week that he had not seen a newspaper for a month. This is looked on by many of his followers as unpardonable levity.

Rally to Coalition Scheme.

A growing section of the party is said to be rallying to the plan urged by the press barons, Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, to form a coalition under former Prime Minister David Lloyd George's leadership to fight the Socialists. The basis for this is the fact that although the Liberal party in parliament is reduced to about forty, they are still able to poll a large vote in an election, which, added to the Conservative vote, ought to give the new party secure predominence for a generation.

Another interesting possibility is based on the report that the Socialists are watching the land campaign closely with the idea, if it is a success, of inviting Mr. Lloyd George to take command of the coalition of right wing Socialists and Liberals, overthrowing the communists and seeking the powers of constitutional reformers.

Watch Labor Party Meeting.

The coming meeting of the Labor party next week is likely to be a test of the strength of the radicals, who plan a great attack on Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden, J. H. Thomas and other moderate leaders. It is not likely that they will succeed, but it is quite possible that Mr. MacDonald may lose his leadership, owing to the general dissatisfaction with his weakness when he was prime minister.

Hold Funeral Tomorrow for Mrs. Mary Farrell

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at St. Thomas of Canterbury church for Mrs. Mary Follitt Farrell, who died Friday at the home of her son in South Haven, Mich. Mrs. Farrell, who was 72 years old, came to Chicago from London in 1853, when she was but 6 months old. Her Chicago home was at 855 Ainslee street. Burial will be in Mount Carmel. Surviving are three sons, one daughter, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

PROF. CAMPBELL, VETERAN CHEMIST AT MICHIGAN, DIES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Prof. Edward Demille Campbell, for thirty-five years a member of the chemistry faculty at the University of Michigan and since 1902 director of the chemistry laboratory, died late Friday night after a short illness. Dr. Campbell, who had been blind since 1892, was recognized as an authority on chemistry and the constitution of steel.

He lost his sight as the result of an explosion during an experiment. In spite of this handicap, however, he continued his chemical research and made seventy-five contributions to scientific journals. During the war he was consulting chemist of the ordnance department.

Prof. Campbell was the son of James V. Campbell, for thirty-seven years a justice of the Supreme court of Michigan. He is survived by his widow, three sons and three daughters.

GARAGE OWNER HELD ON NOTE CHARGE

John J. Hannon, 3838 Cottage Grove avenue, was yesterday held to the grand jury in bonds of $7,000 for failing to meet promissory notes when they came due. He was charged with operating a confidence game at his garage, 620 West 39th street.

Why They Choose "Hursen" for Funerals

Why is it that so many families prefer to call Hursen than to call the funeral director in the neighborhood? Why is it that there are so many living many miles away who prefer to call Hursen, regardless of distance?

A big business like "Hursen's" could not be built merely from the business secured in a neighborhood, nor in several neighborhoods. "Hursen's" serves not a part, but all of Chicago. Hursen funerals are seen in every nook and corner of Chicago. They are seen in the far suburbs, many miles out. Why?

When a funeral is conducted by Hursen it means that it is, first, a "quality" funeral. You never see the same elegance and quality of materials elsewhere that you see at a "Hursen" funeral. You never see elsewhere such an unusual method of service, nor such generosity of service.

Hursen has had a triple motto, followed scrupulously since the small beginning. These are: Far lower price, unequaled quality in materials and automobile equipment, and a highly developed specialized service.

You have never seen such superb limousines for the use of passengers. You have never seen limousine-hearses before. They are a Hursen revolution in funeral equipment, built especially for Hursen. Besides all this, "Hursen" funerals cost but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere. All Chicago has built the largest establishment of its kind in America, "Hursen's." Call Hursen, of course!

HOPE OF FREIGHT RATE BOOST IS SEEN IN REPORT

Security Holders Offer Plan for N. W. Roads.

Lessing Rosenthal, local attorney for the security holders' committee, which is seeking an advance on freight rates for the northwestern roads, made public yesterday the report of this committee on its investigation of the recent rate hearing before the interstate commerce commission at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Committee organization of the security holders has now become a nation-wide movement. The par value of the securities represented is $250,315,500. Representatives, it is stated, have been sent from Chicago through the northwest to the coast and have found that large shippers and other business interests in the past hostile to the railroads in this matter are now ready to adopt a fair attitude.

Western Rates Lower.

"The outstanding fact developed in Chicago," the report states, "was that the rates applicable to the roads of the northwestern region are below the rates enjoyed by the other carriers in the central and southwestern regions.

"The hearing developed that all the carriers of the western district originally combined on an application for an increase of 11 per cent, but that shortly before the hearing 73 out of the 74 class 1 roads in that district, including all the northwestern carriers except the St. Paul, united in a declaration reducing their request to 5 per cent.

"We inquired as to the reasons of these executives for assenting to the reduction of the application to a point admittedly below their requirements. We ascertained that this assent was closely connected with the injection into the situation of the so-called Potter pooling plan.

"It was evidently felt that in order to avoid being placed in a false position before the public it was necessary to meet the 5 per cent proposal of the Potter plan with a similar figure.

No Plan Proposed.

"Private inquiry on our part developed the remarkable fact that in spite of the general recognition of the especially depressed rates and financial condition of the northwestern roads that carriers affected were not prepared with any definite plan to meet this special situation.

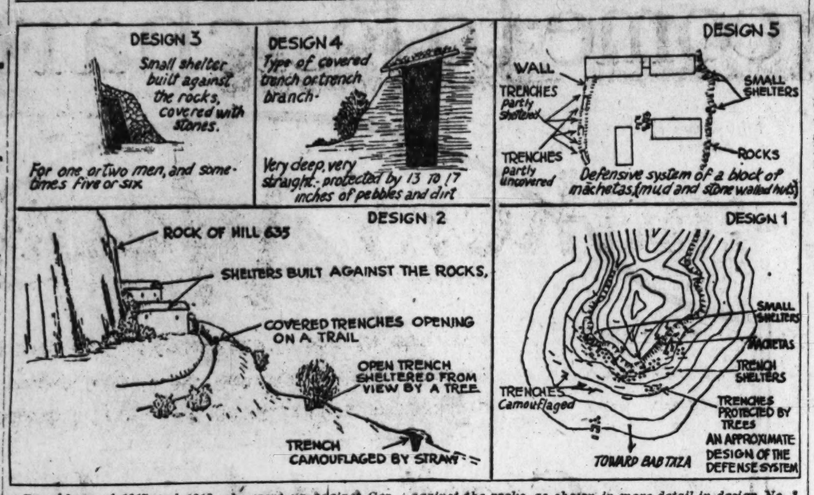
"We then investigated the practicability of securing a supplemental plan, additional to the 5 per cent increase, for relieving the special needs of the northwestern roads. We ascertained that in the opinion of several leading traffic experts in that territory such a plan was feasible and practical.

"The proposed supplemental plan would require the cooperation of at least the major carriers in the northwestern region, and steps taken to secure such cooperation were successful to a considerable extent. Work is progressing on the framing of such a plan and we have good hopes that if it is supported by the executives of the interested carriers, it will commend itself to the interstate commerce commission, in view of the demonstrated needs of the northwestern roads for special relief.

"The result of the adoption of the proposed plan would be to equalize the rates of the northwestern region with the rates of other regions of the western district and to produce earnings nullifying any agreement for resort to a pooling.

"We found that the Potter plan was almost unanimously disapproved by the other western roads. We have declared our opposition to the Potter plan because it is unsound in principle, because of its doubtful legality and because the plan is impracticable."

RIFFIAN THORNS IN FRENCH PATH OF GLORY



Doughboys of 1917 and 1918 who went up against German trenches in France, and American artillerymen who had the job of shelling the enemy out of those trenches, will be interested in the sketches above, showing the strong defensive organization the troops of Abd-el Krim employ so successfully around their positions. The construction indicates that Krim is being well advised by white soldiers of fortune who have joined his forces against the French and Spanish. Design No. 1 shows the defensive system of a Riffian hilltop position, the contour lines each indicating an elevation of fifty yards. Small shelters are indicated against the rocks, as shown in more detail in design No. 3. Machetas, or the mud and stone walled huts of mountain shepherds, contain more small shelters, as indicated in design No. 2. "Trenchees Abris" are shown in further detail in design No. 4. It will be noted that they are unusually deep and are well covered against air attack and shells. Only the smallest opening is left for a protruding rifle. Other trenches are dug behind the protection of tree roots, and with the advantage of the foliage screen above. Some advance trenches are camouflaged as straw piles. Design No. 5 indicates the defenses of a group of mud huts on a high plateau.

DEMOCRATS HERE TO HAIL SMITH AS A CONQUEROR

Cook county Democrats plan to receive Gov. Al Smith of New York like a general triumphant from the wars when he comes to Chicago next Sunday. Tammany's conquering hero, with the scalps of Hearst and Hylan at his belt, will be hailed as the local Democracy's presidential favorite for 1928.

Gov. Smith will be the headliner at the big Democratic picnic to be held next Sunday at the Beverly Hills forest preserve, 87th street and Western avenue. Mayor Dever will also speak.

Chairman Martin J. O'Brien of the Democratic managing committee said yesterday that he expects the attendance to exceed 100,000.

Numerous campaign projects are expected to be launched at the picnic, among them an enthusiastic start of the boom for County Treasurer P. J. Carr for sheriff.

POLICEMAN'S BULLETS FATAL.

Henry Holton, colored, 4516 Vincennes avenue, died yesterday at the Bridewell hospital of bullet wounds inflicted several days ago by Patrolman John Harris of the Wabash avenue station. Holton was attempting to escape after being arrested.

Nab Bootlegger Who Served City Hall Patrons

Herman Arnold, 43 years old, living at 2626 Milwaukee avenue, believed to be a bootlegger with an extensive city hall patronage, was arrested in the city council committee rooms yesterday by Policemen Michael Ling and Felix Kasinski. The policemen assert they found one full and two empty whisky bottles on Arnold when he was arrested. Numerous complaints of Arnold's activities to Mayor Dever and Chief Collins resulted in the assignment of the policemen to nab him in the act of bringing liquor into the hall.

Chicago's Most Distinctive Apartment Homes

HOME-LIKE atmosphere and luxurious comfort are the outstanding features of these magnificent Co-operative apartments now nearing completion. Situated in the most exclusive section of Hyde Park, by the Lake, they command the finest transportation in Chicago—only eight minutes from the heart of the city on the Illinois Central (electrified next summer). Boulevard arteries, bus and surface lines are close by.

There are available for your selection apartments ranging in size from 5 rooms with one or two baths to 9 rooms with four baths. The 7, 8 and 9 room apartments are of the duplex type, the bed chambers being above the living rooms on the second floor and connected by ornamental winding stair cases.

A number of these apartments contain the beautiful 2-story living room with double arched windows. The architects have carefully arranged every apartment with southern exposure; all rooms are exceptionally large and comfortable and all have outside light. This beautiful building is of fireproof construction, the apartments absolutely soundproof, and most modern in every detail.

An inspection will convince investors of the tremendous advantages of the cooperative plan.

Purchase Price of Equities from $8,400 Upwards

If desired, for responsible parties, terms may be arranged so that apartments may be partially paid for out of savings in rent.

(Some apartments which have been purchased for investment may be leased)

The Closed Car Hit of the New Season--$2700

First, the center of attention in the New Franklin line. Then, pushed by a flood of orders to a doubled production. Now, the closed car hit of the new season. That is the sensational story of this New Franklin Coupé. How is it different? All the way through. New Franklin style, for distinction. English coach-boot rear, for smartness. Three-passenger leather seat, for greater comfort. Narrow front pillars, for clearer vision. Double luggage space, for easier touring. Franklin performance, for more miles, better miles. And a price only $65 above the Touring, for incomparable value. The pioneer in a popular new field.

FRENCH SET UP VAST CAMPS TO HOLD RIFF LINE

1,500 Square Miles of Land Recovered.

RABAT, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Marshal Pe- an offensive against the rebels in Morocco, which began Sept. 10, besides shattering the defensive of the most powerful dissident tribes and recovering nearly 1,500 square miles of territory north of the Ouergha river, has brought the French troops several points nearer to theoretical Franco-Spanish frontier as delimited by the Algeciras post.

MARSHAL PETAIN.

The operations culminated today with the capture of Zaouia Oulad Ghezzar, eight miles northeast of the Bibane ridge, bringing the French line eastward of Taza up to the level of the westward line established a week ago by the capture of Amjot.

Gen. Naulin received a pressing invitation from the Beni Brahim tribesmen to come and occupy their capital Oulad Ghezzar, and receive their submission.

Sets Up Big Entrenched Camps.

Marshal Petain has decided that the era of small outposts is ended. Vast entrenched camps and regular formations will remain facing the Moors, notably at Bab Taza, Mezoura, Ain Defaref and Bab Ouender.

Despite the successes, the general command appears doubtful whether the war can be carried fhto the heart of Abd-el Krim's country before the rainy season sets in, especially in the center of Taounat. On this high and difficult range, the Moors are entrenched, barring the route of the French troops. It is probable that the French will spend the winter on their present lines, except for a slight advance to Taougertat.

Yankee Airmen Commended.

All the aviation units coöperated in the recent operations at Amjot, Zaouia Oulad Ghezzar and El Bibane, and assisted greatly in the French gains along the center line. The American squadron bombed Boukkos, receiving honors in the communique of Gen. Naulin.

BITE DEEP IN RIFF

An official communique issued in Fez, French Morocco, yesterday announced that the French forces operating north of the River Ouergha have reached Zaouia Oulad Ghezzar, eight miles northeast of the Bibane ridge and on the edge of the country of the Beni Brahim tribe. Zaouia Oulad Ghezzar is ten miles due east of Amjot, capital of the strong Beni Zerouai tribes, which the French captured Sept. 12. The Bibane position fell a few days later. Thus in the operations in the center of their front alone the French troops by reaching Zaouia Oulad Ghezzar have completed the occupation of a triangle marked by these three places, comprising nearly 200 square miles, in the last few days, and have recovered altogether nearly 1,500 square miles.

DENVER BANK IS CLOSED BY RUN; U. S. IN CHARGE

Denver, Colo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Globe National bank of Denver was closed by its officers today. It was capitalized at $200,000. The action was taken, officers said, because of a run on the bank precipitated by circulation of false rumors concerning its condition.

Herman B. Gates, former state treasurer of Wyoming, president of the bank, is in New York City, officers said, completing details for financing the institution which recently was merged with the Home Savings and Trust company. The officers have asked that a national bank examiner be sent to take charge. They said the bank is solvent.

U. S. WARNS YANK FLYERS HELPING FRENCH IN RIFF

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special]—The state department has given official notice of the participation of American citizens with the French forces in the war against the Riffs in Morocco. Unless these citizens sever their belligerent connection with French troops they may be subject to prosecution for "high misdemeanor," which carries with it, on conviction, both fine and imprisonment. The matter has not been brought officially to the attention of the French government, but a message by the department to Maxwell Blake, the American diplomatic agent and consul general at Tangier, Morocco, appears to place responsibility on him of seeing that United States laws on the subject are carried out.

Col. Charles Sweeney is leading an escadrille composed of American flyers, which he formed for the French army and which now is participating in the Riffian operations against Abd-el Krim and his native tribesmen.

An American statute appears to place responsibility on the American diplomatic agent and consul general at Morocco for seeing that American citizens do not take part in hostilities against a government with which the United States is at peace.

BUDGET TEACHING UNCLE SAM TO SAVE, LORD SAYS

Tells How $250,000,000 Surplus Was Obtained.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Operation of the budget system has kept public expenditures down and facilitated a rapid return of the public debt. H. M. Lord, director of the budget, says in his annual report published today.

The report contains an elaborate record of the work of coördinating agencies created by the budget bureau together with statements itemizing some of the savings effected by departments during the last fiscal year.

"Every Little Bit," Etc.

"Many economies reported may seem trivial, but a large number of small, individual economies, continued year after year, produce substantial savings in the aggregate," says Director Lord. "The habit of saving, acquired by practice of small economies, develops in the government employé an alertness and initiative that will detect larger wastes of government funds and of property, and evolve means of eliminating them.

"The total of ordinary receipts for the fiscal year 1925 was $3,780,148,684, as compared with $4,012,044,701 for 1924, a decrease of $231,896,017." the report continues. "The total of ordinary expenditures, exclusive of public debt retirements and the postal service, for 1925 was $3,063,105,332, as compared with $3,048,677,965 for 1924, an increase of $14,427,366. Had it not been for a charge of $99,458,769 for adjusted service certificates fund the total of expenditures during 1925 would show a reduction of $85,031,402 from the 1924 figure.

How Expenses Are Kept Down.

"The practical ratification by congress of budget estimates since enactment of the budget and accounting act, the continued executive pressure for economy and efficiency, the cooperation given by heads of departments, and the coördination of the routine business of government are responsible for keeping the expenditures down, notwithstanding the normal growth of federal business.

"Including the ordinary expenditures required by law to be applied to public debt retirements—$466,538,113.82—the fiscal year 1925 was closed with a surplus of $250,505,238.33."

GASOLINE STATION EMPLOYES ROBBED.

A bandit robbed Lorenzo Peyckes, attendant at a filling station at 79th street and Dobson avenue, of $70 early yesterday. At 83d street and Bennett avenue two men took $20 from Louis Vanderlan, attendant at the gas station there.

CONFESSED MORON

Mortimer Travis, who confesses mistreating more than a hundred children. He is held by the west park police.

INDICT YOUTH FOR SLAYING OF U. OF C. STUDENT

A true bill charging manslaughter was returned by the grand jury yesterday against Victor Baffa after evidence was heard in the case of John Klassin, University of Chicago student, who was fatally injured in a fight with Baffa and his friends on Aug. 23.

According to the evidence, Baffa wielded a paving block with which Klassin was struck down following the argument over Inez, Irma, and Dolores Parise, 391 Kensington avenue, who were in the company of one of Baffa's friends. Klassin and a companion had walked past and proposed a party.

J. C. O'LAUGHLIN BUYS ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Army and Navy Journal has been purchased by John Callan O'Laughlin, former Washington correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The Journal, founded in 1863, formerly was owned by the Stuyvesant company, publishers of Town and Country, to whom Gen. Henry J. Reilly, U. S. A., retired, part owner and editor in chief since 1921, sold his interest April 24 last. Gen. Reilly also is a former member of THE TRIBUNE staff.

Charles J. Leach, managing editor since 1871, will continue in that capacity.

TRAIN INJURIES FATAL.

George Morganson, 66, 6825 South Paulina street, who was injured when he was struck by a suburban train at the Union depot on Friday, died yesterday at the Midwest hospital.

CATCH 2 WITH STOLEN GOODS; PAL, SHOT, FLEES

Policemen Furwill and Dars of the Fillmore street station yesterday captured two of three men whom they found in a garage at 2635 Clifton Park avenue with a truckload of goods stolen Friday night from the Grand Furniture store in Cicero. The third man who escaped was shot in the back, the police believed.

The patrolmen went to the garage as the result of a tip. Two of the three occupants, Robert Peters, 1927 Allport avenue, and Herbert Koubenoc, 1917 South Racine avenue, were easily overcome, the third escaping while the police were occupied with his pals. Furwill shot at the fugitive fleeing down the alley and said he was sure the man had been winged.

Swallows Poison When Wife Deserts to Rival

Arthur Bayer, 3502 West 15th street, swallowed a quantity of poison yesterday in the presence of his three children. He told the police he was despondent because his wife had deserted him for another man. At the county hospital it was said Bayer will recover.

Only $365

[Tank extra according to size]

for a genuine Kleen-Heet Type GJ Oil Burner

This extraordinary announcement published for the first time last Sunday resulted in a rush of orders so great that it may soon be necessary to withdraw our offer of immediate installation:

1 A guaranteed, thermostatically controlled oil burner—a genuine Kleen-Heet—at $365 installed! This burner embodies the identical mechanical principles which have made Kleen-Heet the leader in oil burner installations in Chicago. It maintains Kleen-Heet's exceptional standards of uniform heat control, combustion efficiency, cleanliness and economy of operation. It burns the cheapest grade of clean oil.

And at a price which is but little more than you are asked to pay for the most elementary, natural draft, hand-controlled burner of unproved design and manufacture!

2 Extremely liberal terms—a cash payment of only $29! The balance can be paid in monthly payments of $30. Or, complete with 320-gallon tank assembly, for a cash payment of $44 and $40 monthly.

3 Immediate installation. On orders received this week, we guarantee to install your burner ready for operation within 10 days from receipt of order!

A Perfect Oil Burner at an Amazingly Low Price

This is the lowest price at which any Kleen-Heet Oil Burner has ever been sold! But it is not a reduced price. Kleen-Heet has never found it necessary to reduce prices or to sacrifice quality in order to maintain leadership in oil burner sales in Chicago. The burner offered at this price is a complete Kleen-Heet with Minneapolis thermostatic control. It is power driven, fully automatic, and has been tested and listed as standard by The Underwriters' Laboratories.

It heats efficiently and evenly any home of nine rooms or less and is ample in capacity for the average two-apartment building. Every burner sold under this offer will be backed by the written guarantee of the Winslow Boiler and Engineering Co., manufacturers of Kleen-Heet oil burners.

Do Not Delay

Our Offer of Immediate Installation May Be Withdrawn Without Notice

You can no longer afford to deny your family the comfort and health of efficient, dependable oil heat! Rid yourself once and for all of the bother and uncertainty of coal heating. Forget forever the mess and dirt of coal and ashes. Take the first step toward having Kleen-Heet installed in your home.

But do it now! Remember, it may be necessary to withdraw this offer of immediate installation, without notice. Do not delay! Investigate this most unusual offer in the history of oil heating. The coupon will bring you descriptive booklet and full details.

ROW ON U. S. BAN MAY COST RED'S PARLIAMENT JOB

Workers Want Apology or Resignation.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Minus "Mr. Sack," the British interparliamentary delegates left London today en route to Washington. With their families and secretaries, the party numbered 120. Two prominent members, Sir Robert Horne and Col. Woodcock, also were absent, but they will join the delegation later. Col. Woodcock was one of the members of parliament who refused to go to Washington if the communist delegate, S. Saklatvala, was included.

SIR ROBERT HORNE.

Since Secretary of State Kellogg's action in revoking the red Parsee's visa to the United States, Mr. Saklatvala's political star appears to be sinking rapidly. "Mr. Sack," as he is now nicknamed, is in danger of losing his seat in the house of commons as a result of the attention the row over the canceling of his American trip has drawn to his policy of violence and his repeated wish to provoke the destruction of the British Empire from within.

Apologize or Quit, Demand.

Mr. Saklatvala's own constitutents in the borough of Battersea, which he represents in the house of commons, today are signing an open petition demanding either a public apology for his anti-British utterances or his resignation from the North Battersea seat in parliament. Battersea is one of the roughest sections of London. Crowds of laboring men and women stormed the town hall this afternoon, demanding that the mayor call a public indignation meeting to oust "Mr. Sack."

Jibes for Saklatvala.

There was a gay scene at Waterloo station when the interparliamentary party left, amid shouts and jests, all at the expense of the absent communist. Only the labor delegates refrained from demonstrating their satisfaction that Mr. Saklatvala was crossed off the list. The labor members are traveling third class until they reach America, after which the entertainment will be free.

WALL STREET MONEY LAID 3 TO 1 WALKER WILL BE NEXT MAYOR

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Convinced that there will be no third ticket in this year's mayoralty contest, or at least none headed by Mayor Hylan, Wall street has begun to make bets on the result of the November election.

Senator James J. Walker, the Tammany candidate, is a favorite over Frank D. Waterman, his Republican opponent, and, according to Richard C. Fabb, several fair sized wagers have been made at odds of 3 to 1 that Mr. Walker will be the next mayor. Mr. Fabb said there was plenty of money available on that basis, but that thus far little Waterman money had made its appearance. Supporters of Mr. Waterman apparently are waiting for longer odds.

Plunges to Death from Movie Fight on Balcony

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A thrilling film fight on a lofty balcony cost Max Marks his life yesterday. Marks, a motion picture extra, was supposed to fall from the balcony during the struggle. He fell, but the rope that held him broke and he plunged fifty feet to his death.

EUROPE TO TRY "GOOD WILL" AS CURE FOR ILLS

legal experts, and there the work of Dr. Gaus bore fruit. This German came for the first time with a spirit of the utmost good will, trust in the other members of the conference, and a desire to reach a settlement. He established a firm friendship with M. Fromageot, and the two men, with the assistance of Sir Cecil Hurst, the British expert, found little difficulty in reaching an agreement on the formulæ in the light of the new spirit.

From their conversations emerged a pact which, while it probably will shock strict jurists and sticklers for technical rights, will, it is believed, restore peace to Europe and make possible speedy reconstruction.

POLAND WINS POINT

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Count Skrzynsky, Polish foreign minister, who is fast acquiring a reputation as the most active and able foreign minister in Europe, has scored over both France and Italy by securing their promise that Poland and Czecho-Slovakia will be admitted to the security conference next month as soon as any questions affecting their countries arise.

Both Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, and Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, are desirous of excluding the smaller nations and confining the conference to Great Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, and perhaps Italy if Premier Mussolini refuses to be excluded. M. Briand recently remarked that he could not go to any hotel in any city in Europe without finding Count Skrzynsky sitting on the doorstep, and Mr. Chamberlain has had a similar experience.

Now, THE TRIBUNE learns, they have agreed to call in the eastern nations as soon as the question of the western frontiers is settled.

Mussolini Still a Thorn.

Premier Mussolini is still proving a thorn in the side of the European diplomats. Day by day they are bombarded with conflicting demands and messages from Sig. Mussolini, and no one knows what he wants. The only thing certain is that he is trying to pull some advantage for Italy out of the situation, and the allied patience is fast wearing thin.

No place has yet been fixed for the security meeting, and none can be fixed until after the German cabinet meeting next week, for the reason that the allies have left it to Germany to choose when and where the meeting will be held.

STRESEMANN FOR PACT

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Despite the intrigues of the nationalists against the European security pact conference, Wilhelmstrasse is confident that Dr. Gustave Stresemann, the German foreign minister, will meet the foreign ministers of France, England, Belgium, and possibly Italy, at Lucerne, Switzerland, on Oct. 5.

Germany feels that the forthcoming conference will provide much more than a solution for the present unsettled conditions through a general security pact. At last year's conference in London the Dawes plan was in the foreground, but negotiations for the evacuation of the Ruhr were carried on simultaneously.

Because of the promise of French evacuation in 1925, the German government was able to force the nationalists to agree to the Dawes plan. This year the matter is far more complicated since not only public opinion of France, England and Germany will have to be considered, but also that of Russia.

Favorable interpretation of Article 16 of the league of nations covenant would enable Germany to calm Russia, which sees in the former's entrance into the league a direct threat against its own security, the soviets believing that the general will of the Geneva body would force Germany to take part in action against Russia. The trade relations of both countries have developed tremendously in the last few months and therefore Germany is anxious to maintain the terms of the Rapallo treaty with Russia.

Germany insists on the evacuation of the Cologne zone, which if settled satisfactorily will help Dr. Stresemann to put through the security pact.

Amazing New Invention for the DEAF

Not even a headband needed!

At last the unseen hearing aid—worn in, not on, the ear—in perfect comfort

FROM Europe comes a remarkable new invention for the deaf, called the Midget Phonophor. Brings back the joy of good hearing often in the most stubborn cases of deafness. The tiniest hearing aid in existence—but the most powerful. Worn without headband. Almost invisible. Reproduces conversation or music with clear, natural tones.

TAKE ten days . . . and come to HOLLYWOOD-by-the-Sea

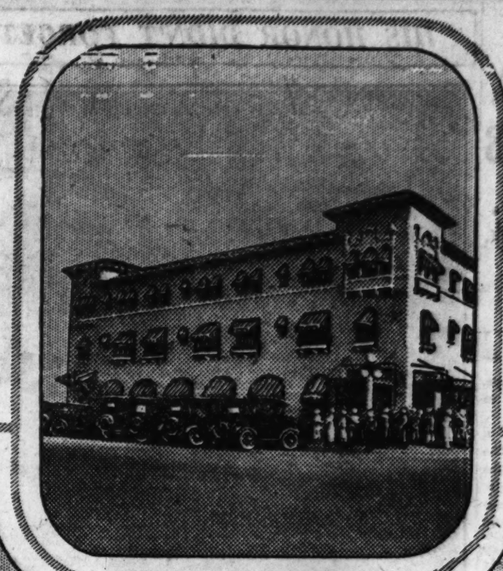
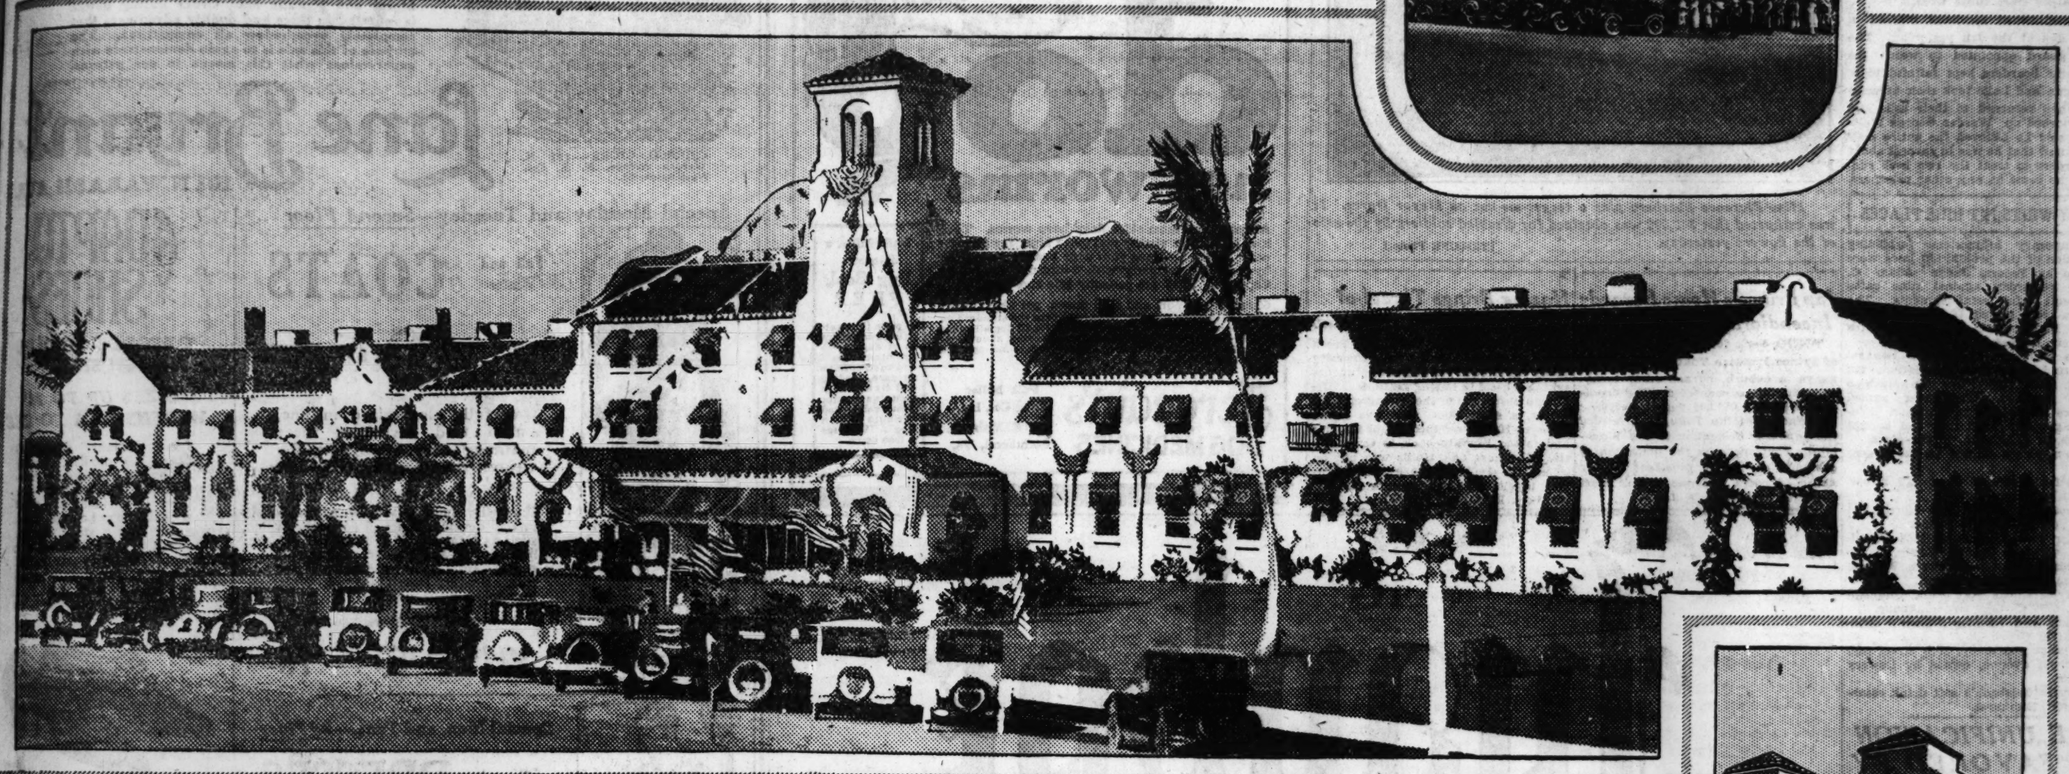
FLORIDA'S ALL-YEAR RESORT CITY . . . . A PLACE TO LIVE



At the left is the Great Southern Hotel, opened in January 1925.



The hospitality of Hollywood-by-the-Sea, Florida, is nowhere more manifest than in its splendid hotels. Above is The Park View—overlooking Circle Park. Two other great hotels, one costing $1,000,000 and the other $3,000,000, are under construction to accommodate the increasing travel to Florida's all-year resort city; one is scheduled for completion in November of this year and the other in January, 1926

THIS invitation is addressed to those who are masters of their time—those fortunate people who can take their vacations in the fall or winter. Or perhaps to those who are not bound by vacation schedules at all.

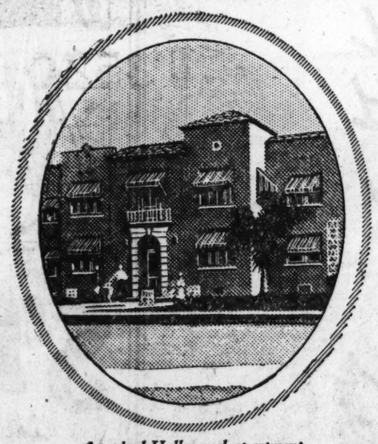
You busy men—who run your businesses and will not let your businesses run you! Turn over your worries and your details to a good assistant—and listen to the many-voiced call of this alluring trip to Florida!

Come by fast, all-Pullman special train—with every appointment, every service to add to your comfort and make the non-stop trip through the scenic Cumberland Mountains bring you swiftly to the land of heart's desire.

Step from the din of the city or the monotony of waving cornfields into the land of enchantment—as different as another planet—gorgeous and graceful in its foliage—unbounded in its opportunities to play, to rest, to forget dull care—in the land of Ponce de Leon.

Feel the tingling tonic of salt water bathing—on the seven mile beach of Hollywood-by-the-Sea, or in the new $250,000 bathing casino.

Idle up and down the three-mile stretch of ocean-wide recreation places in a Broad Walk chair.



A typical Hollywood apartment

Here's what they say in New York

"Hollywood . . . with its interlocking development of harbor and city co-ordinated . . . seems destined to grow into one of the leading cities of Florida." J. S. Jourdan, Wall Street Journal.

"Hollywood is the wonder city of Florida," said Gilbert T. Hodges, of The New York Sun. "We were simply dumbfounded at the progress Hollywood has already accomplished . . . We have found a delightful summer climate, a beautiful country, and one with endless business and industrial opportunities. In other words, Hollywood is a place where one can live with health and prosperity."

Cruise out to the Gulf Stream, and know the thrill of deep sea fishing—where the sail fish and tarpon wait to give you battle royal.

Golf by day on Hollywood's famous links, where velvety greens and grassy fairways add keen zest to your game.

Dance by night on the light-tinted glass dancing floor of the Hollywood Country Club, with its removable roof which lets in the star-studded brilliance of Florida's night sky.

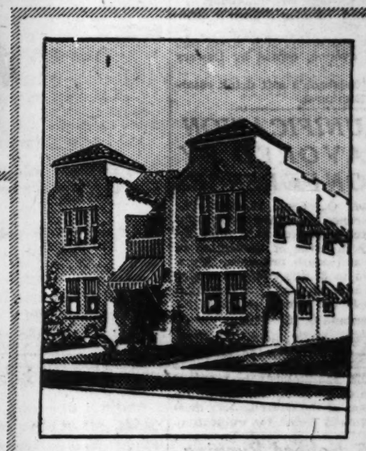
Hollywood-by-the-Sea awaits you with myriad recreations—and cool, refreshing nights of sleep in luxurious new hotels.

This new miracle city is directly on the Atlantic Ocean—on the main line Florida East Coast Railroad—on the Dixie Highway and Inland Waterway. It is 15 miles above Miami and 50 miles below Palm Beach. Motor coach trips show you these and many other points of interest.

Your eyes will delight in the vivid coloring of villas and palatial residences, glimpsed in their setting of tropical foliage, along the vista of shore and ocean. Through Florida's famous Inland Waterways, you may ride in speedy motor boats—seeing that wonderful system of canals, channels, lagoons and lakes which are the true secret of Florida's greatness. It is these which are converting this great state into a veritable Garden of Eden.

Not even the enthusiasm of the thousands who have seen and enjoyed the attractions of Hollywood-by-the-Sea can tell you the delights which await you.

Nor can you judge the luxury and completeness of the trip by the moderate cost. This is no ordinary vacation. It is such a trip as men—and women—take few times in a lifetime. You are not a "tourist," you are an honored guest. Hollywood-by-the-Sea has accomplished marvelous things—and we want you to see them. We want you to add your word to the praise of literally thousands who have discovered this as a bewitching summer city. We want you to see—and report as a matter of interest to your club-fellows or your business companions—the wonders which modern ingenuity and smiling nature can work in a young community, which has many marvelous natural advantages.



Hollywood-by-the-Sea has many attractive apartment buildings which furnish homes for Hollywood's permanent residents

MAKE YOUR VACATION SHOW YOU FLORIDA

One hundred and fifty dollars gives you the pleasure of this trip. It pays for your Pullman berth and round-trip fare on the train; it pays for hotel or Beach City accommodations—room and meals; it pays for your trips by boat and motor coach—it gives you the freedom of the golf courses, the beaches—everything with the small exception of dining-car meals. Select the date which is most convenient and make reservations as far in advance as possible. The demand is tremendous, even at this time of year—act quickly to enjoy this vacation.

been out of here, nor near that place. I have told you a thousand times to stay away from those women.'"

No untoward incidents marred a calm day at the jail yesterday. The new guard appointed to watch the two star boarders kept faithful vigil. Druggan and Lake took their exercise and then returned to their cells and were locked up. Warden George Weideling said he believed the entire staff now knew that he was in earnest about his orders to treat the two beer runners the same as any other prisoners.

DRY WRITS HIT NINE PLACES

Temporary injunctions forbidding violation of the prohibition laws were issued by Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe yesterday against nine cafes and soft drink establishments. The orders were issued at the request of Mary Bailey, assistant United States district attorney.

The Beverage Dispensers' Benevolent and Protective association, 123 North Clark street, was the only loop place enjoined. The order named George B. McLane as manager. Federal agents testified they had bought drinks, at $1.50 each, in the place.

Other places named in the orders are:

Vestibule cafe, 8 East 22d street, owned by Benny Zellen.

Cocoanut Grove, 3941 North 72d court, owned by Otto Brand.

Henry and Thomas Steiner's cabaret, River Grove.

Calumet pharmacy, 35th street and California avenue, owned by Dewery Brooks.

Charles Geisbach's soft drink establishment, Elmhurst.

M. E. UNIFICATION IS FAVORED BY 2 CONFERENCES

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session here voted 131 to 4 today in favor of unification of the north and south branches. By a vote of 104 to 32 the conference also voted for admission and participation of laymen in the annual meetings.

AT a meeting of the Peter M. Hoffman Club of Cook County, held September 18th, 1925, the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, During the past few days the Hon. Peter M. Hoffman has been the victim of scurrilous, malicious and untruthful attacks regarding the administration of the affairs of the high office of Sheriff of Cook County

THEREFORE, BE IT

RESOLVED, That the Peter M. Hoffman Club of Cook County, representing 9,000 red-blooded Americans, offer our united protests against these falsifying statements and call upon all good citizens to withhold bias judgment, because it was he who discovered the irregularities of his subordinates and presented the evidence to the Department of Justice for investigation.

We submit to the good people of Cook County the enviable record of the Hon. Peter M. Hoffman during his official career in public life for honesty, integrity and excellent business qualifications.

THEREFORE, BE IT

RESOLVED, That the Peter M. Hoffman Club of Cook County extend to the Honorable Peter M. Hoffman a vote of confidence and pledge our loyalty during his term of office and for any future ambitions he may aspire, and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Sheriff, the public press, to each member of the Club, and that they be spread upon the minutes of the Club.

Hazing Brings Threat of Expulsion at De Pauw

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 19.—President Murlin of De Pauw university today threatened expulsion of students taking a hand in hazing activities. Dr. Murlin investigated the hazing of John Hollis, a sophomore, who was taken to Terre Haute, dumped out of an auto and forced to walk back to Greencastle. The next day Hollis was put on a car for Indianapolis and his worried landlady spread reports that he had been kidnaped or killed.

ESTIMATE TOTAL FORGET-ME-NOT YIELD AT $40,000

While the great size of the force which sold forget-me-nots on the streets yesterday made it impossible to forecast accurately the amount that was taken in during the day, officials of the Disabled American Veterans, under whose auspices the drive was held, said last night that they felt confident the total would reach $40,000. It is expected that two days will be occupied in totaling the contents of the canisters.

The fastest-selling high-powered car in the World

Why the One-Profit Big Six Studebaker outsells all others

NO other car of equal or greater power (according to the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce) approaches the Studebaker Big Six in popularity.

The Big Six leads in sales not only in the United States, but also abroad.

It leads because one-profit production in vast modern plants enables Studebaker to offer a sturdily built quality car with scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation at prices far below those of competitors.

There are only seven American cars with rated horsepower equal to that of the Big Six and their prices are two to four times that of this famous car.

It is not surprising that the Studebaker Big Six is the fastest-selling high-powered car in the world.

A Better Car at a Lower Price

Tremendous mileage records achieved under gruelling conditions by numerous Big Sixes testify to the rugged durability of this chassis.

For instance, out in Arizona Studebaker far outsells its normal proportion of cars. Here one person out of four who buys a car selling for over $1000 selects a Studebaker in preference to 57 other competing makes.

Every county in Arizona which has bought an automobile for its sheriff has selected a Studebaker.

In Oklahoma, too, Studebaker is the favorite car of the hard-driving men of the oil fields. They have found by experience that at a mileage when other cars are breaking up Studebakers are breaking in.

Studebakers stand up because they are not "assembled" but manufactured as a unit in Studebaker plants. Being built as a unit they function as a unit and yield scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation.

To the powerful engine and sturdy chassis Studebaker adds a body so staunchly built, so finely finished, that no car at any price excels it. These superiorities are possible at the price for two reasons:

1. Studebaker is the only manufacturer in the fine car field equipped to make all its own bodies, engines, gear sets, springs, clutches, differentials, steering gears, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. Thus, Studebaker eliminates from the price you pay, the extra profits and overhead of outside parts and body makers.

2. Unlike the other high-powered cars listed, the Studebaker Big Six benefits from the great economies incident to volume production. It is manufactured in company with two other chassis models in the finest plants owned by any individual manufacturer except Ford.

Increased volume of sales—founded on Studebaker's policies of One-Profit manufacture and no yearly models—made it possible to reduce the prices of the Big Six Studebakers on August 1st.

Today you can buy the same Studebaker Big Six Sedan that has won fame the world over for its power, comfort and excess mileage, at a lower price than ever before.

The only American cars which exceed the Big Six in rated horsepower compare with it in price as follows:

Studebaker Big Six
N. A. C. C. and S. A. E. rating—36.04
Price of 7-Passenger Sedan f. o. b. factory $2245.

Car A— 1% more power $2755 higher price
Car B— 1% more power $2855 higher price
Car C— 7% more power $4755 higher price
Car D—25% more power $5855 higher price
Car E—31% more power $7430 higher price
Car F—35% more power $4565 higher price
Car G—35% more power $7255 higher price

Not one of these manufacturers enjoys Studebaker's advantages of volume production. In spite of moderate prices to the purchaser, Studebaker engineering, construction and workmanship are unexcelled — even by the most expensive cars.

No Yearly Models

The Studebaker policy of "no yearly models" is a further protection to owners. Under this policy Studebaker cars are always up to date—we add improvements from time to time. We do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

Any of the dealers listed below will gladly show you the Big Six Sedan and finance its purchase on Studebaker's fair and liberal Budget Payment Plan, if desired.

Superiorities

Both Obvious and Concealed

The factor of power is something that is easy to measure and compare—but in hundreds of hidden places throughout this Studebaker Sedan, you will find standards of quality, comparable only with a few of the very highest priced cars.

It is richly upholstered in genuine mohair. Metal hardware is of butler silver finish. Dome light, corner reading lights are included in the appointments.

This Studebaker Big Six Sedan is built to hold seven passengers in real comfort. The chassis and engine are especially designed for the seven-passenger body. Full-size balloon tires and snubbers add to its ease of riding.

Study this combination of features and you will see why the Big Six Sedan is more up to date than the newest yearly models.

Sturdy Body Construction—fine Northern white ash and hard maple are used. With steels, we pay a premium to get the best quality.

Full-Size Balloon Tires—for which the steering gear, fenders and even the body lines are specially designed.

Automatic Spark Control—eliminating the usual spark lever on steering wheel.

Emergency Brake—operated from the dash, thus giving more front seat room. Another exclusive Studebaker feature.

Safety Lighting Control—on the steering wheel, at the driver's finger tips.

Instruments—including 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, speedometer, oil pressure gauge and ammeter, in single grouping under glass, on beautiful silver-faced dial.

Improved One-Piece Windshield—automatic windshield cleaner, weather-proof visor, rear-view mirror and attractive cowl lights.

Coincidental Lock—to ignition and steering wheel, which serves to reduce the theft insurance rate on Studebaker cars—a single key operates this lock as well as that on the door and the clever device on the spare tire carrier.

Cowl Ventilator—operated by foot.

Extension Lamp—on ten foot cord.

Combination Stop-and-Tail Light.

Completely Machined Crankshaft—to obtain perfect engine balance and thus reduce vibration to a minimum.

Oil Drain Valve—at side of engine, for draining engine oil without getting under car.

Waterproof Ignition—even the spark plugs are protected from moisture by rubber shields.

SOVETSKY CASE RECALLS OTHER ACTS OF SMALL

Alleged Con Man Twice Refused to Kentucky.

Public officials and victims of burglaries in Green Bay, Wis., were not surprised at the refusal of Gov. Small to allow John Sovetsky to be taken there from Chicago for trial. A poster hanging in the police station of Green Bay was exhibited yesterday as the reason for the lack of surprise.

District Attorney Raymond Evarert of Brown county, Wis., and his assistant, Lee H. Cranston, had seen the poster before they went to Springfield, Ill., to ask Sovetsky's extradition. When Gov. Small denied their request, they sent this message to District Attorney John W. Walker of Estill county, Ky.:

"Same here."

Small's Position Explained.

The explanation given the Green Bay officials by one of Gov. Small's legal advisers was that Sovetsky was guilty of no crime in Wisconsin and that, if it were true, as charged, that Sovetsky sent a crew of burglars to Green Bay to cart off many thousands of dollars in merchandise, and if, as claimed, the burglars confessed and implicated Sovetsky, and if, as discovered, the stolen property was found in Sovetsky's possession, still Sovetsky was not answerable to Wisconsin justice, but only to Illinois.

The poster in the police station let them know they were not alone in their troubles. Sheriff P. A. Wolfinbarger of Irvine, Ky., had circulated the poster which asked the arrest of Walter L. Marks.

Reward Offer Excepts Illinois.

"We will pay a reward of $100 for his arrest in any state except Illinois," the accompanying notice explained. "Marks defrauded C. Marcum of $7,250 in stocks. He represented himself as the agent of Burns Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., and offered his services in the disposal of the stocks. He disappeared with them.

"He is a member of a ring of notorious swindlers and con men and has openly boasted he cannot be extradited from Illinois. Twice the governor of Illinois has refused to issue extradition papers to the state of Kentucky for this criminal."

Adam Weckler Held on Confidence Game Charges

Adam S. Weckler, 6946 North Ashland avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday on two charges of operating a confidence game in connection with the sale of Florida real estate which proved to be worthless. His bonds were fixed at $3,000 on each charge by Judge Howard Hayes in the South Clark street court.

DAVIS HEADS LIST OF WITNESSES MONDAY IN THE AIR INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Members of the President's aviation inquiry board put finishing touches today on preparations for the opening of public hearings on Monday. Such members as remained in Washington over the week end occupied their time in studying the record of previous investigations.

MAJ. GEN. PATRICK
[Copyright: U. & U.]

Among army officers who will accompany Acting Secretary of War Davis when he takes the witness stand on Monday will be Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service; Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, assistant chief of staff.

Mr. Davis will be on the witness stand all of Monday, it is expected. He intends to describe the army's air policy. The officers are expected to testify later following the testimony of Secretary Wilbur, who will appear on Tuesday.

INDIANA'S CHIEF MOPPER FEELS YELLOWLEY AX

Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley yesterday summarily dismissed Bert D. Morgan, acting deputy administrator for Indiana and former director for the state under the old organization plan.

A. R. Harris, former divisional chief in charge of general agents with headquarters in Chicago, and later divisional chief in San Francisco and Kansas City, was appointed to become permanent deputy, in charge at Indianapolis.

Harris at one time was in the internal revenue service in Indianapolis, and is said to have coöperated in work with Mr. Yellowley before the advent of the prohibition era. He is said to have had the backing of Senator James Watson in obtaining the Indiana post. Harris formerly lived in Jonesboro, Ind.

Henry Morthurst, until recently a field supervisor in the San Francisco prohibition office, yesterday was appointed acting assistant administrator in charge of enforcement. Mr. Morthurst took over the office of Charles W. Vursell, for three years enforcement chief in Illinois, who resigned last week despite the protests of many of the leading reform organizations. Mr. Vursell yesterday left for his home in Salem, Ill., to resume management of his two Marion county newspapers.

He announced before leaving that he thus far has refrained from entering the race for state treasurer, but that he expects to reach a decision after he has conferred with downstate political friends.

PROMOTE CITY AS WORLD CAPITAL FOR ELECTRICITY

Chicago as the capital of the world's electric industry is the vision toward which a new organization, the Electric association, the formation of which was announced yesterday, has dedicated its efforts.

Leaders in the new association include high officials of the great Chicago corporations and manufacturing plants engaged in the production and use of electricity and electric supplies. The movement is regarded as an achievement for advancement of a single industry, for it brings into cooperative alliance every branch of a highly developed and all important industry.

Plan Service Improvement.

Principal among the announced purposes of the association are the development and improvement of service rendered to the public by the industry, and the bringing into being of a closer coöperation and understanding among telephone, telegraph and electric railway companies, electricity supply companies, manufacturers, jobbers, engineers and all other agencies interested in the advance of electricity.

On the board of eighteen directors named to head the Electric association are officers of the public utility companies, such as the Commonwealth Edison company, the Rapid Transit company, and the Illinois Bell Telephone company, of electrical manufacturers, electrical supply jobbers, fixture manufacturers, contract dealers and others.

Names of Directors.

They will serve until the first annual election to be held by the association in December. Among the directors named are John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company; F. O. Hale, vice president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company; H. M. Lytle, vice president of the Rapid Transit company; N. G. Symonds, district manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company; H. L. Monroe, district manager of the General Electric company; George A. Hughes, president of the Edison Electric Appliance company; F. Lee Farmer, president of the Beardslee Chandelier company; N. G. Harvey, president of the Illinois Electric company; William McGuineas, president of the United Electric company, and others.

Other aims of the association were announced as follows:

To conduct suitable educational activities with a view to encouraging the public toward a more intelligent use of electricity and its appliances.

To inform the public as to the importance of the service rendered by electricity in the development of public welfare.

Seek Better Business Methods.

To encourage the practice of good business methods in the industry, and to raise the standards of electrical practice by so informing the public that it will appreciate and demand the best in materials, workmanship, engineering, and applications.

To endeavor to bring about improvements of method in all branches of the industry.

To give and conduct demonstrations, exhibitions, and displays.

To endeavor to obtain fair treatment for invested capital and to bring about a favorable attitude on the part of the public toward electrical development.

Study Public Matters.

To keep closely in touch with all public matters pertaining to electrical problems, that all business organizations, municipal, state, and federal authorities may know that this association is a responsible body and capable of handling intelligently subjects pertaining to electrical matters.

"Chicago now ranks high among the electrical centers of the world," said John F. Gilchrist, one of the directors. "The Commonwealth Edison company has a greater output of electrical power than any other station on earth. Other industries and factories in Chicago rank equally high. There is no reason why Chicago should not become the greatest center of electrical activity. With the formation of this new association it undoubtedly will."

OWN GUN KILLS HUNTER.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Glen Palin, 17, was the first victim of the fall hunting season in Berrien county. His own shotgun was fired while he was loading it.

CHURCHES ADMIT VOLSTEAD MOP CAN'T DRY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A campaign to intensify the teaching of temperance in churches will be undertaken by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America as a sequel to disclosures made in the prohibition report of the council's research department.

To show the character and purpose of the inquiry, the Rev. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council, tonight issued a statement in which he emphasized the need of a revival of church effort on behalf of a dry country.

"The report on the social study of the consequences of prohibition by the research department of the Federal Council of Churches comes from friends of prohibition," said the Rev. Mr. Cavert.

"With the coming of national prohibition there has been a tendency to rely on legislation alone and to relax educational efforts as to the evils of alcohol and the moral meaning of temperance. A survey of the methods of religious education now in use in the churches shows that training and habits of temperate living have made little or no progress in recent years. Such a situation, if long continued, would be fatal."

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

The Only Car That Owners Ever Said Is Better Than Advertised

This is not a condemnation of advertising.

But it is the truth—a conservative statement of facts.

Look back and you will recall how some new cars are like sky rockets. They are announced with a big noise, attract a lot of attention, but soon their "sensational newness" dies down. They quickly join the ranks of the commonplace.

Contrast the over-advertising of some cars with the solid success of the new Auburn 8. There has never been a success equal to it.

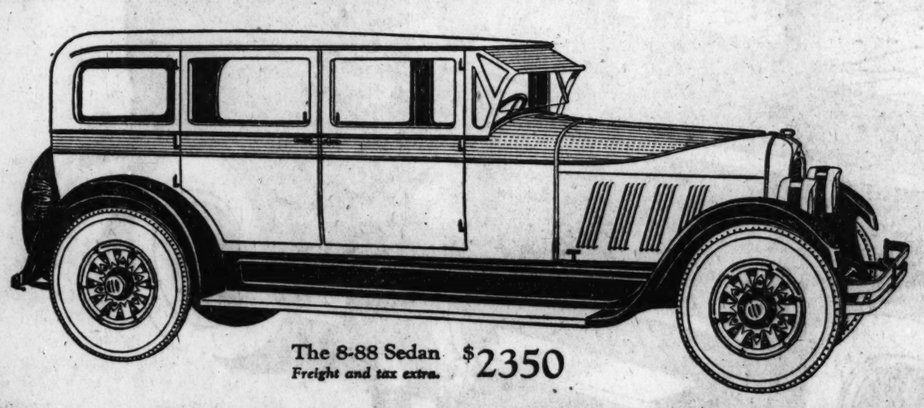
The world at large is just beginning to realize what a wonderfully advanced improvement was introduced by Auburn this year.

It is even more talked about today than when our startling announcement was first made of—"an original, daringly different, perfected Eight for less than many standard sixes".

It took time for people to learn what Auburn meant when it said, "here is the finest custom-type of car ever built in America; greater value for less commensurate cost than ever before offered."

Time has done its work. It has emphasized Auburn's value, added to its glory, proved all claims, demonstrated its super-performance and durability.

Months of service in comparison with all other cars has served to widen Auburn margin of leadership in value.



The 8-88 Sedan $2350
Freight and tax extra.

AUBURN 8 EIGHTY EIGHT

Any manufacturer with a dictionary can claim things, anything, for a new car.

But it is altogether a different thing to build those claims into the car.

And to have owners everywhere tell you that you under-stated your claims . . . that your car is better than advertised.

That is what Auburn 8 owners say. That is the unusual experience they enjoy.

That is the enviable position the Auburn 8 possesses today . . . unique in the entire automobile industry!

Extravagant claims—profuse use of adjectives and bombastic advertising could not have brought about this success.

One and only one thing is responsible, and that is the car itself.

To say it is a wonder—that its performance is marvelous—that it does things in a way no other car does—that it is an altogether different sensation to drive; to say those things is inadequate. They are mere word-claims.

It is road-proof you want before you invest your money in any car.

Auburn has it for you—the car will do its own selling.

We have never lost a single sale when this proposition was fairly accepted. "Compare the Auburn 8 with any car built—if you like, have an expert go over it point by point—then put it to any test, and if the Auburn does not sell itself, all by itself, we will not ask you to buy."

Any number of enthusiastic owners after having bought their Auburn Eights this way, tell us it is impossible to really appreciate the wonderful value, the great stamina, the unusual qualities of the car in every way until you have driven it for months and months continuously.

It grows upon you. You come home from an all day drive at sustained speed of fifty miles, and marvel that you are not "all in". You declare it is the most wonderful performer ever built, that it is the easiest to steer, safest to brake, the most comfortable to ride in and that you cannot find words to express your admiration for it.

Then, when you think you have seen it at its utmost best, comes another occassion; a longer drive at harder speed; or miles at a snail's pace in traffic; or deep sand and steep hills, and you beat your own record for performance. It is then and only then that you understand what it is the Auburn 8 owner enjoys, that which no other car owner enjoys.

It is then you will understand why the Auburn 8 is said to be the only car ever built that is better than advertised.

8-88 Sedan $2350; 8-88 Wanderer $2400; 8-88 Brougham $2250; 8-88 Touring $1995; 8-88 Sport Roadster $1975. 6-66 Sedan $1795; 6-66 Wanderer $1845; 6-66 Brougham $1595; 6-66 Touring $1395; 6-66 Sport Roadster $1495. Freight and tax extra.

Chicago was Ready

The Automatic Float Valve with which each ROUND OAK Furnace is equipped keeps the same volume of water constantly in the ROUND OAK Humidifier, thus automatically and unfailingly moistening the air of the home.

Again the public has shown how it builds the business it believes in! Proof is here, in this new Chicago Home of ROUND OAK Sales and Service at 711 South Wells Street.

This entire building, six floors and basement, is now needed to take care of the great and ever-increasing demand for "ROUND OAK" Moist Air Heating. In addition, there are seven other Chicago stores in home neighborhoods. All built up in eight months! Proof that Chicago heartily joins in the national good will created by 54 years of "ROUND OAK" successful experience in home heating.

Everybody Wants "ROUND OAK"

It looks as if everybody wants a "ROUND OAK" Furnace with "ROUND OAK" installation. Once a home owner gets the facts and learns what "ROUND OAK" has done for millions of other homes all over the land—he will insist on having the comfort, health and happiness which only "ROUND OAK" installation brings.

ONLY in "ROUND OAK" can he be sure that the air of his home is not simply the right degree of warmth, but the right kind, moist and healthful. Only in a "ROUND OAK" Furnace will he find that Automatic Float Valve—the wonderful device which keeps the same volume of water constantly in the "ROUND OAK" Humidifier, thus automatically and unfailingly moistening the air.

Only in the "ROUND OAK" Furnace will he find the vital safety feature of hand-fitted and bolted joints which always stay air-tight and gas-tight. Every "ROUND OAK" Furnace is completely assembled and taken apart again before it leaves the factory. This insures air-tight joints—a feature which is especially important when you install an oil burner.

Guaranteed Installation

When you purchase a "ROUND OAK" Warm Air Heating System, we direct its installation to fit the actual conditions of your home, and if our directions are followed as given, we assume all responsibility for satisfactory service with our guarantee on both the furnace and on the entire installation.

You secure not only a wonderful furnace, but the most practical plan of installation for your building, with a guarantee of service backed by a four million dollar company.

Ideally Adapted for Burning Oil

Some day you will want an oil burner. When you are ready, you can install one in your "ROUND OAK" Furnace and be sure of getting the best results regardless of the make of burner used. For oil heating "ROUND OAK" Furnaces are supreme. In no other warm air furnace can you find their equal in extra large heating surfaces and long fire travel, which mean so much in economical heating with any fuel, especially oil.

Special Offer

Write, telephone or call on your nearest "ROUND OAK" Store or the "ROUND OAK" Distributor in your city and let him tell you about our special purchase plan. Time payments gladly arranged.

Our new book, "Health Humidity," should be read by every home owner. We shall be glad to mail you a copy upon request.

SEES CRUCIFIXION OF LIBERTIES BY HAND OF BIGOTRY

Malone Answers Bryan's Posthumous Speech.

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Dudley Field Malone, of counsel for John T. Scopes in the Tennessee evolution trial, in an address today before the national convention of laymen of the Unitarian church of America, replied to the last speech of William Jennings Bryan, published after his death.

He asserted that the psychology of fear which crucified Jesus, banished Galileo, murdered Bruno, and burned Joan of Arc—the fear of political theology to test its power by the truth—today again animates a movement which is a menace to the internal peace of our country."

Science in Danger.

"In a scientific age," he said, "we face once more the attempt to test the truths of science by the judgments of the prophets who believed the earth was flat, and to limit knowledge to the ignorance and the pronouncement of a legislative majority."

He urged clergy and laymen of progressive Christianity and enlightened people to band together for academic and religious freedom. "Be vigilant and warn our countrymen their shrines are in danger," he said.

Of Mr. Bryan's death, Mr. Malone said:

"In common with all decent citizens, I lament the abrupt tragedy of his going. And, like all men, his motives were mixed. It is always wise for a man to attribute no less worthy motives to an opponent than are his own. And for the motives of good and beauty in his life Mr. Bryan will be held in warm affection by his countrymen.

"If death had come to any of John Scopes' defenders, might there not have been those to say that our going was an act of God? But, lacking that insight into the ways of the Almighty claimed exclusively by the literalists, I know only that Mr. Bryan's death removed the ablest leader from the most sinister movement in the country.

"Mr. Bryan is dead—but the error of his last plea, the danger of good will among our citizens of all creeds, and the threat of combination between church and state must be bravely met by men and women who value religious and academic freedom.

"The issue at Dayton," Mr. Malone said, "was not fundamentalism against modernism; it was not faith against agnosticism; it was not science against religion. The issue was and is this: Shall the constitutional guaranty of religious freedom and complete separation of church and state inspired by Jefferson, fought for by Madison, and written into fundamental law, be violated or narrowed by any creed thinking to write its scheme of salvation into law, or by any legislative majority seeking the votes of a literalist constituency?

"There was the same conflict of opinion and philosophy at Dayton," he went on, "as existed between those who advocated and those who opposed the principle of religious freedom at the beginning of the republic."

Not Fundamentalist Law.

The Tennessee law was not dictated by the fundamentalists, Mr. Malone said, "for there are millions of fundamentalists of all creeds who do not believe in a literal interpretation of the Old Testament."

"This law," he charged, "is the result of a combination of creed and politics led by the most ignorant of the clergy and in combination with narrow partisans who have more fear of votes than of God."

"Shall we judge the value of evolution," he asked, "by the effect it may have had on the mind of a Loeb or Leopold, tainted with insanity, or shall we judge the value of evolution by the stimulus it has given to scientists, teacher, and countless thousands of normal students who have been inspired to research and study, in their struggle to give a deeper meaning to life and immortality?

"The leaders of this movement," he said, "are not trying to protect the faith of the young; they are trying to impose by law their peculiar religious faith upon our system of education.

"Faith comes from within and cannot be imposed from without by creed or law. The literalists are wrong—we would not tear the stars from the skies nor faith from the hearts of the young. . . . We would speak our faith through the old and existing creeds, but in the terms of this age made glorious by the works of science.

"Theories change and scientists gladly change their views to meet the growing knowledge. Science changes to meet the facts of constantly revealing truth."

MOST SHAPELY LEG CONTEST NOW HOLDS TURKEY'S INTEREST

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The modernisation of Turkish femininity proceeds apace. The movement to discard the ancient Moslem veil seems to be merely a beginning and now Constantinople has had a contest to determine the owner of the most beautiful pair of legs in the city of the Golden Horn.

However, the innovation, promoted by a sports club at Taxim Garden, was so startling that only four girls entered. The winner, Enisseh Hanoum, is a student at the American college.

A less startling feature of the affair was a modern dancing contest in which many Turkish women participated. In Constantinople Moslem women have been dancing for two years, despite adverse criticisms at first, which later died out. In the capital, Angora, however, no Turkish woman has yet danced in public.

WILCOX OUT OF WISCONSIN RACE FOR U. S. SENATE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Roy P. Wilcox, defeated in the primary election for United States senatorial nomination on the Republican ticket, but eligible for the final race, Sept. 29, by virtue of having registered as an independent, today withdrew from the race.

Wilcox's withdrawal leaves Robert M. La Follette Jr., Republican nominee; Edward F. Dithmar, nominal Republican, running as an independent; William George Bruce, Democrat, who failed to receive the necessary five per cent of the total vote cast at the last election, and is on the ticket as an independent; John W. Work, Socialist nominee, and George Bauman, Socialist-Labor nominee, still in the race.

In a statement Mr. Wilcox recounted his activities during the primary campaign; told of conferences with political leaders; a failure on the part of Senators Lenroot and Butler [Rep., Mass.] to support him, and their judgment that Dithmar offered the best chance to beat La Follette.

OPERA STAR WILL SING AT DINNER FOR C. H. STODDART

Because her first public recital in Chicago occurred under the auspices of the Agate club, of which Charles H. Stoddart was founder and first president, Miss Margery Maxwell of the Chicago Civic Opera company and the Ravinia Opera company is canceling part of an eastern tour to sing at the Stoddart "golden jubilee" dinner at the Blackstone hotel tomorrow evening.

BERLIN TO OUST EX-CHICAGOAN ON KLAN CHARGE

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Gotthard Strohschein, a German born American, charged with an attempt to organize the "Knights of the Fiery Cross," similar to the American Ku Klux Klan, will be deported. The same fate awaits Otto Strohschein, father of Gotthard, if it should be proven that he also is an American citizen. Both men formerly lived in Chicago. Others implicated in te movement have been released pending further investigation.

The Strohscheins were brought to Berlin Sept. 11 from Silesia. Both denied that they had any connection with the "Knights of the Fiery Cross" organization, but the police asserted that documents proved that they had received funds for that purpose from Illinois. The two men in America were Lutheran ministers, but they posed in German as airplane technicians.

KEWANEE

The reliable foe of Chills

LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST! That's the way to rent a flat. Look for the Kewanee All-Steel Firebox Boiler. If you don't find it, you can't be sure you are going to be warm all Winter. And if you are not going to be warm, the flat will be a nightmare instead of a pleasant dream.

Your life depends on heat for at least six months of the year. It would be foolish, wouldn't it, to pay fancy rents, then shiver and shake and swear half the time? That isn't Life. It's a whole lot more like death. That's imitating the Eskimos, and who wants to be an Eskimo?

The many thousands who have followed our advice and rented flats because they were heated by Kewanee Boilers, have never cared a picayune how cold old Winter was. They had plenty of heat and steady heat. There were no cracks or leaks to stop the flow of heat. Matter of fact, the all-steel Kewanee Boiler never met Mr. Crack or Mr. Leak.

Location is all right—arrangement of rooms is fine—interior finish is a factor, of course—but the big thing in flat life is the heating boiler—the Kewanee All-Steel Smokeless Firebox Boiler. If you find it, go ahead and sign. If you don't, then you'd better move on.

Ask The Old Man Behind the Boiler why the finest flat and apartment houses in America use the Kewanee Boiler. His answer will save you lots of grief.

ESSEX COACH

Why Consider a Lesser Car?—It Has Beauty—Performance—Super-Six Smoothness—Economy and Endurance

This is the greatest Essex value in history. It is the finest Essex ever built. The price is the lowest at which Essex ever sold. The largest production of 6-cylinder cars in the world, giving economies in purchase of materials, manufacture and distribution exclusive to that position, make this value possible alone to Hudson-Essex.

The new low price places it within the reach of all, and it has the brilliant performance, reliability, riding ease and fine appearance for which Essex is famous. No wonder everyone is saying these things about Essex.

Homes have changed more than people

LONG before history, a man came out of his cave and built the first rude hut.

He was a leader. He used his brain to get a better place to live.

His neighbors watched from their caves, of course. Some of them grunted; and kept on living in caves. But the ones with most sense were quick to build huts for themselves.

In recent years Celotex Insulating Lumber has made it practical to build homes that really keep out heat and cold.

This improvement has been recognized by leading architects and builders as a great step forward in home building. But some will go on building as before.

Homes have changed far more than people since then.

Two kinds of people Two kinds of homes

In nearly every community there have been leaders quick to see and make use of this improvement in home comfort.

And everywhere a certain class of neighbors have accepted their discovery.

Over 60,000 families now enjoy a degree of living comfort not to be found in ordinary homes.

They are not all wealthy. Anyone who builds can use Celotex Insulating Lumber. Because it adds nothing to building cost.

It is not a matter of money. It is simply that some people see and hear and think. Others do not.

Every home tells the story of its owner.

The new standard of living

Your own home, built with Celotex, will give you a wholly new idea of luxurious home comfort. For this Celotex house will keep snug and warm on the bitterest winter days—refreshingly cool through a sweltering summer.

There, your children's health will be guarded from cold-giving draughts and sudden temperature changes.

Always, this Celotex home will be quiet; restful. Disturbing noises will be subdued.

It will be a home whose atmosphere of solid comfort will be the envy of all who enter.

Living in this Celotex home, you will have more money to spend on the luxuries you want—for it will cost much less for upkeep than an ordinary home.

You will have a sounder investment: a house that will be stronger, last longer, have a higher resale value.

Get all the facts

These are living improvements so vital that every progressive person will demand the facts before building or buying a home. They make the ordinary house as out-of-date as one without electricity, modern plumbing or a central heating plant.

Ask your architect or contractor or lumber dealer to tell you more about Celotex. All lumber dealers can supply it. Everywhere leaders in these lines advise its use.

If you are going to buy a home already built, get Celotex construction, if you possibly can. Some day you may want to sell or rent it and then you will find that the house that is more comfortable and more economical of fuel is a better investment.

And by all means send for the Celotex Building Book. Even if you are not thinking of building soon, you will be interested in this great advance in building history. Just use the coupon below.

Note this actual test. A Celotex box is divided in half by a layer of Celotex. The upper half is heated by an electric lamp.

The lower half is 106° cooler.

In the roof and walls of a house, Celotex keeps heat in during the winter, out in summer.

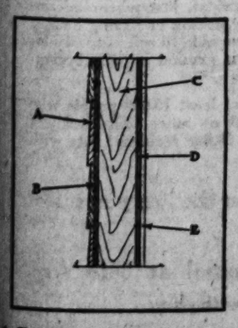
Comfort with fuel-saving at no extra building cost

Celotex is Lumber—the only Insulating Lumber. It is the one material that combines higher insulating value with greater structural strength, and is not an extra item in the buildings.

A home built with it costs no more than an ordinary house; because Celotex replaces five other building materials.

1. It replaces wood lumber as sheathing, giving greater structural strength.
2. Plaster is applied directly to the surface of Celotex, forming a stronger wall than lath and plaster.
3. Celotex replaces building paper, giving better protection against wind and moisture.
4. It replaces deadening felt, giving a restful quiet.
5. Wherever used, Celotex replaces any extra insulation or heat-stopping material.

A smaller, less expensive furnace, fewer radiators, will be required to heat a Celotex house. Year after year, your fuel bills will be cut by one-third.



A. Clapboards, brick or stucco
B. Celotex Insulating Lumber
C. Sheathing, or framework
D. Celotex Insulating Lumber
E. Plaster

Cross-section showing application of Celotex Insulating Lumber (B) in outside walls as sheathing, where it replaces wood lumber and building paper, and (D) on inside walls, where plaster is applied directly to its surface.

Celotex is applied directly to studding in place of wood sheathing.

A wall so sheathed is many times stronger than one sheathed with wood lumber. And it is a wall that effectively keeps out heat and cold.

OLD FIGHT NEAR ON WHOSE TAXES SHOULD BE CUT

Mellon, Congress Again Draw Battle Lines.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—For the third time in as many postwar revenue law revisions a clash between congress and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is in prospect over the aggregate amount of tax reduction.

Estimates which have been prepared by the treasury for the house ways and means committee, which commences hearings Oct. 19, one month from today, show that the various proposals for tax cuts or repeals represent total reductions far in excess of prospective surplus revenues.

With a surplus of approximately $300,000,000 in sight for the present fiscal year, congress will be confronted with requests for tax cuts amounting to upwards of $900,000,000.

Treasury's Principal Proposals.

Here are the principal proposals, with estimates as to the effect on revenue:

Reduction in surtaxes, $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.
Reduction in normal taxes, $100,000,000.
Repeal of estate taxes, $100,000,000.
Repeal of gift taxes, $7,000,000.
Reduction in corporation earnings tax, $135,000,000.
Repeal of capital stock tax, $90,000,000, and Repeal of various excise and miscellaneous taxes, $200,000,000.

In the approaching revision Secretary Mellon is expected to advise congress that the aggregate of tax reduction should not greatly exceed $250,000,000. Such a cut, he will hold, will be sufficient to stimulate business. A larger reduction might mean a deficit.

Views Differ Widely.

Influential Republicans in congress have talked of tax cuts of from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000. The Democrats have suggested that by a new policy respecting public debt retirement and the use of money received from foreign nations, the total tax cut could be stretched to $600,000,000 or $800,000,000.

Advance indications are that the bill as it goes to the President will reduce taxes by $350,000,000, or $100,000,000 more than considered wise by the treasury.

Secretary Mellon, it is believed, will advise congress not to make extensive reductions in the remaining excise and miscellaneous taxes. He will seek, first, a reduction in surtaxes on individual incomes, then repeal of the estate tax, repeal of the gift tax, and then possibly a slight cut in normal tax and elimination or reduction of a very few excise taxes. He will not favor any reduction in the tax on corporation earnings or the repeal of the capital stock tax.

Estimating Effect of Cuts.

The new treasury estimates as to the effect of the various proposals have not been made public officially. It is understood they show that a reduction in the maximum surtax from 46 per cent to 20 per cent will mean a loss in revenue of from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000, dependent upon how the brackets are arranged. The lowest surtax of 1 per cent now starts at $10,000. It is figured that the 1 per cent rate could start as high as $12,000, or possibly higher, and the maximum rate be cut to 20 per cent without losing more than $100,000,000. In view of pressure for other tax cuts, the surtax brackets, it is expected, will be so arranged as not to cause a loss of more than this amount.

Under the treasury plan a loss of $100,000,000 on the surtaxes coupled with a loss of upwards of $110,000,000 from the repeal of the estate and gift taxes would leave only $40,000,000 for reductions in normal taxes and excise taxes.

It is believed to be fairly certain that congress will refuse to repeal either the estate tax or the gift tax but will scale all the maximum rates to a common level. The maximum on surtaxes, estate taxes and gift taxes now is 40 per cent. The suggestion of some influential Republican congressmen is that all be cut to a maximum of 20 per cent.

Treasury experts, it is understood, are prepared to inform congress that the maximum estate and gift tix rates can be reduced to 20 per cent without causing any loss in revenue whatever.

A Change for Everybody.

For political reasons it is regarded certain that congress will reduce normal rates as well as surtaxes in order that tax payers all along the line may benefit. President Coolidge has indicated that he favors a cut in normal taxes. This cut, it is regarded as likely, will be from present rates of two, four and six per cent to one, three and five per cent.

If this normal tax cut is made the treasury is expected to insist upon the repeal of the provision of the 1924 act which gives a special reduction of 25 per cent on earned income.

This provision, under which all income up to $5,000 is regarded as earned income, with the special preference extending to income from salaries and wages up to $10,000, has not proved entirely equitable and might as well be repealed, according to the treasury. In any event too great a reduction would be given the small taxpayers, in the opinion of treasury officials, if this were retained and the two per cent normal tax cut to one per cent.

It is estimated that the reduction in normal taxes from two, four, and six per cent to one, three, and five per cent, offset by the repeal of the earned income provision, would mean a loss in revenue of not more than $100,000,000.

Probable Committee Action.

Indications are that the house ways and means committee will start off by reducing surtaxes, estate and gift taxes to maximums of 20 per cent and then cut normal taxes in such a way that the aggregate loss in revenue from all these items will be approximately $200,000,000. This would be a basis of $100,000,000 loss for surtaxes, $100,000,000 for normal taxes, and little or no loss on estate or gift taxes.

The committee then will have a margin of $50,000,000, $100,000,000, or $150,000,000 for other tax reductions, dependent upon whether a limit of $250,000,000, $300,000,000, or $350,000,000 is fixed for the total cut.

There is a good deal of sentiment for a cut in the present flat tax on corporation earnings from 12½ per cent to 10 per cent. The treasury, however, holds that 12½ per cent is not excessive in comparison with the graduated normal and surtax rates paid by an unincorporated business. For this reason there may be no change in the present corporation tax rate. To cut it from 12½ per cent to 10 per cent, it is estimated, would reduce revenue approximately $185,000,000, or considerably more than could be taken care of under the prospective surplus.

Tackling the Excise Tax.

There will be talk again at this session of repealing the capital stock tax but inasmuch as it yielded $90,002,594 in the last fiscal year and corporations have become accustomed to it the treasury will urge its retention.

The automobile industry is preparing to bombard congress with petitions for repeal of excise taxes. The tax on automobiles and motorcycles yielded $94,141,549 in the last fiscal year, while that on automobile trucks and wagons brought in $7,807,811 and that on tires, parts, and accessories $22,737,384.

Repeal of the 2½ per cent tax on tires, parts, and accessories is quite likely to be approved by the treasury for administrative reasons, but to repeal the taxes on automobiles and trucks would cut off more than $100,000,000 which is easily collected and could not be spared if relief were to be given to other industries affected by excise taxes.

Theatrical interests again will seek the repeal of the 10 per cent admissions tax. Congress in 1924 eliminated the tax on admissions below 50 cents, which caused a revenue decrease of $46,804,714. If the tax is repealed entirely it will mean a loss of approximately $30,000,000.

ILLINOIS UNION LABOR FOR STATE REAPPORTIONING

8 Hr. Day for Women Also Indorsed.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—At its closing session here today the convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor favored reapportioning the state, a procedure that would elect representatives and senators on a population basis and not on the number of acres in each particular district.

Soderstrom for Change.

Representative R. G. Soderstrom of Streator, who is secretary of the state federation's legislative committee, spoke on the plan.

"It is fundamentally wrong," he said, "to tolerate a condition that deprives approximately half the citizens of Illinois of their right of suffrage, or at least reduces the value or effect of their suffrage in such a manner as to collectively deprive millions of them of their vote, representing the organized wage earners of the state who largely live in the industrial centers.

Workers Are Affected.

Mr. Soderstrom said the workers are perhaps more vitally concerned in this matter than any other group of the people of our state, because it is largely the workers in these industries, organized as well as unorganized, that are being deprived of those rights.

The legislative committee concurred in a resolution advocating an eight-hour work day for women workers in factories, offices, and domestic employment.

Consolidation of Chicago's thirteen park systems was said to be a local affair, and a resolution recommending that plan was rejected.

1→ We are the largest and foremost builders of permanent Garages in Chicago.
2→ We employ a large organization of men who do nothing but construct BEST BUILT Garages. They know how.
3→ We furnish our own materials from our own yards. We do not have to buy from a retail lumber yard. This insures you positive protection against mechanics' liens.
4→ No middleman is employed. You deal direct with us—the Builders—and you get the full benefit of our tremendous wholesale buying power.
5→ Every BEST BUILT Garage rests upon the strongest possible foundations. Only white pine trim is used; the frames, siding, floors—everything of the best construction, especially built to withstand hard usage.
6→ Hardware of our own design, embodying exclusive features, is used in every BEST BUILT Garage.
7→ Every BEST BUILT Garage is topped with a roof of slate covered asphalt shingles that are absolutely waterproof.
8→ BEST BUILT Garages are built to your order—right on your premises. They are not ready-cut, or portable, or sectional—but permanent.
9→ We guarantee satisfaction, and we back this guarantee by ample financial resources earned through 14 years of success in this business.
10→ BEST BUILT Garages are built better. We invite comparison, piece by piece. For all around good quality, beautiful appearance and general utility BEST BUILT Garages are everything their name implies—BEST BUILT Splendid Transportation Here Today!

This property is only 15 minutes' walk from fast express service of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway—42 trains daily, 22 minutes to the loop, fare 11 cents. The proposed extension of the Logan Square Branch of the Metropolitan Elevated will run within a few blocks of this property. Lawrence Avenue cars now run within a short distance.

Improvements Here Today!

No waiting for improvements to be put in some time in the future. We have the city water, sewer and sidewalks here today. 43 lots with sewer, city water and cement sidewalks in and paid for are included in this sale.

Many homes have already been built. A new community church was recently dedicated. All indications are for a rapid and logical development of this subdivision into one of the finest neighborhoods in all Chicago. With its location only 10 miles from the loop, nothing can stop its progress—Albany Park, Portgage Park and now Foster Avenue Addition!

To the Real Estate Shopper!

We welcome the real estate shopper, as we can nearly always sell him. The easiest man in the world today for us to sell in this subdivision is one who has been shopping around investigating other properties now on the market—one who really knows values and can compare the values we offer with other properties on the market.

To Fathers and Mothers!

To Fathers and Mothers—you who are ripe in years and experience—here's a suggestion: Make the down payment on one of these lots for your son or daughter—let them make the monthly payment—it will establish the habit of saving regular amounts each month for a definite purpose.

Important Notice!

This is your last chance to buy property at rock bottom prices, just when Chicago is in the midst of the greatest building boom in history. Only by reason of having bought this subdivision in 1918, before the building boom started, are we able to sell property located like this at such extremely low prices. Every foot of this ground is daily becoming more valuable.

Out of the 3,000,000 people in Chicago, no doubt there are at least 10,000 people who would be glad to buy one or more of these lots. Perhaps 1,000 or more will read and respond to this advertisement. Choice corners will go first. Other residence lots with fine old oaks and elms will go quickly.

PRESIDENT REA OF PENNSY QUITS OCT. 1, AGED 70

Will Devote Rest of Life to His Farming.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, who will reach the age of 70 Monday and retire under the regulations of the company on Oct. 1, will devote himself to farming as a vocation and the study of old English silver gamesmanship as a hobby, it was announced by the railroad today.

SAMUEL REA.

"I have played one game of golf each year for the last five years," said Mr. Rea, "so as to be ready to meet John D. Rockefeller if I am challenged, but I expect he has become so expert as to beat me easily. My family will admit, I think, that as a consumer of tobacco I am entitled to high rank and as to wood chopping I have done my share in the last ten years."

Fifty-four Years in Service.

Mr. Rea's railroad career covers fifty-four years. He is the first president of the Pennsylvania to reach the age of 70 in its active service, and his gradual promotion from the position of rodman to the presidency covers a period of exceptional development and emergencies in the railroad industry.

His business experience embraces many fields, including construction work, merchandising, accounting and finance, and for a time he was a member of the New York stock exchange and a partner in the firm of Rea Bros. & Co., bankers and brokers in Pittsburgh.

"No man should ask for more than employment," was one of his maxims; "when that is given, it is up to him to do the rest."

Will Still Serve Firm.

Retirement from the Pennsylvania presidency will not cut Mr. Rea from his interest in the property. He will remain as a director, and his vast knowledge and experience will be available at the frequent councils of the directors.

Mr. Rea's successor has not been elected, but railway officials assert that Gen. William Wallace Atterbury, vice president of the company, probably will be chosen.

CHICAGO BOY IS HELD IN FATAL ELGIN SHOOTING

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Orville Cuyler, aged 17, is being held at the West Dundee jail pending an inquest into the fatal shooting of Clement Benneweight, 17, on the George Holcomb farm near here early this morning. Both boys are from Chicago, the latter an orphan.

Cuyler said he was engaged at target practice when the shooting took place. He first denied knowing that Benneweight had been struck but later admitted he saw the youth fall. Benneweight died on the way to the hospital at Elgin.

Celebrate 77th Birthday of Railway Locomotive

The 77th anniversary of the first run out of Chicago of the locomotive called the "Pioneer" was celebrated at a gathering of railway men at West Chicago yesterday. The engine is still in such good shape that it can operate under its own power, Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, said.

The Romance of FLORIDA

A DREAM COME TRUE—that in a word is the Romance of Florida! What great impelling motive prompted those intrepid Spanish cavaliers to leave behind them, almost 400 years ago, the shores of their native land, their comforts, exalted court attachments, families, friends—to brave the untold dangers of unknown waters and conquer in the name of their King and Queen what today is Florida?

Wealth? Riches? Youth? Empire?

Yes—these were the visions of those fearless courtiers—and what price was paid for the glory they never knew! Death at the hands of hostile Indians—illness—disease—starvation—failure! Such was their lot—and yet hardly failure, for the disappointments of 400 years ago have today materialized into one of the most astounding realizations of all time.

Romance? The history of Florida is filled with it.

If wealth were the quest in Florida four centuries back, today a wealth untold awaits you in Florida's acres of fertile soil. If riches urged our ancestors onward, today their descendants are finding it in fortunes made over night. The Fountain of Youth flows incessantly in Florida's inimitable climate—FLORIDA, your ultimate Haven of Fortune, Happiness and Health.

TILDEN WINS SIXTH STRAIGHT NET TITLE

TRIBUNE ANNOUNCES DRIVING CONTEST FOR GOLFERS

PRIZES OFFERED BOTH FOR PROS AND AMATEURS

Every Adult Male in City Invited.

BY MORROW KRUM.

Be that every golfer may struggle with that vexing problem—how far can a golf ball be driven—THE TRIBUNE announces a contest for next Sunday on a specially prepared driving course at the north end of Lincoln park.

There are no limits to the eligibility list. Any adult male golfer who owns a driver or can borrow one may compete if he enters his name in advance. Professionals and amateurs have been divided into two classes that will give equality of opportunity for each.

One event will be for professionals. It will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning and will end about 11:30 o'clock. For the pro who makes the best score a prize of $200 is offered, with a second prize of $50 and a third of $25.

Silver Cup for Amateurs.

The second event will be for amateurs. First prize for this contest will be a handsome silver cup and the runner-up will receive a silver medal. This contest will start at noon.

Both classes will have the same rules. Each contestant will have three strokes from the tee and in making the awards both accuracy and distance will count. Each shot will be graded and the player in each class with the highest average will be declared the winner.

Harry Klatzco, superintendent of Lincoln park, has prepared the course at the foot of Waveland avenue, near the lake, and within two hundred yards of Sheridan road. Every golf fan in Chicago is invited to witness the contests. Everything will be free. A turf tee and a fairway equal to any in Chicago are ready for the tests. Special police will be on hand to prevent accidents.

Entries Close Saturday.

All that is necessary to enter is a letter to the golf editor of THE TRIBUNE, stating the writer's intention to compete. This letter must reach The Tribune Tower before noon on Saturday. There is no entry fee. The contestant will not have to furnish his own golf balls unless he so desires.

Stories regarding the length of drive of this player or that or personal claims of prowess off the tee are prevalent around every nineteenth hole. An 18 year old boy is reported to have made a 453 yard drive on one of the local courses this summer. The contest presents an opportunity for those who think they can do better.

BE SURE TO MAIL YOUR ENTRY LETTERS EARLY.

HELEN FILKEY, PENALIZED YARD, WINS HURDLES

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Running from one yard behind scratch because of a penalty, Miss Helen Filkey of Chicago today came within two-fifths of a second of the world's record for the 80 yard hurdles race in winning this test at the Graphic's women's handicap track and field meet today, held in Lewis open stadium. The Chicago miss sped to victory in nine seconds. Trailing Miss Filkey by a yard was Miss Hazel Kirk, Prudential A. A., holder of the indoor and outdoor hurdling records. A scant margin back of Miss Kirk was Miss Nellie Todd, Chicago.

TEARNEY OFFERS RESIGNATION TO WESTERN LEAGUE

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 19.—(AP)—President A. R. Tearney of the Western league late today asked that organization to relieve him of his duties at the end of the present season. It was indicated his resignation would be accepted at a meeting here tomorrow.

Pittsburgh Needs 4 Games, Senators 6 to Clinch Flags

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Pittsburgh now is leading the Giants by one game. If the Giants should win all of their remaining twelve games, the Pirates would have to win only four of their remaining ten in order to clinch the pennant. The final standing in that case would be:

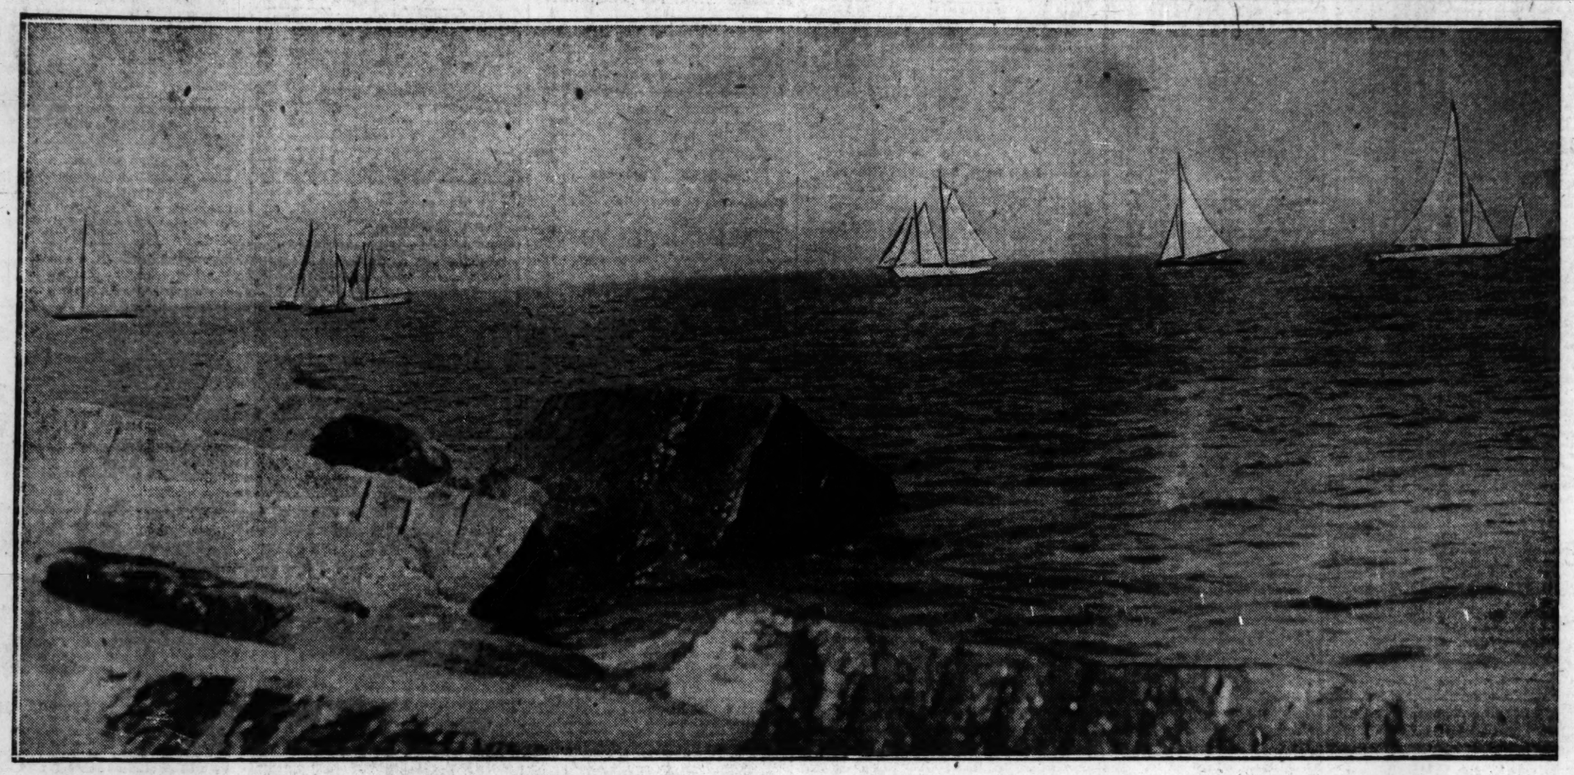
Pittsburgh	94	60	.610
New York	93	61	.607

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Washington is in the lead, seven and a half games ahead of Philadelphia. The Athletics should win all of their remaining twelve games, the Senators would have to win six of their remaining thirteen games in order to win the pennant. The standing in that case would be:

Washington	97	57	.630
Philadelphia	96	58	.623

ANCONA AND NANCY WINNERS IN CHICAGO YACHT CLUB RACE



Seventeen tiny ships started in the Chicago Yacht club's class race off Belmont harbor yesterday. Samuel Dauchy was the winning skipper in the R class competition, sailing his Nancy to a victory in 2:06:24. In the Pup class, Ancona finished twenty seconds ahead of Red Jacket to win in the fast time of 1:22:38. The race was one of the final events of the fast waning local yachting season. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ancona and Nancy Race Winners

Sailing in a fresh southeast breeze, Nancy, piloted by Sam Dauchy, won the R class race, and Ancona, owned and sailed by Kenneth Kraft, took the pup event in the Chicago Yacht club class program held over the triangular course off Belmont harbor yesterday afternoon.

Nancy won its race in 2:06:24, beating a field of eight sloops in a 13 mile sail, while Ancona registered its triumph over a field of nine in a race of about six nautical miles, in 1:22:38. Gossoon finished second in the R event. Red Jacket took second in the pup race.

Both races were close. Nancy was easily the best of the R boats, although pushed by Tomboy, which was forced from the race because of a broken spreader. Tomboy dropped out at the first buoy.

Active in the pup race also retired at the third mile because of the breaking of the fore-stay.

INTRUDER WINS CUP

Skippered by Jim O'Rourke and sailed by a crew composed of Bill Whalen, Hal Redmon, and Skell Miller, Intruder, a Q class sloop owned jointly by James G., John P., and Edward T. O'Rourke of the Jackson Park Yacht club, yesterday won the Bennett cup, a trophy which has been in annual competition at the South Shore Yacht club for seventeen years.

Edith II., a thirty foot sloop sailed by its owner, Bert Williamson, finished second, while Quest, a twenty-five foot yawl, the other entrant, did not finish. The victor's time for the nine mile triangular sail was 1:17:16, while Edith II., finished in 1:26:07.

The lake was smooth with a brisk southwest breeze off shore. The craft got away to a good start and remained on even terms until the first buoy was reached, when Intruder, making an excellent turn into the breeze, spread its sails, took the lead and was never headed.

MORDECAI BROWN AGAIN SHINES IN UNIFORM OF CUBS

Mordecai Brown, famous three fingered hurler of the Cubs in the days of Frank Chance, mingled with the young Cubs of today at the north side yesterday. Although in another year Brownie will reach the half century mark in age, he pitched to the Cubs in batting practice with all his old time cunning and much of his old time speed. Afterwards he sat on the bench watching the battle and wishing he could take a hand in it. Brown works for an oil company at Lawrenceville, Ill.

Strategy of Leaders to Be Big Factor in World Series

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Never before has a world's series been played like the approaching one between Washington and Pittsburgh. In this are two teams, one built of seasoned, tried, and aged timber, a bit worn in spots, it is true, and warped a little, but still good, and one built of timber cut, seasoned, and fashioned for the use of that particular team.

Pittsburgh's team, save for a few men, is composed of players selected, developed and educated for that team alone. The Washington outfit is an assembled crowd, cunningly selected with just enough new, fresh blood to leaven it, and led by a youngster of great natural ability as a leader, trained to play the game according to its best traditions.

Generalship to Count.

Brain work will count a great deal in the coming series, more than ever before. I do not mean the brain work of actual play, but the generalship, the selection of pitchers, the use of certain players for certain duties.

This is the first time in modern baseball that we have a squad of real baseball men opposing another of the same type. The box office has little to do with the coming world's series. It is between real baseball men. Barney Dreyfuss, Fred Clarke, and Billy McKechnie matched against the cunning of the old fox, Clark Griffith, and the personal leadership of Stanley Harris.

In this respect Washington has a considerable advantage in that Harris will be there on the field, in close contact with his men and leading by personal example, while the Pittsburgh brain squad must operate from the bench. It will grind Fred Clarke who, when on the field was one of the greatest of active leaders, to direct vicariously when his personality would count so heavily.

Dreyfuss Wise in Baseball.

Barney Dreyfuss, among the owners, is the wisest of ball men, excepting perhaps Comiskey. Oddly enough, Barney never played the game. Yet he knows it through long and deep study. He broke into it at Louisville many years ago when he had an interest in a little store and had to work hard for a salary, most of which went to support a losing team. He could see it play only on Sundays. The rest of the week he worked, and earned money to pay players.

Clark Griffith, the opposing owner, is one of the most studious of baseball men, the "Old Fox" they called him when he was a pitcher. His greatest skill is in selection of players, and in getting the type of men he wants.

Never has Griffith shown his ability to construct a team and to patch up weak spots better than he did this last season. His team was, on paper strength, lucky to get into the first division. There were at least four teams as strong or stronger than his in the American league—yet it won its second pennant more easily than the first.

He picked up a catcher to bolster that deparatment, he took an outfielder no one wanted and placed him where he came back to life with a mark in age, he pitched to the Cubs in batting practice with all his old time cunning and much of his old time speed. Afterwards he sat on the bench watching the battle and wishing he could take a hand in it. Brown works for an oil company at Lawrenceville, Ill.

Pirates Announce Eligible Players for World Series

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Twenty-seven members of the "Almost Champion Pittsburgh Pirates" are eligible for a cut of the world series money, provided that the league leaders win the National league pennant. The club announced today its list of 25 eligible players as follows:

Catchers: Smith, Gooch, Spencer. Pitchers: Aldridge, Adams, Meadows, Kremer, Yde, Morrison, Sheehan, Oldham, Culloton. Infielders: Grantham, McInnis, Moore, Wright, Traynor, Rawlings, Thompson, Ens. Outfielders: Carey, Cuyler, Bigbee, Barnhart, Kaa. Manager Bill McKechnie and Coach Jack Onslow are the other two who will share in the cash distribution.

a contender, and in two months had it strong enough to win the American league pennant.

Fred Clarke, as an assistant to McKechnie, has been of great assistance and should be of more. He and Griffith know each other from the old days, when Clarke led Louisville and Pittsburgh and when Griffith was the star pitcher of Chicago. They know each other's style of play, and of attack and defense.

In generalship of each game Griffith and Clarke will have much to say, although, of course, Harris and McKechnie will take the leadership and responsibility on the field.

Pittsburgh, for two years, has thrown away pennants by letting the Giants wallop them, rush them off their feet, and throw them into disorder. This year, to avert that danger, Clarke was called in to help McKechnie. He came back gladly to his old club, and his grin when the Pirates turned and fought the Giants off their feet, swept the most important series and practically ruined McGraw's chances for the championship, showed he had not forgotten.

Makes Pirates Aggressive.

Clarke has made Pittsburgh an aggressive, hustling, fighting aggregation instead of one that submitted weakly to being thrashed, and he has attack of the team.

Buck Harris has proved himself one of the really great inspiring leaders on the field. In being a playing manager he has a big advantage over McKechnie. In addition to fitting exactly into Griffith's system of playing ball, and having developed a remarkable ability to handle and instruct men, he is a demonstrator. He is the best type of ball player—a hustling, battling, never-say-die fellow.

McKechnie is a different type, quietly studious and earnest, getting results without explosions, and commanding men through respect. He knows this game. He had the benefit of experience under Frank Chance, and he learned the McGraw system of play while with the Giants. Experience has ripened and helped him, and made a good leader of him.

In the next article we get to figures. We will take the outfields man by man and study them in comparison to each other. We are certain to find the great bulk of the attacking force in the outfields, and the comparative figures on the opposing outfields should give us the first real clew as to which is the superior team.

So. Bend Puts Up Million for Jack-Wills Go

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 19.—(AP)—All obstacles to the proposed Jack Dempsey-Harry Wills match to be held some place in northern Indiana July 4, 1926, have been removed and $1,000,000 has been raised among local business men to finance Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., in promoting the bout.

B. H. Benton, private secretary to the champion, in a statement tonight declared the fight was on so far as the champion is concerned. He was sent to South Bend today to check up on the financial and legal aspects of the match and declared everything was satisfactory.

Mullins Notified.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, was wired tonight that all details had been investigated by Dempsey's representative and that there is nothing now to block the match. Mullins, who was broached on the situation last week, was only waiting to hear the report of Benton, it was said.

The present plans call for Wills and Dempsey to appear in South Bend, Sept. 23 or 29, when the final articles will be signed. However, it is probable that the principals will be taken to Niles, Mich., near here, as the final signing of articles may be construed to be illegal in Indiana.

The exact site of the bout is still to be decided.

Expense Money Forwarded.

Both Wills and Dempsey have been sent expense money to come to this city. Dempsey has a boxing engagement at San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 24, which Benton said the fighter cannot break. He also is booked to appear in exhibition bouts later at Houston and Dallas, but will be able to cancel them to come to South Bend.

Benton arrived in Chicago yesterday and spent part of Friday and today in looking over proposed sites for the fight.

Opposition is expected from Jack Kearns, who will maintain his contract with Dempsey is still valid.

"The champion," Benton says, "welcomes an open tilt with Kearns and hopes his former manager will take it to court. He wants it settled once and for all."

McQuillan Must Pay Alimony Out of Giants' Wage

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Hugh McQuillan, former star pitcher of the New York Giants, today has $338.35 paid him in settlement of his suit from the New York baseball club for wages due him, but he will be forced to give it to his wife immediately in payment of overdue alimony. McQuillan's suit was scheduled for the Fifth avenue court but was settled before it got there.

According to Bernard H. Reich, attorney for the ball player, money was owed McQuillan for the period from July 16 to July 22. As a result of a verdict of contempt of court for not paying his wife's alimony McQuillan was fined $700 of which he paid $400. He has until Sept. 21 to pay the remainder.

Cub Youngsters Trample on Giant Veterans, 6 to 2

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Almost the last bit of pennant hope which the New York Giants were cherishing vanished yesterday afternoon at the north side when they limped through a struggle with the Cubs and came on the short end of a 6 to 2 score.

While they were doing that Pittsburgh won another game. Not only that, but Travis Jackson, an important cog in the Giant machine, injured his knee again in a desperate slide to second base in the sixth and had to retire, perhaps to remain out for several days, if not the remainder of the season.

There was no charity in the hearts of the young Cubs, several of whom haven't yet won their big league spurs. It mattered not to them that the Giants were being beaten out of a championship. Those young men were out figthing hard for themselves. They were there to make good regardless of the cost to others and they did make good in this battle.

Oldsters Also Shine.

Young Joe Munson, playing his second big league game, contributed two singles and a double to the cause. Young Howard Freigau had two singles and a home run, the four baser being a drive into the bleachers in left center. Other damaging blows were struck by Charley Grimm and Gabby Hartnett, not so new in the game.

Sheriff Blake was the Cub hurler and was in great form. He had control of his hook and his fast ball and although the Giants gathered eleven hits, almost half of them were flukey affairs. They never would have counted on Mr. Blake if his support hadn't cracked badly in a couple of spots.

Blake was opposed by Jack Scott, the No'th Carolina gent who wanted to get into just one more world's series in order to lift the mortgage off the old homestead. Scott was knocked out in the seventh and it looks as if the mortgage may have to be carried over. Wayland Dean rescued him, but the ball game had gone blooie.

Cubs Earn One in First.

The Cubs earned a run in the first on hits by Young Metzler, Freigau, and Munson, but the Giants tied it in the fourth when errors by Freigau and Jahn gave an opening. In the same inning, the Cubs earned another on hits by Grimm, Hartnett and Adams, but in the sixth the Giants tied it again when an error by Pittenger furnished aid.

With the score tied in the seventh, Mr. Freigau led off with his screaming drive into the bleacher for four sacks and then the Giants went to smash. Jahn was safe on an error by Eddie Farrell, recent college lad, who had to take Jackson's place.

Munson slammed a hit to right, sending Jahn to third. Grimm bounced to Farrell, who made a wide chuck to second, the ball getting away from Frisch. Jahn scored. Pittenger sacrificed and Dean relieved Scott. Then Hartnett knocked one against the screen in front of the left bleacher for two sacks, scoring Munson and Grimm and settling the battle.

The final game of the year against the Giants will be played today. Tony Kaufmann or Guy Bush will do the pitching.

HASKELL LOSES TWO STARS AS IT WINS 40-0 GAME

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Six thousand football fans saw the giant Indian eleven from the Haskell institute defeat the Drury Panthers here today, 40 to 0, in a game played with the thermometer registering 93 degrees.

The victory, however, was costly, for two Haskell stars were injured. George Levi, captain of the team, was knocked out with a wrenched knee and a torn ligament in his right knee. He will be out of the game until the Boston university contest three weeks from today.

Papio, husky Indian, was knocked unconscious and still was in a state of coma late today.

PIRATES' FIELD TO BE ENLARGED FOR BIG SERIES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 19.—[U. P.]—The seating capacity of Forbes field during the world's series will be enlarged to 42,000 by the erection of a temporary grandstand on city park property.

Griffith Stadium Sold Out.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[U. P.]—Every one of the 34,500 reserved seats in Griffith stadium for the world series baseball games here Oct. 9, 10 and 11, have been taken—and then some, Secretary E. B. Eynon of the Washington club, said today. Applications are still pouring in which cannot be granted.

Fifteen hundred additional bleacher seats will be placed on sale at $3 each at the club's office at 10 a. m. on the day of each game, Eynon said.

BIG BILL GIVEN 5 SET BATTLE BY LITTLE BILL

Champ Forced to the Limit by Old Rival.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—William T. Tilden II., remains the undisputed tennis king of America and, for that matter, the world. He won the title for the sixth year in a row today when he turned back the stout hearted challenge of his veteran rival, William M. Johnston of California, in five pulse stirring sets.

The scores were 4—6, 11—9, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2, but the cold statistics fail to tell the story of Johnston's gallant fight to overthrow the champion who now has thwarted the Californian's comeback attempts for six successive years. Nor do the figures reveal the titleholder's genius in moments of peril and his final dominance through superior stroking and stamina.

Coolness Saves Tilden.

It is doubtful whether, in all the long history of the Tilden-Johnston feud, these rivals ever engaged in a more spectacular fight. Johnston, since his last national championship victory over Tilden in 1919, has been closer to dethroning the champion than he was today. Three years ago the Californian was within a few points of triumphing after he had taken the first two sets. Today he was far from having Tilden that close to defeat, but he was three times within a point of taking the second set and gaining an advantage, which with the impetus of his attack, might have beaten down even Tilden's brilliant resources.

As it was, Tilden's coolness in this crisis saved him and turned back Johnston's greatest bid in a struggle for points that had the capacity crowd of 13,000 in the West Side club's stadium on edge and breathless with excitement.

Johnston Has Crowd in Uproar.

This setback, heartbreaking to Johnston at the time, might have unnerved anyone by the plucky Californian. Instead of yielding, as it seemed he would after Tilden had swept through the third set, Johnston came back with another hurricane spurt to win the fourth set and square the match. He had the big crowd again in an uproar as he gained a lead in the final set, but his strength was unequal to the task of keeping up the pace.

Tilden, again rising to the emergency with startling flights of tennis, called on his apparently inexhaustible store of reserve energy to gain the victory. He was irresistible in this final drive, which culminated typically when he aced Johnston with a terrific cannonball service shot for the final point.

Tilden World Champion.

Tilden's attainment of his sixth straight championship—giving him permanent possession of his second title trophy—leaves no doubt that he still has full command of the genius which has lifted him to an unparalleled place in tennisdom.

Tilden emerged from the forty-fourth annual tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis association not only the national titleholder, but the recognized champion of the world. For his victory was gained in a field that included the leading stars of the most important tennis nations of the globe—France, Australia, Japan and Spain, besides this country.

The Californian had his opportunities, many of them, but somehow Tilden also rose to his best when danger was closest. Thus it was that he turned back Johnston in the long second set. The crisis here came in the 18th game when Johnston, fighting his way to a lead of 9—8, led at 40—30, and subsequently had advantage point twice. Each time, however, with only a point separating him from the loss of set, Tilden came through.

A service ace deuced the game, an out on a forcing drive saved him the second time and a similar error by Johnston forfeited the third chance. Then Tilden, with two smashing drives, one producing an error by Johnston and the other going as a clean placement, ended the struggle that had gone six times to deuce.

Match is Squared.

Safely past this emergency, Tilden faced the menace of a fresh rally by Johnston in the third set. The Californian ran into a lead of 3—1 before the champion settled down to his work and ran through five straight games with the loss of only a single point in each.

The titleholder now seemed to have his rival on the run. Johnston's strength had waned rapidly, but he gained a new store in the interval before the next set and came out to put up another great fight. Tilden, apparently in the belief he had victory within reach, let down in his game and before he could check himself Johnston had swept into a lead which he held, winning the set and squaring the match.

Johnston put everything he had into a desperate finish, but it was sufficient only to give him two of the first three games in the deciding set. The crowd roared its encouragement to the little Californian, but he had given his last bit in courage and strokes. In twelve minutes Tilden ended the struggle that had taken two hours altogether and settled the question of his supremacy for at least another year.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—The world's champion Senators traveled from the sublime to the ridiculous today and in their wanderings collected a victory and then a decisive defeat in which young Ted Lyons held them hitless until after two were gone in the ninth.

The front portion of the pastiming was neat and to the point in a duel between Urban Faber and Dutch Ruether. The only difference between the two hurlers was that the Senators, as befits their station in life, hit the ball in the pinches and moved nearer to another pennant by a 3 to 2 count.

The nightcap was a battle only for one inning. In the second chapter the White Sox slapped Jezebel Zachary all over Washington for 7 runs and then continued to run wild until a 17 to 0 triumph had been gathered for the luckless Lyons.

Lyons Knocks at Fame's Door.

Lyons, only a couple of years out of college, was on the very doorstep of undying pitching fame until Bobby Veach faced him with two out in the final chapter. Nothing was at stake. The crowd had long since ceased to show interest in anything but Lyons' performance. They wanted to see him through and even voiced disapproval when "Bucky" Harris sent up a pinch batter.

When Veach stepped up the crowd implored him to strike out. He swung easily at an offering, and the ball did a slow loop over first base. With his hopes shattered, Lyons simply mopped his brow, nailed the next batter and then walked off the field. He really was entitled to the honors of a no-hit victory because he had the champs off their stride all the way.

Wild and Woolly Inning.

The second inning of the second game was so wild and woolly that eleven Sox batted and seven hits were delivered. Sheely had the honor of starting the weird session with a triple and ending it with a single. That chapter was bad enough, but in the fifth the Hose word even more violent and they walloped Russell and Ballou for eight runs. Thirteen men batted in this chapter, and Falk exploded a single and double. The two other runs scored in the sixth.

Too much Rice and Goose put the Sox on the bum in the first game. All that Rice did was to nick Faber for four hits, giving him a string of nine consecutive blows in as many times at bat. Goose Goslin managed to get by on three safe clouts, one of which was a homer over the tall right field wall in the fourth.

Rice's opening hit off Faber was a triple to left to start the game. An infield out scored him. Then both Faber and Ruether conducted themselves with ease until the Goose tore off his homer in the fourth. On top of this homer came a single by Judge and a double by Joe Harris that counted another. The only damage done by the Sox was lone runs in the sixth and eighth. Both tallies were started by hits off Bill Barrett's bat.

THUNDERSHOWER TAKES HANDICAP AT AURORA TRACK

BY FRENCH LANE.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Thundershower came to the races on this bright autumn afternoon and won the Chicago Handicap. The race was at six furlongs and carried $2,000 in added money to the winner. It engaged the best two year olds ever to race over the local course.

And even a genuine thundershower would have played but little more havoc with the punters than did this two year old daughter of Thunderer—Promise running in the Cerise and Black Silks of Mrs. T. J. Regan. She was a rank outsider, but away to a good start, she showed her flying heels to favorites and outsiders alike for the entire trip.

Blah, a son of Behave Yourself, and formerly in Edward R. Bradley's stable, was second, and Cross Bow third.

Winner Given Hard Ride.

There was nothing remarkable about Thundershower's six furlongs in 1:18 3-5, for the running strip was just drying out from the drenching rains of early in the week. But it was a sterling performance when the class of the field is considered. Thundershower, hard urged all through the journey by Jockey Pichon, never gave one inch of ground going away at the finish.

Once the field was straightened out after the start, Blah was soon up nearest the flying leader. Jockey Eaton made a desperate bid with him on the turn into the stretch, but Thundershower was equal to the challenge and increased her advantage in the brief brush.

The track was better than at any time since the season opened. These good conditions brought out some 8,000 racegoers, a truly metropolitan turf crowd, with Chicago furnishing the greater portion of it.

Favorites Have Bad Day.

Followers of favorites took one of the most severe drubbings of the fall for as fast as they came along in the first three races the choices finished in the two hole. Only one managed to win all afternoon.

St. Nicholas was the one to fall in the opener, receiving a sound trouncing at the hands of Intake, while Charles Whitney got the narrowest of nose decisions over Power in the second. Then came Judge Dailey's failure in the third, Edith Clifford scoring in another exciting finish, mainly due to the brisk ride she got from Jockey Hebert.

The one lonesome favorite to gallop home was Monday Morning in the fourth, a claiming event at six furlongs. It was his second victory of the week and he had little trouble holding Annie Lyle and Polo Grounds safe in the stretch. Talequa unseated Jockey Vesseli soon after the start, but the boy was unhurt.

Johnny Overton and Booneville were the outsiders to win the last two races, and Squire McMasters and Roxana the favorites to fall. Overton beat My Lorraine by two lengths, while Booneville lasted just long enough to nip Simoon by a nose.

ROLAND LOCKE JOINS HUSKERS

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Roland Locke, "Nebraska's fastest human," donned moleskins when Coach Ernest Bearg's football squad turned out for practice today. His participation cheered the Cornhusker camp.

Henry F. Schulte, track coach, gave the word for Locke to play. Locke had held back, fearing to impair his sprinting ability, but popular demand for his prowess on the gridiron brought consent of Schulte.

BAPTISTS WIN FIRST GAME OF TITLE SERIES

Millard Avenue Baptist defeated the St. Paul Lutheran team, 10 to 9, in the first of a series of three games for the junior baseball championship of the Church A. A. In the first game on a double header bill, Elim Swedish triumphed over Grace English Lutheran in a slugfest, 13 to 11.

The championship encounter was featured by the fielding of Snyder and the pitching of Veyrosek, of the victors, while Bumke worried the losers with his bat in the preliminary. The games were played at Comiskey park.

FRENCHMEN PAID IN FAKE MONEY ON BRITISH TRACK

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Half a dozen French sportsmen who attended the Doncaster, England, races Saturday found an accommodating English bookmaker who accepted their wagers in French money. They bet heavily and won about $150,000 in all. Today when they went to the banks here to convert their sterling into francs they were told the sterling notes were spurious.

"CARP" PLANS FOR COMEBACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Georges Carpentier is coming from retirement to try to stage a comeback in the American ring this winter.

"Before the end of the year I will visit California as a tourist," Georges said in an interview yesterday. "I expect a number of offers from American promoters. If I feel in good shape I will fight in New York."

The Frenchman already is getting in condition by hunting, spending four days a week chasing rabbits, birds and deer.

Rockaway Polo 4 Reaches Finals of Circuit Meet

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Rockaway polo team today defeated Fort Leavenworth, 11 to 8, in the semi-final match for the national intercircuit championship at the Philadelphia Country club. Rockaway will meet Fort Bliss in the final round next week.

It's good policy to give the consumer greater value for his money. All of the great industrial successes have been made in just that way. Smaller profit and greater number of sales!

But without public support it would be impossible to put this principle into effect. It's the public, itself, that sets the pace.

That's why men have the right to expect more for their money in White Owls. When popular demand enables us to make them at the rate of a million a day it is only natural that we can give the greatest cigar value on the market.

Try a couple of White Owls today. The tobacco now being used is from the finest crop in years. You'll agree that "White Owls are tasting sette" than ever."

The wonderful sweetness of taste that this fine crop has added to White Owls is causing more and more smokers to buy them in the handy pack of ten. It involves just a small investment but it pays mighty large dividends in the satisfaction of knowing you have always in your pocket—fresh and in perfect condition—a supply of your favorite cigar. Always full-flavored and mellow; mild and fragrant! It's the common-sense way to buy your White Owls. Try them now.

Why you get greater value in White Owls

FAMOUS DRIVERS RACE TODAY FOR 100 MILE CROWN

Featured by the 100 mile race for the championship of America, Chicago's annual automobile Derby will be held over the one mile course of the Hawthorne race track this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The meet will be under the supervision of the International Motor Contest association's racing board and will bring together many of the world's fastest drivers. The Hawthorne motor Derby and Barney Oldfield sweepstakes will be other contests in which the stars will compete.

Haugdahl Entered.

While more than a score of daredevils whose names are known the world over in automobile racing circles are among the entrants, the outstanding pilot is Sig Haugdahl, the Norwegian who holds the world's record of 180 miles an hour over the Daytona beach.

Aside from his amazing three miles a minute straightaway record, Haugdahl holds every world's dirt track record from one to twenty miles and several for distances over twenty-five miles. He will drive his 300 horsepower Wisconsin special for a one mile track record at Hawthorne, but will use his eight cylinder Miller board speedway type machine in the I. M. C. A. championship and Hawthorne motor Derby events.

Clipping a full second off the previous Hawthorne track record for one mile, Haugdahl yesterday started in the elimination tests, during which the 28 pilots who are to compete in the I. M. C. A. championship this afternoon were selected. Haugdahl drove his eight cylinder Miller board speedway type car in the qualifying events, but also traveled many fast laps in his 300 horse power Wisconsin special, which established the 180 miles an hour record on the Florida beach. He showed many laps in 49 seconds, the previous Hawthorne mark, and two laps in 48.

Other Speed Kings.

Other prominent drivers in today's races are Louis Disbrow, Fred Horey, Ray Lampkin, Al Cotey, Leg Allen, Cliff Woodbury, Al Watters, Otto Anderson, Curley Young, Guglielmo Montagno, Cleo Saries, Eddie Dailey, Johnny Rehr, Noel Bullock, Ralph Ormsby, Ray Claypool, Larry Stone, Gus Schrader, Floyd Roberts, Rene Duray, Johnny Watters and Andy Burt.

In addition to several eight in a row Miller and Deusenberg cars, there will be French Peugeots and Buggatis, Italian Fiats and Alfa Romeos, an English Sunbeam, and a Belgian Minerva.

The track will be rendered dustless by a liberal application of calcium chloride. A special train will leave over the Illinois Central from the Randolph street terminal at 1:45 o'clock city time.

Driver Killed in Auto Race

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—One man was fatally hurt and four others were injured in automobile races at the opening of the Illinois state fair today. The accident which resulted in the tragedy occurred at the first turn of the track in the first race of the day.

Roy Humphrey, Keokuk, Ia., died this evening from injuries suffered in the accident. Paul Clancy, Chicago; Charles "Dutch" Bauman, Indianapolis, Ind.; Ralph Ormsby, Indianapolis, and Benny Shoaff, Springfield, were slightly injured.

Two Cars Collide.

The five cars, closely bunched, were rounding the first turn when Clancy cut across in front of Shoaff, Shoaff's car catching Clancy's rear wheel and both cars rolling over and over into a newly constructed fence.

The 30,000 spectators rose with a gasp as the two cars bounced back from the fence in front of the three following cars so quickly that they could not avoid the general crash.

Two Cut and Bruised.

Clancy and Shoaff only suffered bruises and scratches.

The races were the first open competitive events ever held at the state fair, other auto race events in former years having been invitation affairs.

GRID SEASON OPENS AT PERU.

Petaja, Badger Cross Country Star, Ineligible

Madison, Wis., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—John Petaja, regular of Coach Mead Burke's conference championship University of Wisconsin cross country team last fall, has been found deficient in scholastic work and will be unable to compete with the Badger harriers this year, it was learned today. Petaja finished thirteenth for the Cardinal in the Big Ten conference meet at Ann Arbor last season, and was a consistent winner in dual meets.

MEADOWBROOK VICTOR IN FIRST OF POLO SERIES

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Two goals in the final chukker by Tommy Hitchcock, hard hitting member of America's international four, today brought victory to the Meadowbrook team over the Hurricanes in the opening match of a series between four clubs for the open polo championship. The score was 9 to 7.

The victory qualified the Meadowbrooks to meet the winners of a match on Sept. 23 between the Orange County four and the Princemeres. The final will be played one week from today.

Sharing honors with Hitchcock in the Meadowbrook triumph was Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, making his debut in major polo at No. 1. Whitney scored the opening goal for the Meadowbrooks.

CARDINALS OPEN PRO-GRID SEASON THIS AFTERNOON

The professional football season for Chicago will open this afternoon at Normal park, 63d and Racine, when the Cardinals play the Harvey, Ill., team at 3 o'clock. The game will be a 60 minute affair.

BEARS AT ROCK ISLAND

The Chicago Bears, led by Coaches Dutch Sternaman and George Halas, open the season of the National Football league this afternoon in a game with the Independents at Rock Island. The Bears have been drilling all week for this battle, and the two old rivals are expected to have a gruelling clash.

Among the veterans who are back with the Bears this season are Quarter Back Joe Sternaman, Illinois; Center George Trafton, Notre Dame, and Tackle Ed Healy, Dartmouth. Many newcomers are with the squad, including Milt Romney and Ralph King of the Maroons, Don Murray, Wisconsin's star tackle, and Guard Flaherstein of Iowa.

DE PALMA WINS 100 MILE GRIND ON DIRT TRACK

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The New York State fair closed today with the victory of Ralph De Palma in the annual 100 mile automobile race in the Fair Gounds dirt track and the setting of five new world's dirt track records for motorcycles racing by Johnny Seymour of Springfield, Mass.

De Palma took the lead at the start of the automobile classic and held it throughout, finishing two laps ahead of Leon Duray, 1:15:18.98. Ralph Hepburn was third. He was followed by Earl Cooper, Jerry Wonderlich, Ira Vail, and Fred Comer, in the order named.

The records established by Seymour with the marks which he overturned were:

Five mile national championship—New record, 3:43.78; former, 3:45.

Ten mile national championship—New record, 7:30.04; former, 7:45 4-5.

Fifteen mile state championship—New record, 11:19.60; former, 12:15 2-5.

Twenty-five mile national championship—New record, 19:50.85; former, 20:10.

OOD FANS FOCUS EYES ON FIRST GAMES THIS WEEK

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

After nearly two weeks of intensive practice, which included morning and afternoon sessions, a number of football teams will engage in their first contests on Saturday.

Pennsylvania, which will tackle Chicago and Illinois in important intersectional clashes, is scheduled to meet Indiana on Franklin field, Philadelphia. The Quakers will meet Chicago on Oct. 3 at Philadelphia and Illinois on the following Saturday on the same gridiron. Penn tied with Yale and Dartmouth last year for eastern honors, while Chicago was rated the strongest team in the western conference.

Penn Looks Good.

Pennsylvania again is being coached by Lou Young, a former Penn player who had considerable success with his alma mater last year. Reports from the Quaker institution have it that Young has material for another strong team.

Dartmouth, which will come west to meet Chicago on Stagg field, Nov. 14, will entertain Norwich at Hanover. The Big Green eleven will be coached by Jesse Hawley, a former Dartmouth player who coached at Iowa some years back. Hawley is an efficient leader and he can be relied on to bring a team into the west which will not only be a credit to Dartmouth but to eastern football as well.

Everybody Set for Rockne.

While the initial performances of Penn and Dartmouth will be followed closely, the showing of Notre Dame is its first game of the year against the strong Baylor eleven of Texas will not be overlooked. Coach Knute Rockne, who turned out a national championship team last year, one which traveled from coast to coast to win its games, has lost his "Four Horsemen" and is confronted with the task of developing a new back field and a new line.

The famous leader will be put to the test and his ability as a coach tested to the last degree. Each of Notre Dame's opponents will be pointed for the struggles with Rockne's eleven, as they realize a victory will bring them country-wide prominence. Many are of the opinion Rockne is a lucky coach and that he is always blessed with gridiron material. While this is far from the opinion of the writer, who believes Knute is one of the country's leading strategists, Rockne is confronted with a great task, one which will tax his resourcefulness to the limit.

Have Stiff Program.

Penn State and Georgia Tech, which will meet Notre Dame in interesting intersectional contests, will clash with Lebanon Valley and Oglethorpe, respectively. Rockne's eleven will meet Penn State and Georgia on their own gridirons, a fact which will make it all the harder for Notre Dame, which will not be the seasoned eleven of a year ago.

Cornell, which did not experience a successful season last fall, will open with Susquehanna at Ithaca, while Brown will take on Rhode Island State at Providence. Amherst will engage Rochester on the former's gridiron, and Williams will clash with Hamilton at Williamstown in other games of note in the east.

Pittsburgh, whose $2,000,000 stadium is now completed, will play its first game in the gigantic structure, with Washington and Lee as an opponent. For years Pitts has played all its games in the ball park, but finally has earned enough money to have a stadium of its own, something it has needed for years.

Tulane Meets Louisiana Saturday.

Future opponents of Western conference elevens will swing into action on the week-end. South Dakota, which meets Northwestern in the Purple's opener at Evanston on Oct. 3, will play Yankton, while Tulane of New Orleans, Northwestern's opponent on Stagg field Oct. 24, will meet Louisiana college.

Kentucky, which will give Chicago its opening test on Stagg field Oct. 3, is scheduled to meet Maryville at Lexington. Syracuse, opponent of Indiana in an intersectional contest at Bloomington on Oct. 17, will meet Hobart on the home gridiron.

On the Pacific coast Leland Stanford, the 1924 champion, will take on the Olympic club of San Francisco, and California will engage Santa Clara at Berkeley. University of California, Southern Branch, located in Los Angeles, where Bill Spaulding, the former Minnesota coach, is in charge, will open with San Diego.

Colorado Tackles Creighton.

Ames, one of the strong teams in the Missouri valley, will open its season with Simpson, while Colorado, which meets Creighton in the athletic feature of the national convention of the American Legion in Omaha on Oct. 7, will play Nebraska State Normal. Michigan State, formerly known as the Michigan Aggies, will clash with Adrian at Lansing.

Teams which do not engage in games on the week-end will devote the day to strenuous practice in preparation for the official opening of the season on Oct. 3, when every eleven of football importance in the country will open its season.

Loyola Academy and Senn High Battle to 7 to 7 Tie

History repeated itself yesterday at Loyola field when Loyola academy and Senn High school opened the local football season by battling to a 7 to 7 tie under a boiling sun that left both teams bedraggled and weary at the final whistle. It was the second indecisive engagement between the two teams in as many years. They fought to a scoreless tie a year ago.

As is customary in opening games, the play was ragged in spots, but both teams gave promise of developing considerable strength as the season progresses. Both had fairly heavy and fast charging lines and speedy backs. Senn relied entirely on straight football, while Loyola occasionally opened up with an overhead attack that met with indifferent success.

Loyola in Dashing Start.

Loyola started as though it would make a runaway of the game, going over for a touchdown in the first four minutes of play. Senn had received the kickoff, and, failing to gain, attempted to punt. A Loyola linesman broke through to block the kick and the Catholics recovered on Senn's 30 yard line. Ladner, Griffin, and Capt. Mooney then unleashed a series of line bucks which planted the oval on the five yard mark.

Sheridan crashed through center for a touchdown. Mooney added the extra point on a drop kick.

The remainder of the half found neither team able to gain consistently, although most of the play was deep in Loyola territory. Senn once worked the ball to the 20 yard line, but a 5 yard penalty for offside set them back and forced them to punt. The half ended with the ball in midfield.

How Senn Scored.

Early in the third period a Loyola back messed up a pass from center, the ball dribbling back to his 15 yard line before he could recover it. A short punt gave the Green eleven the ball on the 30 yard line. Then started a march down the field which ended when Edwards plowed over from the two yard line to plant the oval directly between the goal posts. Gentry's place kick for the extra point hit the cross bar and bounced over to knot the score at 7—7.

With the score tied Loyola twice came within scoring distance and both times Mooney lost the opportunity to clinch the victory by missing drop kicks. One went wide of its mark and the other was blocked. Lineup:

PREP FOOTBALL

Waller yesterday gave evidence that it will be a big factor in section 3 of the city league by holding Hyde Park to a 0 to 0 tie in a practice game at Southtown park. White featured, getting away for many long runs through the Hyde Park team.

Austin and Marshall battled to a 0 to 0 deadlock yesterday in a practice affair at Jones and Baumrucker park. Neither team was able to accomplish much, each presenting an almost impregnable defense.

Naperville was no match for Riverside yesterday in the opening game of the season at Naperville, the visiting eleven romping away with a 41 to 0 victory. In the first four minutes Riverside scored two touchdowns and had things its own way the rest of the game. Sandin scored a pair of touchdowns.

Hinsdale trimmed Lamont, 27 to 0, yesterday on the losers' field. Hinsdale presented a fast back field which got away for consistent gains.

* *

Lane handed De Paul a 12 to 0 setback yesterday at De Paul field. The Division street school showed most of its ability in the first half when all of its points were made.

LINDBLOM RUNS OVER DEERFIELD BY 26-7 COUNT

Lindblom, city league champions last year, yesterday demonstrated that it will have another strong football team this season by overwhelming Deerfield 26 to 7, at Highland Park. Lindblom outplayed the suburban league eleven virtually the whole way, Stears leading the attack by carrying the ball over the goal line twice. Biehl also did some good work. Baker was the leading performer for the losers. Lineup:

Dartmouth Game Homecoming for Maroon Alumni

Alumni of the University of Chicago will stage their first football homecoming this fall on Nov. 14, the date of the Chicago-Dartmouth game at Stagg field.

The old grads of the Midway stage their annual jubilee on the campus in the spring, the homecoming during the football season being an innovation this year. The first homecoming will afford alumni an opportunity to see and hear Dr. Max Mason, new president of the school, who will be one of the speakers.

The cornerstone of the new field house, which is to occupy that corner of Stagg field located at 56th and University avenue, will be laid with appropriate ceremonies. Following the Dartmouth-Maroon game a huge celebration will be staged in Bartlett gymnasium, with Coach A. A. Stagg and the football team present.

BESSEMER PARK WINS BASEBALL FIELD HONORS

Winning first place in three of the six events on the program, and placing third in another, H. Neis of Bessemer park yesterday took high honors in the senior division of the Chicago Playground council's ball players' contest at Grant park. Neis scored 24 points, four better than his nearest opponent, E. Weber of Sherwood playground. M. Haggerty of Orr playground and E. Harr of Bessemer park tied for high point honors in the intermediate division with 12 markers apiece. The junior crown went to J. Smilgoff of Commercial playground. Why We Backed our Faith in the DIANA Light Straight "8" with Good American Dollars

The automobile business is our bread and butter. ¶ Experience told us when we went into the market for a Light Eight that the car we selected must be something more than a collection of sales features—it must be a repeater, a maker of friends—must stay sold, must perform. ¶ Everybody knows the "best" golf shots are always made in the locker room, never on the green—everybody knows the car that spends more time in the garage than on the road is not a good machine to sell, nor to buy. ¶ So we made the decision, but not the selection—the picking was done by the other dealers who handle the Diana Light Straight Eight—men who have acquired friends, prestige and profit with this most amazing car. ¶ And we're glad they tipped us off and pointed out the way. For when we signed up Diana we found a new salesman—Performance—the most eloquent, most convincing we have ever had on the payroll. ¶ Performance sells more Diana Light Eights than any other means at our disposal. That's why we backed our faith in this great car with good American dollars. ¶ If you will come in to see Diana or telephone, we will be glad to demonstrate one of the seven greatest performers built in America—yet costing less than any of the other six.

PRO GOLFERS OF NATION HERE TO OPEN TITLE PLAY

The eyes of American golf fans will be upon Chicago and its Olympia Fields Country club this week.

The National Professional Golfers' association annual tournament will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning over courses three and four at Olympia. The 64 professionals, who triumphed over large fields in sectional qualifying rounds, will play another thirty-six hole qualifying round for the match play that begins on Tuesday.

Special Events Arranged.

The thirty-one golfers who are low tomorrow and Walter Hagen, the defending champion, will be paired for the match play. All matches will be at 36 holes. The match play will continue throughout the week.

In addition to the tournament proper, the Olympia Fields club has announced a contest for the golfers who fail to qualify and who are eliminated in the first matches. A prize list totaling almost $2,000 has been arranged for this event. Still another contest, a pro-amateur team event, will be staged on Friday.

Hagen played over the Olympia

courses on Thursday and Friday. Yesterday he played at Edgewater. Today he is playing an exhibition match out of the city. Many golf fans believe he will retain his title.

But there is a brilliant field waiting to take Hagen's crown away from him. Leo Diegel, Gene Sarazen, Bobby Cruickshank, Al Espinosa, Bill Melhorn, Laurie Ayton, Bill Creavy, Abe Espinosa, Charles McKenna and many others have played practice rounds and are well up on their games.

The Illinois Central railroad will furnish 50 minute service from Randolph street to the club.

BUNKER HILL.

Shadn P. MacElhatton won the Inaugural club title, defeating John M. Hutchins, 3 and 2, in the 36 hole final. In the second flight Roy W. Barry defeated H. Lyford, 5 and 4. C. H. Retzke was the winner in the third flight, defeating Dr. Truitt, 2 and 1. In the final of the class A medal tournament, C. Steimert defeated Joe Doc, 2 up.

GLENVIEW.

In the men's division a class handicap event was decided as follows: Class A—A. E. Swift, 74—1—73. Class B—F. S. Colborn, 80—12—76. Class C—C. S. Jefferson, 94—19—75. Miss Louise Fergus won the women's title by defeating Mrs. Tracy Alden, 2 and 1. Mrs. Alden, in the semi-finals, triumphed over Mrs. Eugene Barnhart, who won the title last year.

CHICAGO.

R. W. Caldwell, with 74—7—67, won the Saturday cup.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

J. A. Mallooly, playing over number one course finished 5 down to par and took the trophy. The winners in the week-end handicap event over number three were L. L. Hobberd, 78—4—74, and E. E. Peter, 84—8—76.

EDGEWOOD.

H. J. Rose won the low net prize for the day. The ball sweepstakes contest ended with A. G. Linfoot at the top of the list and A. W. Anderson, L. J. White, and H. A. Beckley following in the order named.

ON THE LOCAL GOLF COURSES

PRESIDENT CHARLES M. SMALLEY of Olympia Fields, has won the Illinois seniors' golf title. Mr. Smalley shot a 41—42—83 over No. 1 course of his home club, where the tournament was held. His card was the best of the field, leading E. A. Engler of Glen View and Ward W. Willits of Old Elm, who had scores of 84. Frederick W. Hill of Skokie, secretary of the organization, who won the "kicker's prize" last year, did not say a word during the entire tournament and lost his title. Charles O. Pfeil of Memphis, president of the Western Golf association, won the class D contest, which is limited to players 60 to 64 years of age. Mr. Pfeil had a score of 85. Mr. Willits won the class A contest, which is limited to players of 65 years or over.

EXMOOR.

Medal play handicap events furnished the sport. C. B. Come won the low net prize with a 73. J. R. Washburn had a 75, and J. W. Mercer, H. A. Porter, and R. A. Bard each had 76.

RUTH LAKE.

The sport was "ball sweepstakes." George Steger, 81—11—76, and R. J. Irvine, 84—14—70, were tied for first place in class A. F. Fahlman won in class B. R. Schweidler won in class C, and C. C. Haas triumphed in class D. Low net for the day went to R. J. Irvine, while George Steger had low gross.

ILLINOIS.

In the semi-finals for the club championship W. W. Ahlschlager defeated A. C. Hammond, 4 and 3, and C. M. Nichols defeated R. Gambrill, 4 and 3. On Sept. 26 the qualifying rounds for the President's trophy will be held.

BRIERGATE.

There was handicap medal play. E. R. Wickersham, 87J13J74, won in class A. H. Erhlick won in class B with a score of 89—17—72. H. M. Daniels, with a card of 104—26—78, won in class C.

KIWANIS CLUBS.

The Woodlawn Kiwanis club, which has won every major trade tournament this year, "cleaned up" last week at Devonshire, where 200 players from Illinois and eastern Iowa competed. Tom Walsh and C. F. Kinnucan of Dixmoor and Al Heald and Walter Gerwig of Olympia Fields were on the team that took all three trophies, the two man district title, the four man team event, and the Governor's trophy.

LINCOLN PARK.

Dave O'Connor, the present champion, and Harry Vollmer will meet in the 36 hole final for the club title. In the semi-final frame O'Connor defeated Tod Hardy, 8 and 7, while Vollmer defeated Francis Clary, 1 up. The qualifying round in the annual men's public parks invitation tournament will start tomorrow. Entries will be received at the tee up to 10:30 o'clock. Three flights of sixteen each will qualify for match play, which will be finished Wednesday.

ACACIA.

In the semi-finals of the club championship tournament, Ray Martin defeated C. C. Darnell, 3 and 2, and Ray Biegler eliminated B. M. Hamilton, 2 and 1. Winners in the class C semi-finals were B. Bittler, who defeated R. W. Emerson, 1 up, and Dr. D. E. Singleton, who finished with a margin of 3 and 2 over W. L. Bourland.

ILLINOIS.

Duplicate victories of 4 and 3 featured the semi-finals in the club championship. W. Ahlschlager defeated A. C. Hammond and C. M. Nichols disposed of R. Gambrill. The qualifying round for the President's trophy will be played next Saturday.

AMERICAN LEGION.

H. Elton Pease, chairman of the committee in charge of the annual golf tournament of the American Legion, which will be held Tuesday at Green Valley, announces that the entry list has far exceeded expectations. The prize list prizes at stake are the individual championship trophies and cups for the low net scores.

NORTH SHORE.

The match play against par was taken by S. S. Lenzen, who was 1 up on par. In the club championship matches H. H. Harrison, class A, defeated B. C. Bosser. In class B an interesting match was played by Glenn Briggs and Lloyd Heth, the former winning. P. P. Merrill defeated H. H. Kuhl in class C and H. A. Gould defeated E. W. Eaton.

IN the Class A handicap competition at Westward Ho yesterday five men were tied for first place. All had net scores of 75. They were: R. B. White, A. F. Galbraith, A. E. Appleyard, H. B. Royer, and J. A. Romer In Class B the low man was A. W. Adams and W. K. McIntosh won in Class C. The semi-final matches for the club championship resulted in the following manner: W. H. Shuman defeated D. M. Huntington, 2 and 1, and E. L. Gatke defeated T. E. McGregor, 6 and 4.

OAK PARK.

F. M. Pebble had three victories, winning the class A handicap event with 77—4—73, the low gross prize in the sweepstakes, and his first round match in the club championship tournament, 2 up, against G. C. Edwards. In class B of the handicap event, H. A. Knight won with 86—14—72. A. N. Martin, 92—19—73, and C. W. Hertel, 96—23—73, tied in class C. Martin winning the draw. N. G. Moore won in class D with the 109—26—77. Other matches in the championship tournament were decided as follows: Charles Speakman defeated W. F. Chiniquy, 1 up; C. V. Williams defeated N. H. Davis, 1 up; L. D. Terrio defeated A. A. Bates, 2 up; C. L. Pennison defeated M. A. Evans, 1 up; J. P. Hook defeated E. L. Hartig, 2 and 1; R. D. Stevenson defeated W. H. Spear, 2 and 1. The annual Auchtermuchty tournament will be played next Wednesday and Thursday.

RIDGE.

A tie resulted in the blind bogey contest. C. E. Carner and L. H. Powell divided the honors. Today J. K. Lamb and his son, Mack, will fight an 18 hole battle in the semi-final match for the club championship.

INDIAN HILL.

There was an 18 hole match play against par, and H. C. O'Brien won. Mr. O'Brien was 2 up to par. D. D. Fuller was second, being even with par, and O. M. Burton, who was 1 down, was third. L. E. Hart, A. A. Bebe, and G. H. Leslie were tied for fourth place. Each was 2 down to par. In one semi-final match for the club championship, R. O. Lord defeated D. D. Fuller, 1 up, in 18 holes.

GLEN OAK.

Third round matches in the club championship furnished great sport for the members. Fred S. Wilcoxen, a noted long ball hitter, defeated William Eickelberg. W. S. Corbley defeated D. H. Tweedie, and A. W. Drechsler defeated William Eickelberg. Three men were tied for the blind bogey prize. They were: Frank McGill, J. V. O'Neil, and George Wiley.

ROB ROY LINK.

"Low net partners' competition over 18 holes." Such was the announcement on the programs. About fifty teams took part. R. H. Ritchie and C. L. Poole, who had a total net score of 156, won the contest. The club members are making preparations for the annual Hullaballoo party to be held next Wednesday and Thursday.

BUTTERFIELD.

There were weird costumes on the course. There were prizes for the golfers who had the strangest costumes and J. P. MacFarland won. J. Bundscho won second prize. As it was an "18 hole costume meet" the scores of the masqueraders were also taken into consideration, and H. Meiners, 88—12—76, and G. H. Karney, 93—17—76, were tied for low net.

BROOKWOOD.

The ball sweepstakes contest was won by H. W. Markward, 82—13—69. An exhibition of golf will be staged today by Chick Evans, Capt. E. F. Carter, Frank Adams, and David Kearns.

ONWENTSIA.

Finishing 2 up on par, Newell Augur won the Onwentsia goblet. L. O. Wilson was all even.

LA GRANGE.

The club championship title lodged with R. T. Franklin, who defeated W. A. Butzen, 2 and 1. In the third flight, B. W. Dull defeated J. C. Lewellyn, 3 and 2. Winners in the week-end medal play event were C. G. Carter, 88—16—72, and E. T. Franklin, 75—1—74.

FLOSSMOOR.

Members competed in a class medal play event, the winners being as follows: Class A—C. P. Thompson, 86—11—75. Class B—C. G. Nimmons, 85—1—84. Class C—S. E. Stewart, 94—19—75.

LEE THILTGES, with 78—1—77, won the playoff against E. S. Hammond, 97—14—83, and A. P. Riley, 99—15—74, other winners in Whiting cup flights at Calumet yesterday. This made Thiltges' second victory in the event, the other being recorded in 1921. Flight final winners in the competition for the Ashcraft cup were Thiltges, who defeated J. W. Bristol, 5 and 3; R. A. Härkrader, who defeated J. T. Morrison, 4 and 2, and N. Wiersma, who eliminated S. F. Carter, 1 up. The playoff is scheduled next Saturday. Winners in the sweepstakes were R. M. Sommers, 77—3—74; Walter L. Eulass, 82—8—74, and D. C. Wing, 95—20—75.

U. S. G. A.

Returns in the national green section tournament against par will soon be compiled, according to Executive Secretary T. J. McMahon, and the respective winners in the men and women's divisions announced.

PAINT, OIL, AND VARNISH G. C.

The final tournament of the season will be played next Tuesday at the Illinois Golf club. While there will be keen competition for the usual prizes, interest centers largely around the contest for the Directors' cup, which has remained in competition since 1904. Among the perennial winners have been R. W. Evans, Howard Elting, S. E. Harries, O. J. Buck, E. B. Hamilton, D. C. Plummer, S. F. Brigham, George E. Watson, Frank S. Hancock, Dwight W. Bennett, Edward D. Murphy, William T. Sheffield, Walter Crowdus, James B. Day, Carl Smith, William J. Hough, Beverly F. Hall, and William A. Sanders.

MUSICIANS' GOLF CLUB.

Claude Stewart won the feature match in the second round of competition for the Tom Murray cup, defeating Max Thompson, 1 up. Al Elrod defeated J. Bjornson, 4 and 2; Charles Stone Jr. defeated Harry Barry, 1 up; Charles Gould defeated Al Rackett, 5 and 4. The team match against the Press Golf club will be played Tuesday, Sept. 29, at Willmette.

SKOKIE.

A. Shiverick won the Bluffs cup with 80—7—73, and also his first match in the second round of the club championship tournament. Results follow: G. Murch defeated C. W. McGuire, 3 and 1; S. Hopkins defeated Fred W. Hill, 3 and 2; Bill Preston defeated J. C. Cormack, 2 and 1. In the competition for the putting prize, L. McCurdy, Dr. Cornell, and Hill tied with 37 strokes.

MIDLOTHIAN.

A card of 83—12—71 gave Gordon Booth the Lloyd R. Maxwell trophy and also first prize in the sweepstakes for class A and B players. Other sweepstake winners were: A and B—William Buss, 84—12—72; D. R. McKay, 84—12—72; F. M. Warden, 81—6—75. C and D—F. E. Place, 98—22—76; E. A. Oliver, 96—19—77; R. A. Born, 95—18—77; W. Kistner, 97—20—77.

IDLEWILD.

Max Merkenfeld and Elmer won the annual father and sons tournament, defeating L. A. Grossman and Richard, 2 and 1, in the final round.

BEVERLY.

The club title, which frequently has alternated between Dr. H. A. Duffy and Dr. W. D. Mahoney, went to the latter yesterday after a battle that went to the 39th green. J. H. Dunbar, with 83—11—72, led in the qualifying round of the competition for the Casey & Hill trophy. Players in this event were paired for the first match round as follows: Dunbar vs. H. Beck, W. L. Cook vs. C. Fredbloom, H. Cory vs. C. B. Hazelwood, W. P. Johnston vs. A. E. Chapman, J. J. Monahan vs. C. D. Dulebo, R. H. Roberts vs. F. H. Holmes, Dr. B. A. Duffy vs. J. A. Black, M. J. Moriarity vs. S. W. Sigler. Winners in the blind bogey event were S. K. Milligan, G. W. Hillyer, Y. H. Munnecke, Leonard Hicks, J. W. Casey, J. A. Black.

MAYWOOD.

E. A. Schultz had 77 for low gross and J. W. Hitwell, 103—22—81, had low net in the qualifying round of the President and Vice President tournament. In the finals of the class C tournament F. H. Hanson defeated T. Moynihan, 2 and 1.

NORTH SHORE A. F. & A. M.

The annual tournament was played at Crystal Lake Country club. Low net for 36 holes was won by E. D. Becker. Low gross for the same distance went to F. C. Crowell. Henry Hector won the blind bogey contest.

SARAZEN-EVANS COMBINE BEATS HAGEN AND SMITH

Gene Sarazen and Chick Evans defeated Walter Hagen, the P. G. A. champion, and MacDonald Smith, western open champion, 4 and 3, in a best ball match at eighteen holes over the Edgewater course yesterday. The bye holes were played out. Sarazen and Evans had a medal score of 65 and the losers had a 69.

Evans was the star performer of the day. His individual card totaled 69 strokes, 3 under par. Sarazen went like wildfire on the first nine, shooting a 33 and equaling the record, held by Evans, for that nine. On the in nine Sarazen took three putts on five greens, the 10, 13, 14, 16 and 18. The little fellow finished the nine with 39 strokes for a total of 72, even par.

Hagen and Smith Distanced.

Hagen and Smith did not win a hole up to the fifteenth green. They took the sixteenth with a brace of birdies, but it was too late then to start a rally. Evans and Sarazen had won the match on the fifteenth, 4 up and 3 to go.

Sarazen won the first hole with a birdie 3. The second was halved. Chick and Gene won the third by playing it in par, while Smith and Hagen each took an extra putt. Sarazen got a par 3 on the fourth and won the hole. He and Evans were three up. The next four holes were halved. At the ninth both Sarazen and Evans had birdie threes and won the hole. They were 4 up at the turn.

Ends at Sixth Hole.

On the first six holes of the incoming nine the players shot excellent golf and the holes were halved. The match ended on the sixth hole of the last nine. The best ball cards follow:

HINSDALE.

Goodwin Clark, after holding the club title for four years, succumbed yesterday to Gardner Brown, 2 and 1, 36 holes. In the women's championship Mrs. Robert M. Cutting defeated Mrs. L. N. Brechon, 7 and 6. Players having won no prizes this season competed in the Last Chance tournament. Winners of the low gross and net prizes follow: Class A—J. M. Miksak and C. M. Olson. Class B—F. G. Allen and S. F. Beatty. Class C—A. Witt and W. B. Burr. Class D—J. F. Chesbro and A. R. Leroy.

PARK RIDGE.

T. P. Kelly won the match play against par. Kelly finished the eighteen holes even up with par.

Heavy Fall Rains Bring Joy to Shore Bird Hunters

BY BOB BECKER.

When the weatherman turned on the rain faucets some days ago to drench the middle western states he caused songs of thanksgiving to rise from the shore bird hunters. As the pelting rains flooded marsh and lowlands and turned the black loam of cultivated fields into mucky areas, we could almost hear the jacksnipe enthusiasts emitting many loud cheers because a dry fall with few feeding grounds for the jacks means poor hunting.

The jacksnipe, skillful, acrobatic flyer of the marshes, must have his moist, oozy lowlands to be happy. Such areas of ground mean food to him, and he'll linger on his southward journey if the weather man will lend a hand and provide plenty of outdoor cafeterias.

A couple of years ago when we were gunning on a 500 acre farm located on the lowlands near a river in the middle west, we well remember how a heavy downpour lasting most of a day and night saved the day for us and the shore birds.

We wanted some jacksnipe and yellow leg shooting on the farm, and we knew that if it rained enough to soak up the rich, black river bottom silt and fill up a few holes in the marshes we'd be sure to get both species of shore birds and possibly a few teal. The weather man heeded our urging, soaked up the landscape and one cloudy, windy day we hit for the marsh ready for action.

Wearing high boots, we skidded, slithered, and slipped through a former corn field on the farm which was nothing less than a sea of mud. It was alive with jacks, and O boy, the shooting. At the edge of one pond formed by the semi-cloudburst we found both the lesser and greater yellowlegs which could be whistled within gun range. Even two potholes in the marsh didn't disappoint us as one shoveler duck and three teal were bagged after we had crawled for what seemed a mile through wet grass and water to get within gun range.

The jacksnipe and the woodcock are two of the shore birds that get their food by boring into the soft muck. The former especially is not easy to get to, as it means tough walking on soft footing and the carrying around of many pounds of mud on your boots for hour after hour. It's a case of slish, slosh, slip, and slide until it seems as if your feet weigh a ton. But the sport is worth the price. Give us the fast flying jacks, a 20 or 16 gauge gun and plenty of shells and we're sitting on top of the world.

ADA MACKENZIE WINS CANADIAN OPEN GOLF TITLE

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Miss Ada MacKenzie of the Mississagua club of Toronto won the Canadian women's open golf championship today, being the first Canadian woman to capture this title since she herself held it in 1919. She defeated Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of the Royal Ottawa Golf club in the final match of 36 holes, 5 and 4.

Miss MacKenzie took the lead soon after the completion of the first round and stayed in front until the finish. The two were even at the end of the first 18 holes, but at the 27th Miss MacKenzie was three up, and the match ended on the thirty-second green.

This was the third appearance in the final round for both Miss MacKenzie and Mrs. Fraser, the latter having won in 1920, when she was Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta, Ga.

MOOSEHEART ELEVEN WINS.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Employing a number of Knute Rockne trick plays, Mooseheart buried St. Charles High school eleven at St. Charles here today, 54 to 0.

WINNER OF TRIB SILVER SKATES IN GOLF FINALS

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Jack Stowell, TRIBUNE Silver Skates winner and Aurora Country club ace, and Albert Huske, eighteen year old Elgin boy, will meet next Saturday, Sept. 26, in the thirty-six hole finals for the Elgin Daily News Fox river valley amateur golf championship.

Both Huske and Stowell won with ease in today's semi-finals, Huske defeating Walter Seel, 7 and 6, while Stowell eliminated Wendell Muntz, local high school champion, 4 and 3. Huske's 38 for nine holes was the best medal score of the day.

ARMY GOLF PLAY ON TOMORROW

Fort Leavenworth, Kas., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Approximately twenty-five officers will begin trial play here tomorrow in preparation for the army national golf tournament which opens on the fort course Monday. Every army corps, except the first and ninth, has reported with entries.

FRANCE TO HAVE STRONG TEAM IN NET PLAY HERE

Despite the edict of the French army officials, which called back to the active service Rene La Coste, youthful star of the French Davis cup team who forced National Champion Tilden through five heroic sets in the challenge round of the international tournament, France will be ably represented in the first annual intersectional team tennis championships which start Thursday at the Chicago Town and Tennis club.

Jacques Brugnon, one of the greatest of the French players and a substitute on the Davis cup team, has been selected to take La Coste's place. Although not as colorful a player as La Coste, Brugnon is fully capable of holding his own against the best that America can produce.

Borotra Is Other Member.

Jean Borotra will be the other member of the French team. The Bounding Basque has had several days of rest since his gruelling matches in the Davis cup and national singles tournaments and should be in top shape. It will be his first appearance in Chicago.

José and Manuel Alonso will carry the colors of Spain. The brothers form one of the strongest of the invading combinations and should make a strong bid for title honors.

New York, according to word received last night, will be represented by S. Howard Voshell and A. H. Chapin Jr. Chapin has been substituted for Vincent Richards, who is reported in an eastern hospital.

Tilden Heads Phillies.

The elongated national champion Big Bill Tilden, will head the Philadelphia contingent. His teammate will be Wallace Johnson, the chop stroke artist, who replaces Sandy Wear for the trip west. The Chicago district has nominated Lucien Williams, Johnny Hennessey, and George Lott to match their skill against the invading teams.

The entries of the other districts are expected today and the draw will be made as soon as they are received.

What's causing this landslide of popularity?

Why are motorists everywhere turning from Fours and other Sixes to the New Oakland? Why are they placing orders for it in a volume which is taxing Oakland's capacity to supply?

One Reason is Oakland value—New prices, $70 to $350 lower, have established these new motor cars as unequaled investments.

Another Reason is Oakland quality—New bodies by Fisher, Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Four-Wheel Brake refinements are only a few of the more than 100 improvements.

Overshadowing All of course, is Oakland performance. Unmatched freedom from vibration due to the Harmonic Balancer, an exclusive feature, gives new emphasis to Oakland's speed, acceleration and flexibility.

Far ahead in every respect! That's the secret of the turn towards Oakland. That's why this car will win your favor over any other in the field!

Meeting .....29 | Clerical 25

Approaching collegiate and national industrial records, 700 employés of the Western Electric company competed in the company's annual field meet at the Hawthorne works playground yesterday. The games won by the Technical and Development department team with 83 points was featured by the smashing of six meet records and the equaling of two.

The big four of the Hawthorne works' athletic circles—Vosen, Stastny, Coaffe, and Wudi—led the tech outfit to victory. Coaffe proved the star of the meet by scoring thirteen points. Merchandise and Production won second place with 61½ points.

Robert L. Locke, a newcomer in Western Electric athletics, former southern intercollegiate champion, set a new meet mark of 11 feet 6 inches in the pole vault. Charlotte Schmiedl leaped 12 feet 9 inches for a new women's broad jump mark and Josephine Cisch set a new record in the women's high kick at 7 feet 4 inches. The Operating department boys' quartet set a new mark of :26 7-10 in the 220 yard relay. Other records to fall were the boys' 75 yards dash, won by F. Moeller in :08 1-5, and the boys' broad jump, in which Steven Halac leaped 19 feet 2½ inches. Summaries:

30 REPORT FOR GRID PRACTICE AT LAKE FOREST

Seven letter men are in the football squad with which Coach Jones of Lake Forest academy started practice this week. He expects to build a team around these veterans that will maintain the school record. Only four games have been lost in the last five years.

Coach Jones will have as assistants Lloyd Bergen, a graduate of the academy, who afterwards went to Princeton, where he made the varsity as guard, and Maj. Weir of West Point fame. The first game will be played Oct. 3 with Elmhurst academy at Lake Forest.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Miss Marjorie Foy, 8320 N. Sacramento-blvd., Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Who is your pre-season choice to win the Western conference football championship?

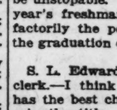
Where Asked.

Randolph street at Michigan avenue.

The Answers.

George Angel, 40 East Walton place, law student. — I pick Illinois to win the Big Ten championship. Coach Zuppke will build another great eleven around "Red" Grange. He has material for a strong defensive squad and in Grange has the nucleus for a whirlwind running attack.

Charles E. Sepple, 4611 Michigan avenue, physician.—Illinois this year will beat all of its conference opponents and will win the Big Ten title. Coach Zuppke has good material left from last season and several of the newcomers look promising. If his teammates will give him interference, Grange will have another big year.



W. Yandell, 337 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, clerk.—I think Capt. Grange and his Illini teammates will win the Big Ten championship. If Grange's work in the last two years is a criterion of what we may expect in 1925, he will be unstopable. I look for some of last year's freshman players to fill satisfactorily the positions left vacant by the graduation of 1924 varsity athletes.

S. L. Edwards, 1553 Fargo avenue, clerk.—I think Illinois has the best chance to win the title. There is no school in the conference with a player the caliber of "Red" Grange. Coach Zuppke has last year's second string players available this season to fill the vacancies of the regular lineup.

E. F. Lawson, 179 North Michigan avenue, dental student. —I pick Illinois. Despite reverses late in the season, Illinois was the outstanding conference eleven of 1924 and most of the athletes who made up that splendid team are back this fall. "Red" Grange should be an inspiration to his teammates.

IOWA X-COUNTRY TEAM SCHEDULES FOUR MEETS

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Iowa's cross-country team will compete in three dual meets and the western conference championships affair this fall, it was announced by George T. Bresnahan, Hawkeye track coach. The schedule follows:

Oct. 31—Illinois at Iowa.
Nov. 7—Wisconsin at Iowa.
Nov. 14—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
Nov. 21—Western conference championship meet at a place to be decided later by the conference committee.

Ebbets Share of Robins Put at $1,250,000 by Heirs

New York, Sept. 19.—Stephen McKeever, vice president of the Brooklyn National League baseball club, opened negotiations with the heirs of the late Charles Ebbets today to purchase their half interest in the franchise and the realty holdings of the club. The heirs of the late president were said to have asked $1,250,000 for their interests and negotiations will be continued next week.

PURPLE ALUMNI WATCH TEAMS IN AERIAL DRILL

Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite treated 1,500 Northwestern alumni to a half hour's aerial battle between two teams picked from his large squad of varsity candidates yesterday. The alumni turned out at the suggestion and invitation of Kenneth L. Wilson, new athletic director, who wanted the backers of the Wildcats to get an early season view of them.

It was the first time since practice started Tuesday that teams had been lined up to go through the signals.

Lineup of the Teams.

Capt. Lowry at center, Greenburg and Moore in guard positions, Siebenmann and Johnson tackles, and Seidel and Fisher, ends, made up the line of the first team. Ziggy Solheim was in his old position at quarter back, Baker and White at the halves, and Lewis at full.

On the second team were Dorchester and Leimert, alternating at center; Daly and Rahr, guards; Bruce and Kuiper, tackles, and Meilick and Bovick, ends. Rusch ran the team from quarter, Froelich was at full and Gustafson and Schumaker shared the work of the halves.

The game was confined entirely to passing and proved the old Baker-White combination still worked to advantage. The teams were evenly matched and seesawed up and down the field. Thistlethwaite is laying stress on the aerial game and should perfect this department this year.

Tackling Is Practiced.

More drill on fundamentals, especially tackling, was in order during the afternoon. This is the first time the squad has had a long workout on the dummy and some powerful tackling was seen. Bob Johnson, one of the best tackle candidates, hit the dummy with such force that he broke the hoist rope.

MAROONS SCRIMMAGE

The first taste of real football was given University of Chicago football men yesterday when Coach A. A. Stagg lined up two teams, putting them through a stiff scrimmage which lasted more than an hour. Three sets of backs were used, and of the lot Stanley Rouse, half back, stood out for his all around ability.

Rouse passed nicely and carried the ball for good gains, once getting loose for a fifty yard run. Raynor Timme, full back, a center of considerable interest since his return to the Midway, after having starred against Princeton in 1921, made a favorable impression.

Coach Stagg used Drain and Abbott at quarter back in the early part of the fracas, Bob Curley replacing the former, who scored the only points of the session by booting a drop kick over the bar. Francis, McCarty and Timme were the fulls. Marks, Kernwein, Fulton, Rouse, Duvall, and McKinney were the half backs.

Stagg tried out nearly all of his line candidates. Baker, Kennedy, Rouse, Moore, and Greenebaum were used at center, none showing outstanding attributes.

North Dakota Aggies Lose Bliss, Star End

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 19.—(AP)—North Dakota Agricultural college football prospects were handed a jolt today when George Bliss of Berkeley, Cal., announced that he will not join the Bison ranks again this fall. Bliss, who starred at end for the last two seasons, and was counted on as a fixture at that post this fall, said that he will leave here Sunday for Eugene, Ore., where he will take charge of the freshmen team at Oregon university.

IOWA BASEBALL MEN WORKING

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Fall baseball has come to Iowa for the first time in the memory of the oldest janitor. Coach Otto Vogel has called out the varsity men in the hope of making better hitters of the Hawks. The freshmen battery men also have been ordered out. Coach Vogel will divide his time between baseball and assisting with football.

Officials for Western Bike Championship Appointed

Officials who will handle the Western Amateur Outdoor Bicycle championships which will be decided at Soldiers field, Grant park, next Sunday, were announced today by the directors of the meet.

Paddy Harmon, promoter of the six day bike races in Chicago, and Charles A. Dean, chairman of the track and field committee of the A. A. U. Central association, were named as referees. The starter will be Julian T. Fitzgerald, prominent local sportsman and western representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America. Edward A. Mahlke was chosen as chief clerk of the course, and Robert J. Little chief judge of the finish.

The track in Soldiers field has been rolled and banked at the turns so it makes an ideal surface for racing. The oval is wide enough to allow plenty of room for the riders to pass one another without danger of spills, and with the new surfacing they should speed over it to new records.

The meet is attracting the entries of all of the better known riders in the middle west, including the two Chicago favorites, Eddie Markner and Francis Allen, speed skating champion.

Merkner is the heavy favorite to take individual honors in the meet. The speedy Chicago wheelman recently won the national senior bike championships and his riding was so sensational that he received numerous offers to enter the professional ranks. He will need to be in top shape, however, to defend his honors against the star field, which includes several state champions.

HIGHER CIRCUITS PAY $25,000 FOR 3 EYES PLAYERS

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Sales of players to higher classed circuits will bring approximately $25,000 to the treasuries of Three Eyes league clubs. Not all of the deals are closed, but will be in the near future.

Scouts have been trailing players of the circuit all through the season and have made recommendations that will be acted upon shortly. While the price was not announced, it is believed that the sum paid by Brooklyn for Pitcher Elliot of Terre Haute is the highest. Elliot ranked with the leading flingers of the loop. This season he won 25 out of 32 games.

The sale of First Baseman McGee of Peoria to Washington also is believed to have been made at a high figure. Bloomington sold Outfielder Blenkiron to New Jersey for $2,500. The youngster made a remarkable showing with the Bloomers during the recent season, both afield and at bat.

Evansville has sold Pitcher Barnabee to Shreveport. The player joined the Evas two years ago as a first sacker, but has been more valuable to the club as a pitcher.

LAWRENCE LOSES DUNHAM, TACKLE

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Failure of Ray Dunham, 217 pound all-state and midwest tackle of the 1924 Lawrence college football team, to return to school this fall will leave another big hole in the line, already riddled by the graduation of seven players. The big tackle was counted on to do all the place kicking.

MISSOURI BARS FROSH-VARSITY GRID CLASHES

Columbia, Mo., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Scrimmage against opponents' plays, which have been placed in the hands of freshman football men, is a thing of the past for the University of Missouri varsity, and from now on the varsity scrubs must furnish the opposition for the regulars, according to C. L. Brewer, director of freshman athletics, who today outlined a new plan for the operation of freshman athletics here.

With the avowed purpose of giving the yearlings as much physical development as possible, the new plan will divide the freshman squad into four teams, each with its individual coaches and a round robin schedule of games with the other yearling teams. These freshman games will be played upon Saturdays during the football season that the Missouri varsity is playing on foreign fields.

Brewer expects the new system to add materially to the strength of Missouri varsity teams within the next few years. It will open the way for the development of a greater number of football players and will enable freshman coaches to devote more time to fundamental tactics.

Iron and Steel Bowlers Start Season on Tuesday

The Iron and Steel Industrial Bowling league will start its season Tuesday evening at 6:15 o'clock at Leo Schuenemann's alleys, Van Buren street and Ashland boulevard. The league is composed of the following firms:

Acme Steel company; A. M. Castle & Co.; General American Tank Car company; Inland Steel company; J. T. Ryerson & Son, Inc.; Scully Steel and Iron company; Vierling Steel Works; Weitzel Iron Works.

STONE, OWENS MIX TOMORROW AT E. CHICAGO

While Ad Stone of Philadelphia and Ernie Owens of California are attempting to settle a long standing question of boxing supremacy at East Chicago tomorrow night, returns of the world's welterweight championship bout between Micky Walker, the title holder, and Challenger Dave Shade will be announced from the ring.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by the promoters, who will receive round by round report over a special wire at the ringside. Walker and Shade have shown their wares before the local fistic fraternity and opinion is about equally divided as to the result.

Despite the postponements and subsequent disappointment, the fighters resumed training with rekindled interest, with the result both are in superb condition. Their boxing has improved, and they are prepared to go ten rounds or less at a fast pace. Stone is a slight favorite, because of greater experience, while Owens is given an excellent chance, because of his dangerous right hand. Neither will scale over 175 pounds, the light heavyweight limit, according to their managers.

Tiger Jack Burns of California and Jimmy McDermott, a protégé of Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, will meet in the ten round semi-windup at 118 pounds. Four other bouts complete the card, which will open at 8:30 o'clock.

SCORE EVENED IN YACHT RACES BY SCANDINAVIANS

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Scandinavian Yacht Racing union leveled the count in the six meter international championships with the American boats by taking second, third, fourth, and eighth places today. The invading and United States teams have won two races apiece. The combination winning four races first will win the championship.

The Lanal, owned by Herman F. Whiton and sailed by Richard Boardman, finished first today, one minute and 47 seconds ahead of the Norwegian entry, Oslo, owned by Crown Prince Olav. The Scandinavians scored 19 points to America's 17¼. The United States leads in the point score in the series by 77¾ to 66¼ for the four races.

The yachts sailed over a triangular course of six miles, twice around.

Canadian Woman Makes New Mark in Century Dash

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A new world's record for the women's 100 yard dash was made by Fannie Rosenfeldt of Toronto, at the Canadian National exhibition's international track and field meet this afternoon. Miss Rosenfeldt ran the distance in 11 seconds flat.

Joie Ray of Chicago finished seventh in the one mile open handicap, won by St. Clair Davidson of Listowel, Ont. Ray, starting from scratch, finished thirty yards behind the winner.

SEVEN VETERANS AFTER PLACES ON ST. VIATOR ELEVEN

BOURBONNAIS, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—With forty candidates out for the St. Viator football team, Coach Glaze has little to worry about since seven of these men earned letters and proved themselves capable performers last season. After working with the men since last Monday, the Bourbonnais coach is convinced St. Viator will have a well balanced team.

If men are found to replace Winterhalter and Donnelly, 1924 ends, everything will be rosy with the Viator coach.

Coach Glaze will point his team for the game with Columbia college of Dubuque at Soldiers field, Chicago, Armistice day. The schedule:

Oct. 3, Northwestern at St. Viator; Oct. 10, St. Viator at Eureka; Oct. 16, St. Viator at Lombard; Oct. 24, Valparaiso U. at St. Viator [homecoming]; Oct. 31, Illinois Wesleyan at St. Viator; Nov. 6, St. Viator at Bradley; Nov. 11, Columbia college vs. St. Viator at Chicago; Nov. 21, St. Viator at Millikin; Nov. 26, St. Viator at De Paul university.

ARKANSAS GRID STAR CHARGED WITH BURGLARY

Lawrence, Kans., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Lee Derry, Arkansas university football star, was returned from Fayetteville today in custody of Sheriff W. J. Cummings of this county to face a charge of robbing the Sigma Phi Epsilon house here the morning of Sept. 10.

Four traveling bags filled with clothing brought back from Fayetteville by the sheriff have been identified by members of the fraternity as property taken from their house. Several watches still are missing.

Sheriff Cummings said that Derry had told him the addresses of three places in Kansas City where watches had been sold. While these admissions were made by Derry, the football player had refused to make a formal confession or any complete statement, the sheriff said.

SOCCER OFFICIALS ASK PAY BOOST; SIX GAMES TODAY

The Major Soccer league will inaugurate the fall season today with six games scheduled, three in division A and three in division B.

The Illinois Referees' association has notified league officials that its members will not work for the old rate of $7 a game. The new demand is for $10 a contest, and league officials cannot grant the increase until each club in the circuit has had two weeks' notice. If no agreement is reached with the referees' association it is probable that volunteer officials will handle the opening games.

In the A division the Brickies meet Sparta at 27th street and Kostner avenue, the Canadian club tangles with the Olympias at De Paul field, and the Thistles take on the champion Pullman at 47th avenue and 79th street.

The B division games will see the North Shores and the Buda A. A. at Evanston, the British Legion and the Simmons company at Kenosha, and Sture and Coal City at Potomac and Leclaire avenues. The schedule:

MAJOR LEAGUE.

DIVISION A—Brickmayers vs. Sparta at Twenty-seventh street and Kostner avenue; Canadian Club vs. Olympia at De Paul field, Sheffield and Webster avenues; Thistles vs. Pullman at Forty-seventh avenue and Nineteenth street.

DIVISION B—North Shores and Buds at Evanston; British Legion vs. Simmons at Kenosha; Coal City vs. Sture at Potomac and Leclaire avenues.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE.

FIRST DIVISION—Sture II. vs. Ravenswood at Potomac and Leclaire avenues; Swedish A. A. vs. Sparta II. at Winnemac and Robey; Jugo-Slavia vs. Norwegian A. A. at Thirty-eighth and Wells streets.

SECOND DIVISION—Norwegians II. vs. Scandinavians at Forty-fifth and Fullerton avenues [1:30 p.m.]; Danish A. A. vs. Roosevelt A. C. at Forty-fifth and Fullerton avenues; Dreft A. A. vs. Swedish II. at Seventy-sixth and Ingleside; Workers Sport A. A. vs. Olympia II. at Winnemac and Robey.

THIRD DIVISION—Workers II. vs. Chicago Sport Club at Winnemac and Robey [1:30 p.m.]; Sparta III. vs. Viking F. C. at Twenty-seventh and Kostner [1:30 p.m.].

SONS OF ST. GEORGE LEAGUE.

NORTH DIVISION—Laburnum vs. White Rose; Ivory vs. Olive Branch; Moss Rose vs. Forest City.

SOUTH DIVISION—Red Rose vs. Snowdrop; Mistletoe vs. Sunflower; Mayflower vs. Good Samaritan.

Unless otherwise noted, all games start at 3 p. m.

Point Judith Poloists Beat Oglethorpe, 14 to 9

Bryn Mawr., Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Point Judith, R. I., polo team defeated the Fort Oglethorpe quartet, 14 to 9, in the semi-final round today for the president's cup. The winner will meet Meadowbrook of Long Island, in the final next week.

W. M. SHAW, Jr.

AT press time the ancient and honorable game of golf, aided and abetted by nearly a half million automobiles, had chalked up exactly 117 beautiful courses to its credit in the Chicago driving zone. All of the country clubs and courses listed officially by any Chicago agency and a score never before located on official maps are shown in this remarkable motor-golf chart.

The courses and clubs are listed alphabetically, with their location key to the right. In locating them use the key letters at the bottom of the map and the key numbers in the right hand column. Thus, the Edgebrook club is listed "N-8. No. 27." The intersection of lines drawn through the key number 8 and letter N on the map shown course 27 just off the Milwaukee avenue road north of Chicago.

All of the clubs and courses are now located on good roads. Concrete trunk lines of the state and county systems lead to the majority. Others lie along good, all weather gravel and stone roads.

Popular Trails.

The Yellowstone trail from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., the Lincoln highway from New York City to San Francisco, the National Old Trails road from Washington, D. C., to Los Angeles, Cal., and the Old Spanish trail from Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego, Cal., are the four coast to coast routes most favored by automobile tourists.

Little Cab.

A motorcycle company, it is stated, will shortly introduce a three-wheel two passenger taxicab, which, it is claimed, will not only take up far less room on the streets, but will cost less than half of what the present taxicabs do to operate. Similar vehicles are now in use in Berlin and caused the recent taxicab strike in that city.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

CHAMPIONS of the smaller automobile manufacturers are out with some interesting figures to confute the prediction that a few large producers will soon supply the entire American motor demand. C. W. Hadden, general sales manager for Velie, declared yesterday that during the first six months of 1925 twelve of the smaller manufacturers showed an increase of 40 per cent in shipments as compared with an average of 9½ per cent for the entire industry. Velie's August demand, he added, doubled that of a year ago. In Chicago the Velie-Bell company last week opened its new quarters at 2613 Michigan avenue.

A number of leading automobile distributors along the Row have adopted the new Ajax metal spring housing as extra equipment on new cars before they are delivered to owners. The popular new accessory has established headquarters at 3532 Wentworth avenue for Chicago installations. The process includes treatment of automobile springs by a patented rust preventative and grease. A canvas gasket is then installed and a new, water and dirt proof metal cover locked over the spring. Spring clips are not disturbed by the new method, which is guaranteed to prevent spring squeaks and to eliminate spring troubles for two years.

Peerless sales for August exceeded the record of August, 1924, by 68 per cent, according to factory announcement.

Two sporting celebrities stepped into the automobile limelight last week by signing the dotted line for new 1926 models. Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cardinals, put his batting eye to work and emerged from the St. Louis row possessing a new Pierce Arrow series 80 coach. Gerald O. Patterson, Australian tennis champ, selected a Pierce Arrow series 80 runabout for his American tour.

Let us show you how to get a BETTER GARAGE for your money

Not merely better in materials and workmanship but scientifically designed and constructed to make it freeze-proof even when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero.

An ordinary garage is merely a thin shell of wood or brick through which heat passes like water through a sieve. A Union Insulated Garage is a double-walled structure with insulating material between the walls, and the roof and floor are also insulated. In other words it is built like a fireless cooker, or a thermos bottle, and it conserves heat just as they do.

When you run your warm car into a Union Insulated Garage on a cold night it stays warm for hours. You need no other heat to keep it from freezing than that contained in the car itself.

For thirty years we have specialized in the building of cold storage plants and every other kind of insulated structure. Now we have organized a department for building Insulated Garages. They cost but little more than an ordinary garage and monthly payments can be arranged not greatly in excess of what you now pay for a rented garage.

Write, phone or call, and we will be glad to show you how to get a better garage for your money

VELIE
ROYAL SEDAN
An Achievement in Enduring Beauty and Value

Impressive Appearance and Performance The Velie Royal Sedan is designed for those motorists who seek relief from the commonplace. It offers individuality without eccentricity, power without waste, luxury without extravagance. These—plus enduring service—coupled with rare dependability. In a word, it is the car that complements both good taste and business judgment, that remains impressive when passing fads have lost their charm.

Appointments and Convenience Its interior is fully in keeping with its exterior beauty and more than satisfying performance. Upholstery and fittings are of the character that identify the completeness of far more costly cars.

Power Velvety and silent power—an outstanding characteristic of the Velie is due to the inherent balance of the mighty Velie built airplane type motor and its full forced feed system of lubrication. Mature, non-experimental engineering is expressed in the smooth operation of every mechanical unit.

Come and See This Velie We invite you to inspect the Velie Royal Sedan, or to allow us to demonstrate it to you at the time and place that best suits your convenience.

Safety Lockheed Hydraulic Four Wheel Brakes and the greater traction surface of six inch low pressure balloon tires insure quick, certain control of the Velie under all conditions of road, weather and traffic.

Silence Every moving part of the engine is continually and automatically bathed in oil, by an absolutely thorough system that assures perfect and almost silent functioning of the engine at all times.

Chicago Highways First on State's Bond Issue List

Illinois Authorities Promise Traffic Relief in 1926.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

STATE relief for the automobile congestion which is making Chicago one of the most dangerous and costly traffic centers in the world is promised as the first step in the 1926 apportionment of the new $100,000,000 Illinois highway bond issue.

Surveying, designating, and contracting for state pavements on the important new gateway routes such as North avenue, St. Charles road, the South Park avenue extension, and several additional highway entrances to the city and Cook county will be ordered first under the supplementary bond issue program.

Consideration of the state's proposed doubling of pavement widths on its present main gateway roads, including such trunks as Roosevelt road, Lake street, Milwaukee avenue, Halsted street, and Ogden avenue, will then be taken up by the Illinois highway authorities. Both active officials of the state highway department and the Illinois highway advisory board have voiced their approval of the Cook county and regional highway widening campaigns and have promised their cooperation in working out the huge improvement program.

The first indication of how the new bond issue funds will be employed next year when completion of the original $60,000,000 road system makes the new funds legally available came at a meetings of the Illinois highway advisory board held in Kankakee last week during the annual fair and Small roundup. Senator Richard Meentz, Charles M. Hayes of Chicago, and other members of the board conferred with Col. C. M. Miller, director of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, state superintendent of highways, and discussed the best methods of handling the colossal supplementary road program.

Reports read at the meeting show that approximately 300 miles remain to be paved on the original bond issue network of nearly 4,000 miles. All but 143 miles of this total is under contract and should be finished and opened to traffic before Jan. 1. Lawsuits, right of way controversies, and engineering obstacles make it impossible this year to contract the small route gaps making up the undeveloped 143 miles. The department hopes to have the last tangles cleared away by spring, however, and to start then on a 1,000-miles-a-year building program covering the new bond issue roads.

"Of course, every county and township in the state feels that its own new bond issue road is the most important piece of pavement on the list and should be planned and contracted first on the program," said Senator Meentz following the meeting. "This is natural, and all of the demands will be given careful attention. Our first duty, however, is to rush through the preliminaries and start work on the stretches of road which are vital to state traffic. These vital stretches must be decided upon by competent engineers who can act without favor or prejudice. Road building has become America's greatest industry and must be handled as purely a business proposition.

"The board has agreed that roads in both bond issue systems which center in Chicago demand first consideration. It is there that our worst and most dangerous congestion has developed. State traffic naturally centers in the Chicago terminal and road conditions there demand immediate relief. Then, too, Cook county pays the lion's share of the state's highway revenue and it is only just that its serious road problems should be solved first in any general highway improvement plan.

"We want to get busy on the new Chicago gateway roads, which are all ready for construction, as the first step in our $100,000,000 plan. Other important state routes will be considered, too, along with the terminals, but they will include only the mileage which wants earliest traffic relief. The question of widening existing state pavements entering Chicago will be taken up as soon as possible and state coöperation will be given the wide road campaign already outlined by terminal interests."

One of the new terminal roads which heads the program list, according to board members, is bond issue route 68, the road connecting Wisconsin highway 57 with the Milwaukee-Waukegan highway north of Chicago. Paving of six miles on this road north of Gurnee will fill in the last gap on the new express traffic highway between Chicago and Milwaukee and allow through traffic to cover the 90 miles between the two terminals without touching traffic congestion and village and city streets in any of the north shore towns. The Wisconsin end of this road is all paved with the exception of a four mile contract now under construction just west of Racine. A dirt road meets the Wisconsin pavement at the Illinois state line and brings traffic south to the Waukegan road west of Waukegan.

BATTLING BRIGHT LIGHTS

Weary of the widespread violation of the coast headlight law, the Los Angeles police department recently entered into an active campaign to stop the night driving menace. They stopped more than 1,000 motorists during the first few nights of the campaign and gave them official slips calling for adjustment of glaring lights and a report to headquarters within twenty-four hours.

Is Your Car Spotless Inside?

Or are there spots on the seat covers, the upholstery or the inside of the top—spots which are embarrassing when you have guests in the car?

A little Energine will relieve you of that embarrassment. In fact, it just takes a few moments and a little Energine every now and then to keep the inside of your car spotless.

Carry a can in one of the pockets or in your tool kit. Energine is fine for removing grease from your hands after you have been working on the car. Get your handy can. It's only 35c at all drug, department or shoe stores.

Can Durability be Accurately Measured?

Case engineers measure the endurance of each part with the same accuracy as other engineers measure dimensions.

The Case method of building eliminates guess work. Case engineers know the "endurance factor" of every part. These parts of proven durability are so coordinated that definite, proven reliability results.

Case performance and reliability is a delightful revelation to those accustomed to the world's finest motor cars. Case owners never worry about transcontinental trips. To them each trip is a mere jaunt—just so many carefree, trouble-less days of pleasure.

The new Case is different. Drive it and you'll quickly see why. Talk to Case owners for they, better than we, can tell you of Case durability and reliability.

Four Wheel Brakes and Balloon Tires of course.

CASE

The 10 Year Car

The NEW MARMON

now becomes an even Greater Automobile because of new, important and far-reaching developments exclusive in Marmon at no increase in price

In driving this Greater New Marmon you will experience a smoothness of power flow and more pronounced acceleration than you have ever known. You will go from five miles an hour to maximum high speed, quietly, easily and with a swiftness which even Marmon has never before attained. On difficult hills, the car hangs on and pulls in high gear, smoothly, quietly and without apparent effort.

We strongly suggest to all who surround themselves with the fine things of life that they see the Greater New Marmon, even though it be for purposes of comparison only

"Its a Great Automobile"

Marmon now introduces what we believe to be the foremost and soundest contribution of the year to motor car engineering . . . By a new and ingenious application of proved principles, Marmon engineers have endowed the New Marmon with a magna-power quality, which attains a high water mark in motor car performance and efficiency

These amazing results are accomplished by an extremely advantageous combination of Double-Fire Ignition and the efficient New Marmon gas-intake system, in the proved Marmon valve-in-head type of engine.

Even with ordinary grades of gasoline, every atom is vaporized—is exploded between two fires—and the combustion accomplished instantly and completely. Naturally, this system is productive of greater fuel economy.

The Three-Way Oil Purifier (exclusively Marmon) increases the life of the engine by preserving the lubricating properties of the oil. It automatically removes all forms of extraneous matter from the oil—both solid and liquid. It distills—and passes back to the crankcase, only clean, pure oil. All vapors distilled out of the oil are returned to the combustion chamber and are consumed. It does all of these things automatically, in a simple, foolproof manner.

New Self-Lubricator Marmon engineers have gone even further to provide a car which mechanically and automatically does things which ordinarily would be sources of annoyance and expense. By means of the Self-Lubricator all of the wearing surfaces or bearings of the chassis which require frequent attention are now oiled simply by pushing a conveniently located pedal.

New Body Styles—Greater Values There is a wide range of body styles, including a line of four luxurious Standard Closed Cars—now at exactly open car price. These include two new body styles—the Victoria Coupe, for four passengers, and the Two-Passenger Coupe. Also the Standard Seven-Passenger Sedan only $75 more than the open car, and a comprehensive selection of DeLuxe models.

All models are extraordinarily roomy, richly upholstered and finished in colors refreshingly new and different.

Smallest Car Is on Its Way to National Shows

Trade Expected to Make Size Adapted to City Traffic.

EVERYTHING points to a new demand for smaller automobiles—smaller, in fact, than anything now used on American highways. This is the opinion of Edward S. Jordan.

Mr. Jordan is of the belief that this new demand will come from people who already drive automobiles. The smaller car will be used exclusively for city travel, its size doing much to solve the traffic problems in congested districts of our large cities.

Americans, however, will not go so far towards the little vehicles as the Europeans do. They want a larger package for their money and also greater comfort in "long hauls." Americans are demanding less bulk and weight.

That such a car will, within a few months, be marketed in Detroit is quite probable as European models are now in one of the motor-building concerns, and talk in automobile circles is that along about National Automobile show time, the public will be privileged to see something nifty in the little cars.

Some idea as to their size can be formed when it is stated that two healthy traffic officers can easily lift one of them off the ground.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to Mrs. Anna Day, 4255 South Wabash avenue, Chicago.

The Question.

To what extent do you think a dealer should be responsible for service on a new car?

Where Asked.

Michigan and Chicago avenues.

The Answers.

Richard Mansfield, 4648 Broadway, contractor — I think that the dealer should responsible for defective parts for thirty days after a new car is delivered to the purchaser. This should not include damaged parts due to driving the car or to breakdowns which may be caused by the driver. Defective parts should be replaced by the dealer, however, and paid for by the manufacturer.

Ira Morganthall, 3184 Milwaukee avenue, advertising manager—As a rule, defective parts in any car show up in thirty days' time. As a matter of fact, a thirty day service contract usually means nothing. The owner is usually the goat. The dealer accuses him of breaking any part that may go wrong.

M. Erickson, 7241 Vernon avenue, student—I found that the thirty days' service offered on my latest car was all that the name implies. I had about ten minor adjustments made by the dealer organization, while breaking the motor in. All of them were made free of charge and I received excellent treatment. In one or two cases I felt that I was being treated almost too fairly.

Charles Hengst, 5041 Fletcher street, student—I think that the dealer should be responsible for a new car until it is well broken in—perhaps up to the 700 mile mark. Most defects and poor adjustments caused by construction should show up within that time. After that the owner and driver is responsible and should pay for adjustments and replacements.

Edward Pabst, Elgin, Ill., broker—A new car will reveal its structural defects within 800 to 1,000 miles of driving for an experienced driver. The dealer should be held responsible for actual breaks up to 1,000 miles, but not for damage done by the driver himself. Many drivers will wreck a car in the first week and demand a new one from the dealer. Reason should rule this service proposition.

WATCH BRAKES.

Brakes should be adjusted every 1,000 miles. Brakes that are not adjusted and equalized properly will rattle, chatter, and squeak. The tread on one or more of the tires is soon worn down, the frame of the car is distorted with strain, and the wheels lose their alignment.

THIS IS TREASON.

Morris Marks of Newburgh, N. Y., who was found guilty of using an American flag to clean his car, was sentenced to visit Washington's headquarters once each week until Thanksgiving morning and learn the history of the United States and its flag and memorize a poem on the flag.

Real Sedans at "Coach" Prices

BUICK builds only real sedans on the famous Buick Chassis—with Fisher bodies.

The 4 and 2 door sedans, on either the Master or Standard Buick chassis, are attractive, quality enclosed cars. Yet they cost only a little more than cars whose chief virtue is their price. These Buicks have the better performance—power—speed—endurance—and economy that mark the Better Buick as today's better motor car.

Buick could build a cheap closed car and sell it at a cheap price. But Buick chooses to build for the satisfaction of Buick owners. Buick sees to it that owners have cars they are proud to drive for years—cars that have a high re-sale value when finally traded in.

Announcing a Lumber Yard for Our Bungalow & Garage Dept.

Cutting Building Costs to the Bone

ONCE again Krenn & Dato makes a forward step in its Bungalow and Garage Department, and we feel it will be followed by public approval in the form of greatly increased demands for our building service.

Krenn & Dato Built Bungalows and Garages are to be found in all parts of Chicago and its suburbs. Although already offering the biggest bungalow and garage values in Chicago, the enormous resources of Krenn & Dato have been marshalled to cut still further the cost of production.

Our Bungalow and Garage Construction Service, together with our development operations in Calumet Highlands, Waukegan and Edithton Beach, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's New City on the North Shore, have grown to such large proportions that it has become necessary to take larger quarters now located in the Rockefeller Block, 936 N. Michigan Ave., and to create our own lumber and building material yard. A complete lumber yard, including a railroad track into the yard, has been established at 2453 S. Ashland Ave.

In taking this step we are bound to realize many economies and advantages in our building service.

Better Quality at Lower Cost

In buying materials ourselves direct from mill and factory we exercise a close supervision on quality.

An outstanding feature of this new arrangement is the elimination of the middleman's profits in all building materials we use. The benefit of this saving we pass on to you in the form of improved service, better quality and lower prices.

Rapid Service —No Delays

With our own lumber yard ever ready to supply our building needs we have eliminated all possible delays in making deliveries. No longer need a job be held up because of the lack of the material called for by the building specifications. Every type of construction material is now always on hand in sufficient quantity, not only for normal requirements, but for emergency needs.

An Unexcelled Bungalow and Garage Building Service

Now Krenn & Dato offers you this new building and construction service complete in every detail. Its efficiency and thoroughness, beginning at the lumber yard, lasts right through to the final finishing touch upon your bungalow or garage. It is a service which for quality, speed and economy is far in advance of any Bungalow and Garage Construction Service on the market today.

If you wish to build your own bungalow or garage, you may purchase building material at our lumber yard. We will furnish you building plans FREE.

Consider these wonderful features:

1 Easy terms. Small down payments—a year or more to pay.
2 Carefully selected and thoroughly tested materials, bought at lowest prices direct from the mill.
3 Honest and skillful workmanship under the close supervision of our engineers.
4 Built to suit your individual requirements—not sectional, portable or ready cut.
5 No delays in construction.
6 A QUICKLOCK — The simplest, safest and most convenient garage door lock ever devised—free with every Krenn & Dato built garage.

Automobile Army Is Recruited to Record Strength

Drop in Used Car Prices Noted in Detroit Survey.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—In an effort to keep abreast of the incoming orders for all grades and models of automobiles, the great plants of Michigan are continuing to run practically at capacity. This is the rule at all the leading factories.

This week saw more men employed in Detroit automobile plants and accessories factories than ever before in the history of the industry. With the addition of 2,983 names to the payrolls this week and 8,948 the previous week, the total now reaches 246,985. This is an increase of more than 50,000 over the corresponding week of 1924.

The Ford company had a little trouble in getting started on its new models, but it was soon remedied, and now the great plants in Highland Park and River Rouge are working day and night, with a force of approximately 125,000 men.

Never before has this plant been called upon to do the work it is now doing. Orders averaging 10,000 daily are pouring into the offices. This is the utmost capacity of the plants, but as yet this figure has not been reached. Since the announcement of the new models more than 200,000 orders have been received.

A noticeable feature in the industry is the decrease in the prices of used cars. This has been brought about by the introduction of new models in the lower priced makes and the sweeping price reductions that have been made in other makes of cars. Prospective buyers of used cars are "shopping" from one dealer to another, and are buying with caution. This has resulted in the dealer either barely getting out even or with a very small profit. Those who were overstocked with used cars when the price reductions and new models came are the ones that are suffering. They were obliged to cut prices on an average of 30 per cent, and, according to reliable figures, there has been a drop of 20 per cent in the trade ins of used cars on the purchase of new ones during the last year.

Last year 90 per cent of the new cars sold involved used car deals; this year only 70 per cent of the new cars purchased were bought with used cars traded in as part of the deal.

Closed cars are enjoying the same popularity in this field as they are in the new car sales.

During the last year the used car business has taken on a new stability and is governed by the new car business. Values are becoming more definite and will not fluctuate with the flooding of the automobile market by new models. The used car market has become a market of replacement rather than a fresh market.

Economist Defines Poor Roads in Terms of Auto Resistance

HOW the rolling resistance of motor vehicles differs with speed of the vehicles and types of road is shown in a report by Prof. T. R. Agg, chairman of the committee on economic theory of highway improvement, on a series of tests to determine rolling resistance and air resistance of vehicles. As reprinted in part in the September issue of the journal of the Society of Automotive Engineers, the report shows that numerous factors affect the rolling resistance, but that the average values for the sum of the rolling and air resistance, under year-round operation conditions, in pounds of resistance per ton of weight, are as follows:

Passenger cars and motor coaches, operated at 35 miles per hour, on high pressure cord tires:

Kind of road—	Resistance.
Best paved surfaces	37 lbs
Paved surfaces, average condition	42 lbs.
Ordinary gravel	65 lbs.
Fair to good earth roads	75 lbs.

Motor trucks, operated at 15 miles per hour, on pneumatic tires:

	Resistance.
Best paved surfaces	22 lbs.
Paved surfaces, average condition	30 lbs.
Ordinary gravel	50 lbs.
Fair to good earth roads	60 lbs.

Negotiations between the General Motors corporation and the Austin Motor company of London, England, which ten days ago looked toward an amalgamation, ended this week when General Motors withdrew its original offer to take over the Austin concern.

This action probably was the result of statements made by some Austin directors and share holders, condemning the proposed sale and declaring opposition to the plan.

The Austin car is considerably smaller than any American built automobile, and at a lower price. It is used almost exclusively for city driving. At present models of the Austin engine are in one of the large Detroit motor factories, and orders for several thousand have been placed, but who for, and for what purpose is not stated.

Detroit and Pontiac are this week celebrating the opening to the public the new highway that connects these two cities. The road is 25 miles long and is said by roadbuilders to be as nearly perfect as a highway can be.

The road is 200 feet wide and runs through beautiful Oakland county. Until less than two years ago this road, one of the most congested highways in the world, was considered extremely dangerous. Now it is one of the safest, regardless of speed. Within the next two years all the trunk lines leading into Detroit will be widened to 200 feet.

Possibility that Lansing, Mich., will be chosen as a site for the first German automobile factory on American soil was seen in a recent visit of L. W. Hirth of Hamburg, Germany, to the capital city of Michigan.

Hirth is looking for a plant location for the Daimler-Benz company, builders of the famous Mercedes and Benz automobiles.

The American plant, if one is established, will be only an assembly unit. Hirth visited several Michigan industrial centers, but appeared particularly impressed with the advantages offered at Lansing.

Income taxes paid by some of the large automobile plants runs well into the millions of dollars. Ford paid $16,493,160; General Motors $5,000,000 [estimated]; Fisher Body $2,240,000; Dodge $2,456,843; Paige $224, 000 [estimated]; Packard $751,862.

Handle with Care.

Carelessness of motorists in failing to lock their automobiles when parking them at the curb or in their driveways is contributing to the ease and success of desperadoes, investigation of crimes in Los Angeles and other cities has proved.

Bandits an dother criminals do not use their own machines because of the danger of identification, it is pointed out. They prefer to steal a machine for their maurading activities and then discard it when their purpose of transportation has been served.

Bodies by Fisher on all Chrysler enclosed models. All models equipped with full balloon tires.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Chrysler dealers and superior Chrysler service everywhere.

All Chrysler models are protected against theft by an exclusive, patented car numbering system, which cannot be counterfeited and cannot be altered or removed without conclusive evidence of tampering.

Out of Chrysler engineering and manufacturing skill come the extraordinary performance and value of the Chrysler Four—plus quality and beauty never before equaled in its price class.

Like its companion car the Chrysler Six, too, the Chrysler Four combines new refinements of proved engineering principles with the finest of materials.

These, by and of themselves, would not necessarily account for its surpassing performance results and extraordinary quality.

Of equal importance is the fact that this Chrysler Four is built with painstaking care, and to a degree of accuracy and precision, heretofore unknown among cars of its price—in the most modern and scientifically equipped manufacturing plants.

The Chrysler Four is, in the most precise sense, a fine car—fine in principle, fine in materials, and fine in its standards of manufacture and assembly.

Obviously, when such quality is combined with the unusual roadability which results from Chrysler designed spring suspension and balloon tires; with low center of gravity, pivotal steering and the option of Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes to give utmost safety; and with Fisher bodies for maximum comfort—the result is unapproached motor car value in the thousand dollar class.

Everywhere, men and women who know motor cars are favoring the Chrysler Four. Women, who like fine things, say it is a delightful car to drive and to ride in. Men are enthusiastic over its extraordinary performance, its economy and its durability. Test it out, yourself behind the wheel. We are eager to provide the opportunity.

(From the Minneapolis Tribune Sept. 10, 1925.)

He Drove An ELCAR!

Dirt track champion of Iowa and Canada, Al Cotey, and his ELCAR, designed and built at Elkhart, Ind., have added to their achievements the smashing of the world's record for 10 miles on a 1-mile dirt track at the Minnesota State Fair. ELCAR owners have long been familiar with the stamina and speed which made this record possible. Hence, ELCAR victories always please but never astonish them.

Midwest Growers See More Money in Peppermint Pool

May Take Marketing of the Crop Into Their Own Hands.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

PEPPERMINT growers of northern Indiana and southern Michigan, dissatisfied with the market situation this fall, are throwing pepper into the mint situation. Coöperative ideas are being brewed at the stills along the Lincoln highway, where farmers are getting ready to take the marketing situation into their own hands, according to E. C. Bird of South Bend, Ind.

Unless the situation clears up growers will pour all of their peppermint oil into one pool and paddle their own canoe when it comes time to decide what the product is worth.

Practically all of the mint oil used in flavoring chewing gum, candy, tooth paste, and remedies for aching stomachs is grown within a radius of sixty miles of South Bend, Ind. The nucleus of a peppermint pool was formed last year in St. Joseph county, centering around Lydick, Ind. Fifteen thousand pounds of oil were pooled and stored in a bank at New Carlisle, Ind. The venture was so successful in making money for the poolers that some of the growers have decided to tackle the collective selling plan again.

Growers Want More.

Discontent this fall has grown out of the fact that growers believe a much higher price should be offered for the oil, since there was no carryover and the crop this season is short.

Mr. Bird points out that the peppermint crop was short in 1923 and 1924. "Last winter eastern consumers paid as high as $15 to $19 a pound for the oil, which means there is absolutely no carryover. In fact, there is a serious shortage," he said.

"This spring growers sensed the situation and laid their plans for a bigger crop. They bought fertilizer and increased their plantings, setting out new mint wherever roots could be obtained. They thought the good year had arrived. But a killing frost in May froze the plants to the ground, and this was followed by intense heat, drought and severe winds, which cut the crop. Only 30 per cent of the old acreage was left standing when the crop was harvested in August, and much of this was weedy and thin. The new setting of roots was likewise affected and nearly so far as production is concerned. The production ran better this season than during last year's harvest, but few persons—particularly the eastern consmmer—realize the severe cut in productive acreage of the 1925 crop."

The ultimate consumer of mint in gum, tooth paste, candy, or medicine is little concerned with the ups and downs of the price of peppermint oil because it takes only an ounce to flavor 50,000 sticks of gum, according to Mr. Bird and "your share of the peppermint oil production of America is about one twenty-fifth of an ounce during a year."

But the price of the oil is of deep concern to the man who grows peppermint. Mr. Bird says there is a feeling among growers that if the law of supply and demand were let alone and allowed to operate freely, the producers would be offered a much better price for their oil during the current season, repaying the farmers for some of the low price seasons through which they have struggled two, three, and four seasons back.

Talk of Coöperation.

In discussing the situation a few days ago, Mr. Bird said: "This talk about handling the crop coöperatively is being quietly indulged in by many independent growers. The coöperative venture, started last year, is capable of expansion, depending on the temper of the growers.

"This temper hinges on the handling of oil this season by the present marketing agencies. Most of the coöperative minded growers think that if the market could be allowed to proceed on the basis of fair crop reports, the present system would be satisfactory. However, there is an increasing amount of talk about attempting a pool. An independent survey by eastern consumers of the situation around South Bend would doubtless be enlightening to them."

A total of 35,000 acres of peppermint was started in Michigan and Indiana last spring—9,000 in Michigan and 26,000 in Indiana—but less than half of this or 16,000 acres remained for harvest after the damage by frost and wind in May and June. Growers estimate the production of peppermint oil for this season to be around 200,000 —some putting it as low as 175,000 pounds and others going as high as 225,000 pounds. Yields of from 15 to 25 pounds to the acre have been reported in the South Bend district.

In summing up the situation a short time ago, using price quotations that prevailed at that time, Mr. Bird, county agent of St. Joseph county, says oil in New York is $18.00 to $19.50 a pound, and producers are being offered in the neighborhood of $8.00 to $10.00 a pound at the still. Growers believe that, after the peppermint is out of the producers' hands, the price will run up to $20 to $25 a pound, which would stir up more interest in coöperative marketing.

"It will mean the eastern buyer will have to pay unusual prices for oil which, in the face of the two year shortage and this year's failure, will be all the market will stand," Mr. Bird announces. "The grower is anxious, and if his interpretation of the market situation during 1925 is sound, the other interests engaged in the marketing of peppermint need to give more intensive effort toward getting the facts and using them for the benefit of all concerned."

COMBINATION HARVESTER

FROM FIELD TO SACK IN ONE OPERATION.—This is one of the combination harvesters now used in Kansas. The machine cuts the standing grain, thrashes it, and delivers it into portable bins or wagons drawn alongside, while the straw is spread back on to the land. This eliminates the necessity of burning the straw in the stacks. It is estimated that 40 per cent of the wheat grown in the big wheat areas of Kansas is thrashed with combination harvesters.

Illinois University Conducting Farm Electricity Test

THE farm electricity experiment which is being conducted by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, is now in full swing on ten farms eight miles southwest of Urbana, Ill. A careful study is being made of all the different kinds of electrical equipment that will be of any practical use on the farm.

A state committee, headed by Dean Herbert W. Mumford of the agricultural college, is in charge of the tests. Officials and experts have already made a tour of the farms, following the installation of the equipment.

An announcement of the project by the state agricultural college says that electrical equipment which has been installed on the ten farms includes vacuum sweepers, cream separators, washing machines, ironing machines, ranges, irons, curling irons, heating pads, refrigerators, toasters, chore motors, percolators, fans, well pumps, milking machines, and a spray paint machine. All of the ten farm homes also have been equipped with electric light fixtures.

Definite records will be kept on all the operations performed by all this equipment, and from these figures it is hoped to determine the adaptability of electric power to different farm operations, the amount used in these different operations, the cost of it, and possible new uses of electricity on the farm. The cost of building and maintaining rural power lines, the possibility of the farmer's using electrical energy when the city or industrial load is light, and the use of the small unit electric plant are other things which come under the scope of the experiment. Separate meters are being used to measure the power that goes into the different operations on each of the farms.

The Illinois State Electric association and a public service company are coöperating with the college in conducting the experiment, which will run for about three years as a regular research project of the college farm mechanics department.

Urge Full Silos.

Feed experts are advising Iowa farmers that it is more than normally desirable that every silo be filled this fall in order to supplement the short hay crop. Many silos in southern Iowa have been left empty during the last few years. Farmers who are short of hay and do not have silos are advised to cut up an extra supply of corn fodder.

POULTRY TIPS

D. T. Farrow of Peoria, Ill., was recently elected head of the American Baby Chick Producers' association when leading representatives of hatcheries of the middle west met at Bloomington, Ill. Hatcherymen claim that during the last year they produced approximately 5,000,000 baby chicks and they expect to turn out more than 7,000,000 in 1926.

The International Baby Chick association will hold its 1926 annual meeting at West Baden, Ind. Further plans for the meeting will be made at the annual fall meeting of the Indiana State Poultry association, which is to be held at Purdue university, Lafayette, beginning Oct. 6. The Hoosier association has gained national recognition among hatcherymen in its fight for honesty in advertising baby chicks.

It's fall house cleaning time for poultrymen. Remove all interior fixtures, sweep down the walls, and get rid of all the dust and dirt from the cracks, corners, and floors. That is the way a Manhattan poultry specialist starts cleaning a poultry house. Then he sprays the interior throughout with a force pump or scrubs with a broom, using a 5 per cent solution of creosote or stock dip. He uses the same material for cleaning the fixtures.

After the house has been allowed to dry for twenty-four hours the entire floor is covered with a two inch layer of clean sand. It is then ready for the winter layers.

Dairymen's Jottings

This is a good time of the year to write to the dairy department of the agricultural college in your state to get a complete file of all the new free bulletins that have been published during the last year. In this way the farmer is able to keep pace with the latest developments in the practical and scientific field.

Eleven bootleggers of tuberculosis cattle in Cortland county, New York, were sentenced not long ago because they "viciously and intentionally misrepresented the 'T' brand to mean 'tamper' or 'traffic,'" which in reality is the veterinarian's stamp put on a cow's left jaw when she is found to be infected with tuberculosis. Six were sentenced to varying terms of from one to six months in the county jail and to pay a fine ranging from $100 to $1,500. Four escaped jail sentence, but were fined, and one was granted a suspended sentence, according to a report of the federal officials.

Quality at Low Cost

Lower— and Better

Graham Brothers second price reduction in four months, announced September 9th, is simply a reflection of the public's confidence in Graham Brothers Trucks.

The new 1-ton Truck chassis price, f. o. b. Detroit, is—Without greatly increased production this latest exceptional cut would have been impossible—except for a sacrifice of the quality that has brought Graham Brothers so quickly to first position among the world's exclusive manufacturers of motor trucks.

$995

The fact is that Graham Brothers Trucks are better than they ever were—and any owner will tell you they have always been remarkably good.

TOBEY TO QUIT LOOP FOR BOUL MICH CORNER

Furniture Concern Rents in New Building.

BY AL CHASE.

One of Chicago's oldest concerns, the Tobey Furniture company, established in 1856, is going to forsake the southeast corner of Wabash and Washington, where it has been for thirty-seven years, for Boul Mich. It was announced last night that it had leased considerable space in the six story building to be erected at the northwest corner of Lake and Michigan by the McCormick estates, of which Judson F. Stone is agent.

FRANK B. TOBEY. [Cox Photo.]

The Ovington Brothers Company of New York has leased much of the balance of the space for a gift shop. The rental to be paid by Tobey and Ovington will total $3,900,000 for the term, and in one instance the owners of the building will share in the profits.

Field Estate May Build.

With the announcement that Tobey will quit Wabash comes a revival of the rumor that Marshall Field & Co. will go ahead with a contemplated furniture store of its own on that corner. James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., said that although such a move was once contemplated, it had been given up. He said he thought it possible that the Field estate, owner of the corner, might some time erect a skyscraper shop and office building.

The new McCormick estates building at Michigan and Lake was designed by Holabird & Roche and will front 166 feet on the boulevard and 130 on Lake. It also will have a frontage of 166 feet on Garland court, to be widened later on.

Started on State Street.

The Tobey Furniture company was started in a small store on State street, near Van Buren, by Charles Tobey in 1856. A year later he was joined by his brother, Frank B. Tobey.

In 1862 they moved to Lake street, near Dearborn, opposite the Tremont hotel, then the center of the retail district. In 1865 they excited adverse criticism by moving out of the established retail center to the middle of the block on State, between Randolph and Washington, where the Field store now is.

Back on Lake.

After the fire of 1871 they established themselves at the northeast corner of State and Adams and remained there until 1888, when they moved to their present location at Wabash and Washington. Now, after a cycle of sixty years, they will be back on Lake, though it took Boul Mich to accomplish it.

Charles Tobey died in 1888 and Frank B. in 1913. George F. Clingman, manager, came with the company in 1888 and A. F. Shiverick, president, a nephew of the founders, in 1890. Two of the third generation of Tobey descendants are now active in the management of the business.

Albert H. Wetten & Co. were brokers for the Tobey company and Winston & Co. for Ovington.

FRANKLIN-CONGRESS LEASE.

The Firestone-Apsley Rubber company has leased the first floor corner store and entire basement of the Montauk building, Franklin and Congress, through Harold H. Egan and H. J. Beeman of John R. Magill & Co.

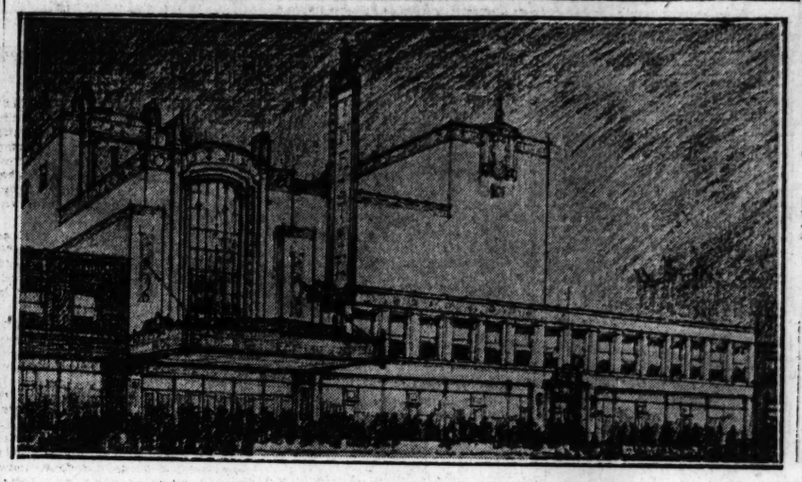
At Michigan Boulevard and Lake Street

This is the six story building to be erected at once at the northwest corner of Michigan and Lake by the McCormick estates, of which Judson F. Stone is agent. Holabird & Roche are architects. The Tobey Furniture company and Ovington of New York are the largest tenants. More is told about this project in a nearby column.

$1,500,000 Cinema for Northwest Side



It was announced yesterday by Leo Spitz of Hall & Spitz, attorneys for Lubliner & Trinz, that that firm, together with Balaban & Katz, would erect a $1,500,000 theater, with 2,500 seats, on Cicero avenue, 250 feet north of Belmont. It will be designed in the Byzantine style of architecture by C. W. and George L. Rapp, and in addition to the auditorium will have eight stores and offices. Work will begin Nov. 1. Lindheimer & Wells were brokers in the purchase of the site, which is 175x180.

URGE PARK BOARDS TO USE ARCHITECTS TO DESIGN BRIDGES

Chicago's river bridges, especially those proposed east of Michigan avenue, should be designed by architects and not merely turned out by a steel plant with no attempt at real beautification, the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Architects urges in a letter to the south park and Lincoln park boards. The letter is signed by C. W. Farrier, chairman; John Holabird, and Pierre Blouke, members of the committee on municipal arts, and also by H. B. Wheelock, president of the chapter.

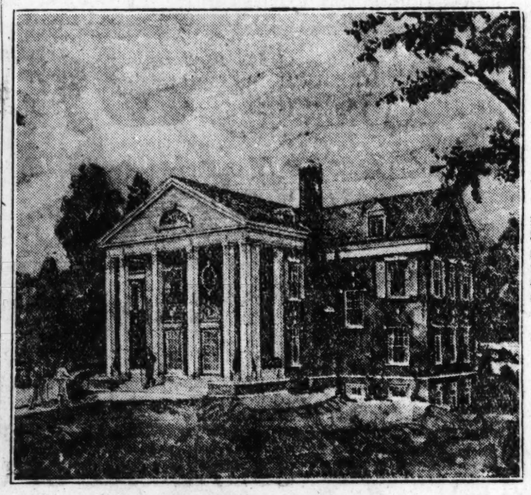
"The Michigan avenue, the Wells street, and the Franklin-Orleans bridges are examples of the type of structure which results from the collaboration of the architect and the engineer working to design a bridge which adds to the appearance of the city as well as it serves a utilitarian purpose," the letter reads.

"It is probably true that the engineering firm which you propose to commission to design the outer drive bridge would obtain some sort of architectural service to assist them, but the Chicago chapter of the A. I. A. feels that you should have the services of architects of acknowledged reputation.

"The method by which an architect could render the best service in the design of this outer drive connection structure, and by which the architect could best collaborate with the engineer in the production of a structure which will at once be a fine example of engineering and a fine example of architecture, would be through your honorable board's employing the full architectural services of an architect or firm of architects who are fully qualified to handle the work in a manner which will be a credit to the city for all time. This method is recommended as being the most economical and practicable."

Vikings' Old People's Home



The corner stone of the above old people's home for the Independent Order of Vikings at Gurnee, Ill., will be laid today, according to the architects, Lindblad & Carlson. The building will accommodate seventeen aged persons. It will be of brick, with stone trim.

Buy Two Blocks Frontage for Flat Building Sites

Maurice B. Frank of Maurice B. Frank & Co., and Walter F. Kinnucan have bought both sides of Chappell avenue, from 74th to 75th, for a reported $200,000 and will place on the market at once as apartment sites. Chappel avenue is to be cut through. They have 320 feet of business frontage on 75th and 1100 feet on Chappel.

N. W. U. PLANS NEW COURSE IN REAL ESTATE

Will Also Include Land Economics.

Northwestern university school of commerce will begin a special group of courses in the field of land economics and real estate next Wednesday, Sept. 23. These courses will not be merely "lecture courses" but will require a considerable amount of reading and home study. Instead of following the practice of miscellaneous lectures by a large number of individuals, each course will be definitely in charge of one instructor.

DR. RICHARD T. ELY.

All of the instructors are members of the regular faculty, or of the staff of the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, which recently has become affiliated with Northwestern university.

States Require Examinations.

"The vocation of the realtor is rapidly assuming a distinctly professional character, as is evidenced by the fact that many states have passed laws requiring examination or conformity to certain standards on the part of those who wish to engage in this field of activity," said Dean Ralph E. Heilman.

"The National Association of Real Estate Boards is urging such a measure for all states, and the same body is recommending a thorough program of university education in land economics and real estate.

Calls Courses Best.

"It is no exaggeration to say that this curriculum of Northwestern constitutes the most highly developed group of courses ever offered by any American university in this important new field of science."

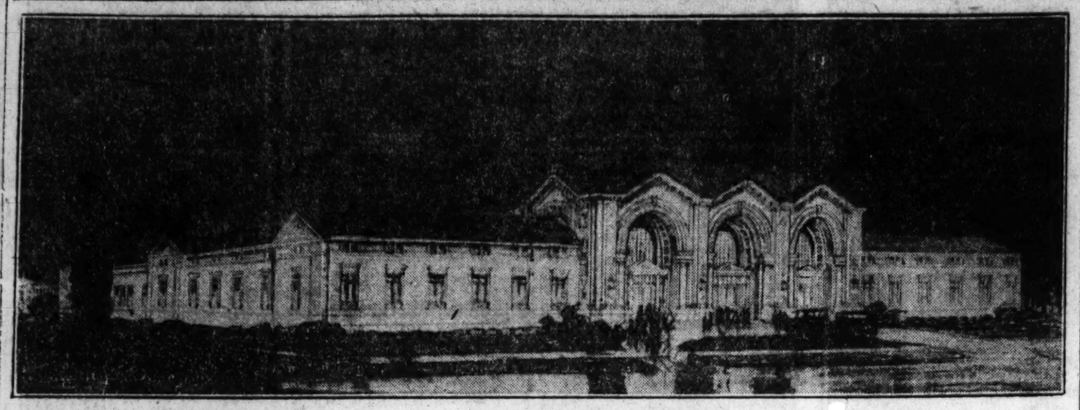
The courses to be offered by Northwestern this year are as follows: "National Land Policies" by Prof. Richard T. Ely; "Elements of Land Economics" by Prof. George Wehrwein; "Real Estate Practice," Prof. A. G. Hinman; "Real Estate Merchandising," Prof. Hinman; "Land Systems," Prof. Mary L. Shine; "Real Estate Valuation," Frederick M. Babcock; "Real Estate Finance," Elmer A. Claar; "Problems of Property," Prof. Herbert Simpson; "Taxation of Land," Prof. Simpson; "Urban Land Economics," Prof. Hinman; "Principles of Land Economics," Prof. Wehrwein; "Land Income," Prof. Ely; "Round Table in Economic Theory," Prof. Ely; "Seminar in Urban Land," Prof. Herbert Derau; "Seminar in Land Problems," Prof. Wehrwein.

To Be Given in Evanston Also.

The same courses, together with additional ones, will be offered for day students on the Evanston campus of Northwestern.

The Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, in affiliation with Northwestern university, is headed by Dr. Richard T. Ely, Ph. D., LL. D., director of the institute, research professor of economics.

5,000 Seat Auditorium and Gym at Mooseheart



Fifty thousand members of the Loyal Order of Moose in Illinois will erect the above $250,000 gymnasium and 5,000 seat auditorium at Mooseheart, on the Fox river. The corner stone will be laid at the time of the convention in Chicago, during the week of July 4, 1926. Work will start on the building next spring. Plans by Ralph F. Abell of Elgin, architect, call for a "T" shaped building, 212x240, with a large gymnasium hall, with space for 5,000 seats, swimming pool, handball courts, reception room forguests, large lobby across the front of the building, and other features. There are now 1,260 children at Mooseheart and 600,000 Moose in America.

Brokers' Notes

J. N. McMinn & Co. announce the opening yesterday of their new offices in their new building at 721 East 63d.

Bluhm & Malone have moved from 5113 Lake Park avenue to 2442 West 63d street. Their new phone is Prospect 0805.

Loop Store Plans $75,000 Entrance to Jackson Blvd.

The Davis company is having plans drawn by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White for a new Jackson boulevard entrance to its store. The present entrance is only twenty feet wide. The new one will be seventy-five. It will cost $75,000.

Evanston Masons to Build Temple at Lake and Maple

Plans are being drawn by Holabird & Roche for a 66x150 Masonic temple, to be erected at the northeast corner of Lake and Maple, Evanston, for Evanston lodge, A. F. & A. M.

WILL BUILD BOULEVARD FLATS.

Henry Rothchild and LeRoy Harris have bought the northwest corner of 46th and Drexel, 50x214, from Mrs. John A. McCormick, and will erect a fifty flat building from plans by Olsen & Urbain, to cost a reported $175,000. Rosenthal, Mayer & Lewis were brokers.

LEASES WAREHOUSE SPACE.

The Continental Warehouse company, which recently leased a large warehouse on La Salle from the University of Chicago, has rented the building adjoining on the north, fronting on 22d, from the university, through Louis B. Beardslee & Co.

OPTICIANS LEASE EVANSTON SHOP.

Almer Coe & Co., opticians, have leased a double store in the new Professional building at Orrington and Church, Evanston, and will move from 557 Davis on Oct. 1. They have renewed their lease on their store in the Railway Exchange building.

Newest Uptown Hotel

Above is the Renca, an eight story apartment hotel designed by McNally, Quinn & Co., to be erected at 5858 Kenmore avenue by Harry Gimpel, and told about in this department on Friday. According to the architects it'll cost $476,000, and George M. Forman & Co. have made a $285,000 bond issue on the project. Work is to start at once and the completion date has been set for May 1, 1926. Seaver W. Anderson of J. C. Lassen & Co. was broker in the site purchase.

Greenwood Flat Building Sold at $60,000 Profit

Charles L. Cronninger sold the twenty-seven flats at the northeast corner of 53d and Greenwood, 150x200, to Frank Smidl for a reported $225,000, subject to $195,000. Mr. Smidl then sold them to H. E. Daley for a reported $285,000, taking in part payment the Broadway hotel at Hot Springs, Ark. Later he sold the hotel to J. K. Edlin for a reported $100,000. Mrs. C. E. Howard was the only broker.

REALTY BOARD TO MAIL 10,000 '26 YEAR BOOKS

Ten thousand 1926 year books of the Chicago Real Esate board, edited by Charles M. Nichols, will be in the mails Tuesday. As usual, the board's year book will contain much valuable data, forms, tables, special articles, etc.

CHARLES M. NICHOLS. [Moffett Photo.]

It will tell about regional highway plans, about the financing of subdivisions, coöperative flats, contain the zoning ordinance, taxpayers' calendar, Chicago street number guide, information, etc.

The goal for the 1926 year book has been placed at 25,000 copies.

BUY 140 ACRES AT 79TH ST. AND WESTERN AVE.

Hinkamp & Co. have bought two tracts, totaling 140 acres, at the southwest corner of 79th and Western, from E. J. Glackin.

One tract of 120 acres, is bounded by 79th, Western, Sacramento, and 81st. The smaller one, twenty acres, is bounded by Western, 81st, the B. & O. terminal tracks and 83d.

The property is to be put on the market at once and sold as business property on 75th and Western and the balance in thirty foot residential lots.

All improvements are to be installed next spring. The Reliance State bank will be trustee.

Everything But First Payment Returned

It was no impractical attempt at philanthropy that induced George F. Nixon & Company to institute the now widely discussed Nixon Estate Protection Plan.

Although offering real estate investors an opportunity not previously available to protect their families against loss or hardship in the event of death, the Nixon Estate Protection Plan is foundationed upon the soundest of good business principles.

Because of it, installment purchasers of any Nixon properties now on the market are enabled to invest profitably without fear of the future. Should death come, the investor's heirs or estate promptly receive a paid-up deed of ownership to the property being purchased as well as a cash refund of all payments except the initial down payment.

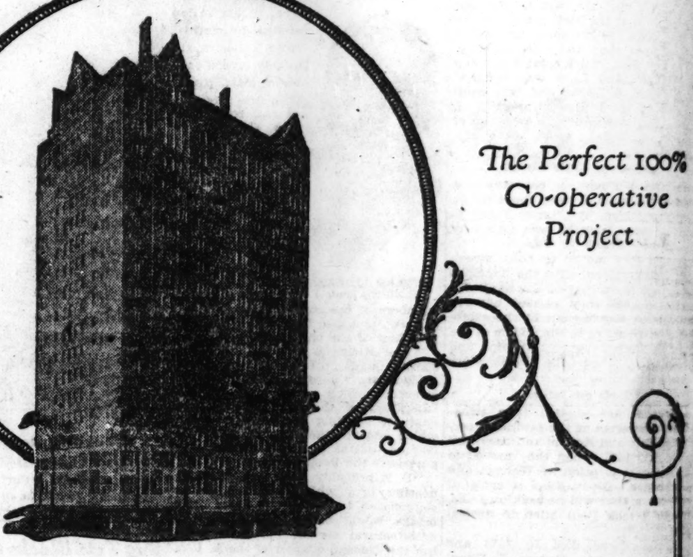
1120 Lake Shore Drive



The Perfect 100% Co-operative Project

The Ultimate in an Apartment Home

You cannot argue quality into a building; it must be put there. We invite you to examine the details in the 1120 Lake Shore Drive apartment building

The building is of the Tudor Gothic style of architecture and was designed by Robert S. DeGolyer & Company of Chicago, H. L. Clute being mechanical engineer. The Co-operative Building Associates were the builders.

The excavation for this building was done by the T. M. White Company, who began work September 18, 1924.

Over 625 piles were driven to an average depth of 62 feet below grade, by Walsh and Masterson.

1120 Lake Shore Drive is built like a bridge. The structural steel skeleton frame work of the building was fabricated and erected by the McClintic-Marshall Company.

This structural steel was fire-proofed in accordance with the best building practices by the firm of T. G. Nicholson Company, who also erected all of the partitions.

The Moraw Building Company did the Masonry, Foundation, and Carpentry work.

Partitions between the apartments are of double dimensions, with Celotex in between as a sound insulator.

The building is equipped with two Pacific boilers and a vacuum heating system provided by the Davis Construction Company.

The radiation used in all of the main rooms throughout the building will be the National Radiator Company, Aero type, a new design of cast iron radiation of great beauty and efficiency

The suspended metal lath, four coat plastering work, and the plaster cornices are the work of The James J. Brown Plastering Company.

The "Saneto" vitreous china syphon jet closets with flushing valve; vitreous china pedestal lavatories with "Securo" direct lift waste; "Corwith" enameled iron built-in bathtubs, and double drainboard kitchen sinks are furnished by Crane Co. and installed by Charles E. Gazin & Co.

The facade of the building is of cloister brick, the rear of face brick which was furnished by the Thos. Moulding Brick Company.

The ornamental Bedford stone is furnished by the Albert J. Ward Co.

The gabled Spanish tile roof was placed on the building by The Philip Carey Company.

Elevator service in the building consists of two passenger and two freight elevators furnished and installed by Kaestner & Hecht Co.

The ventilating systems in the kitchens and laundries and fire places were supplied by the Reliable Sheet Metal Works.

The metal weatherstrips which one sees on all doors and windows, are furnished by The Sager Metal Weatherstrip Agency.

Electric wiring, signal systems and the house phone installations were provided by The White City Electric Co.

The special designed, cast brass hardware was designed by the Cobb, Whyte & Laemmer Co.

The specially designed cast brass lighting fixtures were designed and manufactured by C. G. Everson & Co.

The imported Botticini marble for the fire places was supplied by the Flavin Marble Mill.

The all-porcelain gas ranges, with the heat regulators, are the product of the A-B Stove Company.

The ice boxes, with cork board insulation, steel doors, opal glass interior linings, tile floors, and Duco finish, are the product of the Shirk Refrigerator Co.

The decorating work was done by Ingstrup-Buhrke, Inc.

The individual artificial refrigerating units are Frigidaires made by the Delco Light, a subsidiary of the General Motors Corporation, and supplied by the Stover Company.

The concealed beds provided are Murphy In-A-Dor Beds.

The rubber marbleized tile in the floors of the elevator foyers are furnished by David E. Kennedy, Inc.

The white Bancroft Sunfast Holland shades are furnished by George W. Kerr & Company.

The sheet metal, fire-proof doors, and windows are furnished by The Sykes Company.

The cabinet finished woodwork was constructed in the mills of the C. E. Peterson Co.

All the pipes were covered by The Philip Carey Co.

The Chicago-Francis Dryers in the laundries, with the gas laundry stoves, are supplied by the Chicago Dryer Company.

The H. M. Hooker Glass & Paint Company supplied all the glazing for the building.

The smoke stack was manufactured and erected by the American Boiler & Tank Company.

The ornamental iron and fire escapes are supplied by the Guaranty Iron & Steel Company.

The mosaic tile work and the floor of the bathrooms and the 5 foot tile wainscot in the entire building was supplied by The North Shore Tile Company.

One of the typical apartments is furnished through the courtesy of The French Shops, Inc. You'll enjoy seeing this.

The apartments are open for inspection. They will be ready for October 1st occupancy

RUSSIA EXPORTS MORE RUMORS THAN FOODSTUFF

BY SCRUTATOR.

Heartless skepticism with which Chicago grain operators greet the 1925 stories of a great Russian grain crop results to the writer an interesting conversation on that subject in 1923 with a pit general, who said that the size of the crop was immaterial as long as the Russians were unable to transport it.

The two gold fish revues since that time reveal that he paid huge income taxes in 1924 and 1925.

Every year reports of Russian grain exports via the Black sea, have been followed later by revelations of foreign grain sneaked into Russia via Baltic ports.

Evidently the railroads were not able to haul south Russian grain to the north. For a generation Russian grain culture has been shifting southward.

Pre-war statistics, as marshaled by Leo Pavlosky and Prof. Moulton, make some of the recent reports of contemplated exports ridiculous.

Subsequent Russian statistics probably are more valuable to students of psychopathology than to business men.

Lothrop Stoddard's generalizations about bolshie mentality here and abroad have certainly stood the test of three years' run of news, and the fact that he drew such a fire from certain critics and reviewers now raises the suspicion that his observations applied to some of them also.

Nevertheless Russian export and import figures have gained some credibility, because they are palpably "admissions against interest." The import tables indicate no imposing addition to the rolling stock of Russian railroads. That they could handle 18,000,000 tons of additional grain without such improvement is hardly possible.

As for the internal manufacture of railway equipment, Comrade Trotsky's boast as to the total yearly output of Russian manufactures at this time—all commodities—mentions a value in gold rubles, which is less than half of the revenues of one American corporation—and Russian prices are high.

Such comparisons seem incredible. How can a nation of 150,000,000 people live with a manufactured output of less than $5 per capita?

The answer is they always have lived on a scale that would seem incredible to the people of a modern industrialized nation and are only a bit worse off than before. Before the revolution the peasants possessed 70 per cent of all cultivated land and leased about 20 per cent more. They probably control it all now, but the addition to their holdings has made little difference in their mode of living and will not for generations.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Advices from Youngstown received in the financial district indicate that the proposed merger of Trumbull Steel with Otis and Midland Steel has not been definitely abandoned, but is only dormant until the audit of the Trumbull company has been completed and directors have been fully informed of the situation. Trumbull directors meet next Wednesday.

Plants of the Inland Steel company are operating at eighty per cent of capacity. Signs of an impetus to railroad buying give prospects for a decided improvement in business, President Block says the margin of profit, however, being low, due partly to high wages.

Continuation of the present rate of activity in the building industry for at least another year is forecast by the Atlantic States Shippers' Advisory board. Reports received from companies manufacturing cement, iron and steel, clay and clay products, lumber, crushed stone, paint, sand and gravel, slate and roofing materials indicate that the erection of private homes, apartment dwellings, and office buildings in suburban cities and small towns is the specific development that will hold the building industry up to its present high level for the next year.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey today reduced tank wagon gasoline ½c gallon in certain states in its territory, new prices in Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina now being 16c a gallon and West Virginia 15½c. The Standard Oil of Louisiana announced increases of ½c to 1¼c a gallon in tank wagon prices in Louisiana and Arkansas.

August automobile production in the United States and Canada totaled 221,756 passenger cars and 37,643 trucks, against 357,883 and 41,748 respectively in July and 255,232 and 28,647 in August, 1924. The eight months' total for this year for both countries was 2,516,389 passenger cars and 316,313 trucks, against 2,351,913 and 257,462 respectively for the same period in 1924.

The transaction by which the Pan American Western Petroleum company acquires ownership of the stock of the Pan American Petroleum company was consummated with payment of $23,293,125, of which $11,250,000 was in fifteen year 6 per cent notes and the balance cash to Pan American Petroleum Transport company.

The New England Public Service company was organized in Maine today with a capitalization of $80,000,000 to take over various power properties in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont. Samuel Insull of Chicago is chairman of the corporation and Walter S. Wyman of Augusta is president.

There were 358 commercial failures in the United States this week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 321 last week, a five day week, owing to the observance of Labor day, and 291 during the corresponding week last year.

Park, Davis & Co. declared an extra dividend of 30 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 50 cents, both payable Sept. 30 to stock of record Sept. 19.

Diversify Your Investments.

A good many investors, when they are convinced that a certain bond is sound, want to put all their available investment funds into that one security. They will buy as many bonds of that issue as they can, on the theory that, if it is sound, that is all they need to look for.

It is a mistake to do this. No matter how safe a bond may appear, it is always conceivable that something unforeseen may happen before its maturity that may seriously affect it.

The factor of safety is always, of course, of prime importance in any conservative investment, and should have first consideration. But there are other important factors which should not be overlooked.

One of these is diversification. Distributing the risk over a number of equally safe issues strengthens the safety of the total investment.

One's holdings should be diversified (1) as to type of security, (2) as to locality, and (3) as to maturity.

In the matter of type we have such securities as government, municipal, railroad, public utility, industrial, and real estate securities. From these various types it is well to select a number—not to confine one's investment to any particular type.

Anything adversely affecting the value of real estate might cause a weakness in real estate bonds in general, or any one of a number of conditions which affect the earnings of railroads in general—such as unfavorable legislation, reduction of freight rates, strikes, crop failures, etc.—might cause railroad securities in general to suffer.

If, however, only a small portion of one's holdings is in one type of securities, and that type should suffer, the rest of his holdings would still be unaffected by the conditions that affected that type.

Diversification in the matter of locality means geographical distribution of the risk. Investing in securities in different parts of the country means that if all the industries or business or values in one locality should be adversely affected by local conditions, one's holdings in other widely separated parts of the country would not be affected.

The question of diversifying maturity dates is important in this respect, that if all one's securities mature in the same year the burden of reinvesting all of his funds falls on him in that year. It may so happen that that particular year is a poor one for reinvestment, and he must, then, either keep his funds idle or content himself with unsatisfactory investments.

To sum up, then, after giving careful consideration to the safety, yield, marketability, and stability of each individual security he intends to purchase, the investor should strengthen the safety of the whole by taking care that his securities do not overlap as to type, locality, or maturity.

BONDS THAT NEVER LOST A DOLLAR

H. O. STONE FOUNDATION LAID IN 1835

What a BOND will do for YOU

"I would rather own good sound bonds than anything else," said a customer of ours. "Give me bonds and all that money can buy is mine!"

This is true. Every necessity, comfort or luxury you desire, bonds will provide.

What is more—in every event of your life, in every obligation, in every joy or sorrow bonds are almost human in the help they give you. They lighten your burdens. They add to your pleasures. They provide one sure income.

Consider your baby. What could a bond do for it? Why, if the interest is invested for it regularly as received, as time passes one bond will make it wealthy. Or educate it. Or perhaps make a happy marriage possible for it, or assure its prosperity when it grows old.

Something Profitable for You

Now is the time to ask for all the good things on safe investment and fortune-building that from time to time we mail to our customers and friends. These can't fail to benefit you, to help you get ahead, to show you how to increase your income. The season is beginning, the new things just coming out. Call now and let us become acquainted, or phone Franklin 5600 or, if more convenient—

Just tear out and mail this coupon →

The week-end hog market finished in a flurry at steady to unevenly higher prices, mixed and packing grades showing the most strength, resulting in a further narrowing of the price range. The extreme top lowered 5c@$13.45, due to quality, with average unchanged at $12.65, comparing with a top and average of $13.45 and $12.00, respectively last Saturday. Sorted 198 lb averages brought the top yesterday, with 300 lb butchers at $13.25. Top kinds are on par with a week ago, while mixed and packing grades show 75c@$1.00 advance for the week, local packers being the strongest supporters of lower priced hogs.

Hog receipts last week were among the smallest in several years, at 94,500, being 34,700 smaller than a year ago and 62,700 smaller than two years ago. Average weight was estimated at 251 lbs, within 1 lb of the heaviest since September, 1922, being 8 lbs heavier than a year ago and 11 lbs heavier than two years ago. General average price at $12.45 was 55c above previous week and $2.90 higher than a year ago.

Cattle Prices Better.

Cattle market followed an upward course during the first half of last week, carrying top heavy steers to $16.35, a new high mark since 1920. However, directly after reaching the new summit in midweek, prices reacted abruptly and tumbled mostly 50c, and in spots as much as 75c under the high point. The bulk of the decline was on in-between classes, in anticipation of a big run of westerns next week. Sharp gains early in the week raised the general average cost of good beef cattle to $11.75, against $11.10 the previous week. Liberal marketing after Wednesday swelled the week's arrivals to 61,800, second largest since January.

Broad demand and soaring feeder lamb prices, which were at a new high level for the season, was the outstanding feature in the sheep house last week. Best 63 lb western range lambs went countryward at $16.25 Wednesday, while top killers rested at $16.15, top for fat lambs since June. A reaction carried quotations down 15@25c, and in spots 50c, after Wednesday, best fat and feeding lambs bringing downward from $16.00 late. Prevailing quotations are down to a level with a week ago. Fat aged and yearling sheep fluctuated very slightly.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 24,000 cattle, 32,000 hogs, and 19,000 sheep, against 24,781 cattle, 27,929 hogs, and 17,589 sheep a week ago, and 21,755 cattle, 26,708 hogs, and 22,350 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 63,000 cattle, 100,000 hogs, and 98,000 sheep, against 59,068 cattle, 96,787 hogs, and 106,637 sheep a year ago.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Bearish sentiment in wheat was even more pronounced at the close on Saturday than it had been Friday, and there was considerable pressure on all the advances, houses with northwestern connections being persistent sellers; but the offerings were absorbed on the break by houses with eastern connections with the same regularity that has been an outstanding feature of the market for over a week. It is expected by those who should know that the same class of buying will develop on any decline of consequence.

Fairly general rains were reported in Europe on Saturday, including central governments of Russia. Threshing and the movement in parts of the American and Canadian northwest has been hindered by wet weather. Helena, Mont., reported four inches of snow.

Minimum import requirements of wheat by Italy are estimated at 47,000,000 bu, although every effort is being made to curtail importations by the imposition of a high duty.

COTTON MARKET UNSETTLED

Cotton markets were unsettled, and fluctuated rapidly within a moderate range, hedging pressure appearing on the bulges while around 24½c for December at New York, there was buying by trade interests. The close was unchanged to 9 points lower here, with New Orleans unchanged to 7 points lower and New York 1@5 points lower. Spot middlings were unchanged, with New Orleans 23.85c and New York, 24.45c.

There were 31,279,000 spindles in operation in the United States on Aug. 31, as shown by the census bureau report, compared with 31,761,000 in July and 29,011,000 last year. The south reported an active spot demand. Prices follow:

BONDS THAT NEVER LOST A DOLLAR

STONE BLDG. CLARK & MADISON STS. CHICAGO

PRICES OF GRAIN SUFFER LOSSES FOR THE WEEK

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Weakness in outside wheat markets had comparatively little effect in Chicago, being offset by free buying by houses with eastern connections. The finish was at net losses of only ⅛@⅝ September and December corn, December and May oats, and all deliveries of rye sold at a new low on the crop, corn closing ⅛@2¼c, oats ⅛@¼c, and rye ⅜@1¼c lower.

Grains Lower for Week.

Wheat and other grains parted company the last week, and while wheat declined, early aggressive support appeared on the breaks, and at the last net gains were 1@1⅛c as compared with the previous week. Corn declined 4@8c, with September leading, while oats were 1@1½c and rye 5⅜@6¾c lower. Provisions were unsettled, lard being 20c higher to 17½c lower, ribs 5@25c higher, and bellies 25c higher to 45c lower, as compared with the finish of the previous week.

Bulk of the trade in wheat was of a professional character, with a majority of local operators and northwestern interests on the selling side, with the offerings being persistently absorbed by strong eastern interests. Winnipeg was ⅜@1½c lower, wet weather in the west helping to sustain that market, while Minneapolis declined 1¼@1⅜c, with December there finishing ½c under Chicago, against 1½c over on Friday. Liverpool declined ⅛@¼d.

Foreign demand for cash wheat is slow, with 240,000 bu Manitobas for nearby shipment reported sold at the seaboard.

New Low on Corn.

Longs were on the selling side of September corn, and it dropped to 88c and closed at the bottom, with stop loss orders caught on the way down. December touched 80½c. Country offerings of grain to arrive were larger, with purchases of around 75,000 bu, largely for nearby shipment. The spot basis was unchanged to ½c lower. The best support in futures came from short covering and buying on scale orders.

Oats at New Low on Crop.

December and May oats sold at a new low on the crop, the break in corn being the main depressing influence. Trade was largely of a local character.

Scattered liquidation developed in rye, with all deliveries at a new low for the season, and despite the break there was a lack of aggressive buying, the main support coming from short covering. Export demand is limited.

A material improvement in the domestic demand for lard and meats, especially the latter, with buying of bellies by packers to remove hedges against cash sales to the United Kingdom, resulted in a higher range of prices. Closing trades were 40c higher to 2½c lower on lard, 40@57½c higher on ribs, and 80c@$1 higher on bellies. Prices follow:

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Violent bullish demonstrations in the motor shares overshadowed all other developments in today's brief but active session of the stock market, which showed showed indications of increased public participation. Total sales for the two hour session ran close to 1,000,000 shares.

Speculators for the advance pointed to reports of further improvement in business and the absence of any sustained strain on the credit situation as the basis for higher security prices. The rapid marking of the call money rate from 3½ to 5 per cent yesterday was generally regarded as due to a temporary stringency, which probably would be corrected within a few days. No organized attempt was made to use it as an excuse for a general selling movement.

Hudson Motors Leads Rise.

Hudson Motors assumed the leadership of the motor groups by scoring a spectacular gain of 12½ points to 83¾, a new high record, and then slipping back to 79⅜ on realizing. The spirited demand for this issue followed the publication of an earnings report for the third quarter showing net of $6,926,554, equivalent to $5.34 a share, as compared with net of $3,003,624, or $2.11 a share, for the entire year of 1924. Net for the first nine months of this year totals $16,722,260, or $12.66 a share, despite several reductions in car prices.

General Motors was run nearly 4 points to a new top at 103¾, and Du Pont, which has large holdings of that stock, closed 12 points higher at 187. Mack Trucks jumped 7 points to 218, and White, Jordan, Packard, Pierce-Arrow common, and Studebaker preferred moved up 2 to 3 points.

Public Utilities in Demand.

Public Utilities also commanded good buying support, American and Foreign Power, Brooklyn Edison, the Market Street Railway issues, People's Gas, United Railways Investment common and preferred, and West Penn company showing net gains of 1 to nearly 4 points.

U. S. Steel common closed a point higher at 124, but the other standard industrials failed to participate extensively in the upward movement. Baldwin closed unchanged at 123⅞ after having crossed 125 to a new high on the current movement.

There were several soft spots, the most prominent of which was Pullman, which broke nearly 6 points to 162¼. Heaviness also was apparent in Chrysler, Detroit Edison, and International Harvester. Rails failed to follow up yesterday's advance, although special strength developed in Canadian Pacific, which closed 3½ points higher at 149¾.

Curb Stocks Also Strong.

On the curb market new top records were established in several high priced issues. The outstanding upturn was made in Carolina Power, which rose 29 points from the previous closing, selling to 145. National Power improved about 7 points and Miller Rubber rose to a new high at 209.

Bond prices maintained a firm tone. Argentine 6s issues were turned over in large volume around 96. Mexican obligations were fractionally higher. Wilson & Co. 7½ per cent certificates rose more than a point. Obligations of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company, also in receivership, likewise were active. Most of the speculative railroad liens were in demand, but Florida Western and Northern 7s reacted on profit taking, invited by their sensational rise earlier in the week.

Deficit in New York Reserves.

The weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks issued today reflected the heavy drains made on the banks in connection with settlements of government financing toward the end of the week, a decrease in the surplus reserve of $25,659,160 resulting in a deficit in reserves of $15,674,630. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $70,785,000. Net demand deposits increased $30,328,000 and time deposits decreased $3,070,000.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The local unlisted securities market continued active last week and a number of issues reached new highs for the year.

American Seating common displayed considerable strength, changing hands at 195, up approximately 15 points. The preferred was without interest at 88 bid, offered at 92. Butler Brothers made a new high at 30¾, but receded slightly at the close to 30 bid, offered at 30¾. Acme Steel Goods was fairly active, scoring a gain of some 2 points at 66 bid, 67½ asked. Trades were recorded in Kellogg company at 90, an advance of another 5 points, while the preferred was unchanged at 101 bid.

A sharp advance was noted in the Keystone Steel and Wire issues, the common advancing some 8 points to 53½, and the preferred some 5 points to 107. McCord Manufacturing common was heavily dealt in between 13 and 13¾. The preferred was slightly better at 89 bid, 92 asked. W. F. Hall Printing improved an additional 2 points to 24½ bid, offered at 36½. Interstate Iron and Steel common changed hands between 40 and 41, up 2 points. By-Products Coke sold at 72. Godchaux Sugar first preferred improved from 36 to sales at 40. Bank stocks continued in good demand with Illinois Merchants Trust the outstanding feature. Transactions were recorded at 455, up approximately 7 points.

Another Record for Chandler!

Wins Annual Pikes Peak Race and Smashes All Records!

CHANDLER calls its motor "the Pikes Peak Motor" because it was developed to master Pikes Peak.

Now—once more—this marvelous motor has proved itself worthy of the name.

On Labor Day, competing against a large field of contestants, a Chandler with a stock motor won with ease the annual climbing race up the gruelling slope of Pikes Peak—an event sanctioned by the American Automobile Association.

In winning, Chandler shattered all time records. To the cheers of crowds, Chandler swept up the steep ascent with wide open throttle, taking the sharp curves and double curves at thrilling speed—surging to the top nearly a minute ahead of the second car, and nearly three minutes ahead of the third car!

Chandler's time from bottom to summit was 17 minutes, 48⅘ seconds—the fastest time ever scored on the world's loftiest automobile highway, 14,109 feet above the sea!

Once again has Chandler demonstrated its leadership in performance. To win the Pikes Peak race and set a record required not only a motor of heroic power, but the greatest ease of steering and perfect brake action on sudden, hairpin turns.

As long ago as 1922 the Chandler engineering staff went to Pikes Peak to conduct important tests that led to the development and perfection of the present Pikes Peak Motor.

The result is that Chandler power, carburetion, braking, steering and cooling all conform to a standard considerably advanced over the everyday standards of six-cylinder engineering.

Chandler is a car of many records. At Culver City last February a stock Chandler traveled 1000 miles in 689 minutes, breaking all stock car records for such sustained speed with an average of 86.9 miles an hour.

Chandler holds the high gear climbing record on Mt. Diablo.

Chandler holds the climbing record on the Continental Divide, 5084 feet above sea level. Time, 13½ minutes.

Chandler holds the climbing record on Mt. Washington, scaling its dizzy heights in 17 minutes. No other car has ever closely approached this record!

All the new Chandler models are beautiful; distinctive in style; rich in comfort. See them. Get the thrill of sitting at the wheel of a new Chandler and feeling the smooth, quiet-flowing power of the motor that laughs at America's worst hills!

Running High Jumpers Make New Records

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The short, fat woman with stale yellow locks showing under the standardized tiny brimmed felt gave a groan. She had been stoical up to that point, but when the tall, lissome mannequin of that display of Paris costumes appeared wearing her twenty-fifth jumper frock, the short fat woman decided to "be herself." Remember, please, you who blame her, that this special collection embraced only sixty models!

"Why, they're wearing these jumpers to everything!" lamented this spectator, "and they look just awful on me!"

Of course, they do, madam! The jumper was designed for the garconne, the tomboy, the modern young thing with a figure that has simply evaporated. It looks "just awful" on most of us. Yet, after all, why should we begin to complain now? We should all be calloused to the tricks of Madame la Mode. So long has she treated most of us as enemies rather than accomplices that if she suddenly had a change of heart and said, "Here, child, take this Gainsborough hat and these Watteau panniers and look pretty," we shouldn't know how to behave.

When the jumper does become one, there is no doubt that it possesses something more than chic. Anyway, all this is purely extraneous. Whether the two piece costume be pretty or merely chic, it is here.

Here is a sidelight on the two piece situation. It has resulted in many sports clothes being identical with tailored togs. The most gifted observer of styles can, in fact, hardly detect the difference between something designed for a luncheon at the Ritz and another thing destined for a football game.

Let us take to begin with the model in the center of this page. As far as line is concerned this little frock might be "pour le sport." In fact, by translating it into either jersey or kasha one could achieve such ambition. However, in the material originally found this jumper costume was intended for the restaurant lunch. For it is of black satin and its girdle, as well as the original turndown collar with its floppy bow, are of silver tissue.

Black! And this an autumn of color! Ah, yes, indeed. If you are looking for a restaurant or afternoon or dinner frock, you can make believe you never heard of a Burgundy red or a moss green or a violet. Select a black velvet or a black satin, and you don't need to have any more misgivings than when you pack a thermos bottle in your picnic basket. The rich, somber colors they are using are good, but black in these two mentioned fabrics is just as good. There is only one condition to this. In order to be right up to the minute, you must trim your ebon gown with a touch of metal. For it must be repeated—there is seldom a formal costume of this autumn which has not struck gold.

Before turning from this vital theme of the jumper, we must call your attention to several new features of this particular model. You see that the bodice is rather long and that it is defined at the natural waistline by a narrow girdle. This is an awfully good jumper code to follow just at present. So, too, is the form of the skirt. If you turn to the back view, you will see that there is a trio of box plaits constituting the only fullness of this section. Four box plaits in the back is the usual allotment, and it is handed out to many a new jumper skirt just fresh from the other side. A last point of interest is located in the collar, a pleasing relief from the hackneyed panel front and V openings.

As I have said, it is practical to switch this model to a sports mood. If you do so, a narrow belt of either leather or self material will define the waist. And in place of the metal cloth collar, use the same old grosgrain which Chanel did so much last winter.

Leaving the province of the jumper, let us consider further that interesting subject, how to tell an autumn model from one of the spring. You really don't have to possess a specially active brain to differentiate them, for, aside from the questions of fabric and color, there are various telltale touches. One of the greatest betrayals is the matter of the sleeve.

Glance at three of the sketches here, and you will see what I mean. Sleeves are trimmed—O, most awfully trimmed. If you have any odd bit of bric-a-brac going to waste in the house, just affix it to your sleeve and even your best woman friend will find nothing to criticize in your appearance. Why should she? For they're putting a little bit of everything on this portion of the frock and wrap. Only they're particular on what part they put it.

Now there's an old proverb to the effect that to be forewarned is to be forearmed. Evidently we've all been forewarned, for certainly we're all forearmed. The part of the sleeve below the elbow—here's the pampered zone of fashion. Here to this fore section we find allotted most of the sleeve variation now going on.

Glance first, please, at the sketch second from the left. In this charming afternoon model of moss green crepe Elizabeth we see that the tight sleeves have been softened by a frill of self-material headed by rows of tiny gold buttons—again that metallic touch, you see! Then, shifting attention to the figure second from the right, we encounter a second interpretation of that mandate, trim your sleeves below the elbow. In this case a pert little flounce does the trick. Finally, at the extreme right, is a sleeve which reserves not only its trimming but its fullness for the nether part of the arm.

Here are only three of a thousand and one touches which make the sleeve of the 1925 autumn model look absolutely different. As a general statement of sleeve behavior, it may be said that the average sleeve of the present day tends to widen below the elbow.

There is another well defined impulse of autumn clothes. Turn again to the sketch second from the right and take a good look at that apron. It's neither at the front nor at the back. On the contrary, it starts from the left side front and ends at the right side rear. This sort of side tracking of aprons and flounces is immensely popular this year. These details don't seem to have much more decision of character than a weather vane. Just keep on veering to one side and you're bound to be chic.

The model with the moody apron is an adaptation of an exceedingly smart model from that clever French designer, Marthe Pinchart, and it has more asides to whisper into your ear than that apron. First of all, it is in black reps de soie, a material quite often stressed by the French creators and, second, it reveals the fashionable choker collar in all its glory. Very smart—the choker collar—and eloquent of a mode which prescribes, in association with sleeve variation, more latitude in the matter of neckline than we have witnessed for many a day.

We're still keeping time with the scarf dance, but what new measures they have introduced for us! For example, Chanel is accompanying some of her new evening frocks with the narrowest, wispiest little strands of material tied about the throat. And in the simple evening gown at the extreme left we see how the scarf may function as an indicator of a normal waistline. Here is a model of shaded green georgette made over a silver cloth slip and completed by a scarf of the same silver cloth.

The jabot is showing the same vitality of spirit. By no means have we discarded it. We've merely thought up some new tricks for it to perform. Thus, second from the left, we encounter in this moss green crepe a jabot effect which is obtained from some surplus folds at the left front of the frock. This effect merges with a flounce piped in self-material and with a draped and knotted termination of said flounce at the right.

There are many other new notes sounded by the autumn collections of Paris clothes now being shown here. Among these is the prevalence of all sorts of furs which are tinted to look as fancy as ice cream. For example, the mole dyed to a radiant mauve!

Also, there is the new mode of the fur lined coat. And, speaking of coats, perhaps you remember that last spring Lanvin brought out a coat with a flare starting from the shoulders. This is being done to a wide extent just at present and, although the vogue possibly reaches its highest peak in the domain of sports wraps, it has its advocates among those who concentrate upon the formal coat.

Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.

First, a scarf of silver cloth, taking its cue from an underslip of the same material, indicates the normal waistline on a simple evening gown of shaded green georgette. The frock, which has five shaped sections in front and the same number in the back, is also piped with silver. Next, an afternoon gown of moss green crepe Elizabeth, indicates some new tricks of jabot, flounce, and sleeve. In the center, the jumper mode is glorified into a tailored model of black satin trimmed with silver cloth and revealing such new details as the narrow belt and the box plaited back. An adaptation from Marthe Pinchart occurs fourth in black reps de soie trimmed with gold buttons and a narrow gold kid belt. Observe the new side position of the apron! Last, a frock of pencil blue crepe with embroidery of gold and black.

PARENTS STAND REVEALED by Doris Blake

Educators State That Children Are Sure Barometers of Conditions at Home.

AFTER listening in on a discussion among school teachers this summer, I was impressed with their ability to determine the character of the parents and the home from the attitude and reactions of the child in the schoolroom.

Several of the older teachers were waging a lively dispute on that popular theme of discussion everywhere—the breakdown of our American home life. One was particularly bitter on the subject of the teacher who is expected to exert discipline over a child in whose home respect for law and order is unheard.

Another related with regret several incidents among older boys, showing the false standards of success that are early implanted in youthful minds by parents who put material achievement above character and moral worth. One boy of fourteen had as his ideal in worth-while achievements a bootlegger who kept his high powered, foreign car in a garage a few doors away from his home.

If parents would like a life size portrait of themselves, I should certainly recommend them to a seat on the sidelines at one of these informal school teachers' conclaves. Some of them would slink away ashamed that their faults were so openly recognizable in their offspring, and some again would be made happy and strengthened in their work of trying to implant high ideals of duty and service in the minds of their young.

Ideas of a Noted Educator.

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal for ever twenty years of Phillips-Andover academy, and a recognized champion of the youth of our country, treats this subject of home influence and the child in a most understanding way in his book, "The Challenge of Youth."

"Even before they have been seen, writes Dr. Stearns, "parents will pretty clearly identify and classify themselves through the attitude and reactions of their offspring. Careless or earnest, ignorant or intelligent, selfish or high minded, superficial or sane, erratic or balanced, they are generally revealed by a study of their children. Never, perhaps, is that revelation clearer or more sudden than when trouble arises and merited discipline threatens. Under such conditions they will regularly be found to belong to one of three groups.

"First, there is the parent who unhesitatingly, and with every force at command, seeks to avert the threatened blow. These are the most common. The extremes to which resort is made under such conditions would be only ludicrous if they were not so tragic. Anything is done to save the family from what is felt to be disgrace, anything to protect from temporary discomfort the erring child.

When Parents Appear.

"Parents have a way of appearing at headquarters on such occasions, though, until the blow threatens, the schoolmaster might believe they did not even exist. If they lack an intellectual and cultural background, and have obtained unusual and perhaps quick success in the acquiring of material wealth, they will sometimes produce a lawyer, whose duty it is, evidently, to create an impression and stage an effect. What they are really seeking to do is to prevent that one thing which unstable youth needs more than anything else in the world, if weaknesses are to be overcome and self-reliant manhood achieved. Herein lies the tragedy of it all."

Any schoolmaster can relate countless incidents in support of Dr. Stearns' contention. One of his own experiences is around the mother of a boy dismissed from school for a flagrant offense. He had presented a telegram signed by his mother, in which it was stated that his father, who was ill, had been ordered south by his doctor for his health, that he must see the boy on immediate business before leaving home. The boy was granted permission to leave. It developed that a girl was the reason for the boy's request, and not a disabled father.

Mother Comes to Plead.

As the boy could not gain admission to his chosen college without a letter of honorable dismissal from his last school, his mother came to plead with Dr. Stearns for such a letter. In the meantime he discovered the mother herself had signed the telegram. She went to the famous schoolmaster to ask him to furnish the necessary letter, and when he refused she let out a torrent of scathing sarcasm and abuse.

A boy under such home influence can scarcely hope for anything better than the life of a human derelict, is Dr. Stearns' conclusion.

The lack of parental cooperation where youth needs discipline is the unfortunate element that school teachers have to contend with.

"Not only is the value of merited discipline as often the deciding factor in molding wavering youth into stable manhood, otherwise denied, but the real evils of wrong doing are forever concealed and the youngster faces life with no clear sense of values and too many times he is handicapped beyond redemption," says the well known educator.

In homes where parents do not agree, where differences in opinions, methods, and policies prevail, where peace and concord never show their heads, the children, in Dr. Stearns' experience, show restlessness and deceit. In natures' own way, from the days of infancy, the child seems to sense the character of the atmosphere about him and, with almost devilish instinct, plays these parents one against the other, and, sad to say, he always wins. Where there is divorce and separation, and the youngsters are shunted first to the influence of one, then to the other, the tragedy of the child becomes even more acute.

"In strong contrast to the types of parents," continues Dr. Stearns, "which have been mentioned, it is refreshing to turn to those of another kind, and it is good to know such still exist, even though they are so sadly outnumbered by the more noisy and belligerent friends.

Meeting Sane Parents.

"Nothing is more stimulating and refreshing to a headmaster's soul than to meet in the course of work, and especially where discipline is involved, the quiet, sane and supporting parents who have not forgotten the days of their own youth, who realize their children will make mistakes, and stumble, and yield; who are aware, themselves, that they were guilty of such lapses; but who know, too, that whatever strength and self-control they have secured for later years has been gained through the just punishment, and stern discipline which their offenses brought upon them. Facing parents of this type, the schoolmaster has little concern for the nature of the offense of the erring son."

The terms in which boys speak of their fathers and mothers gives an interesting cue to their home relations. "The old man," and "the old woman" tell one story. "Father" and "Mother," spoken with reverence and respect, carries the assurance that that fortunate boy has not missed in his home the hand of discipline when discipline was needed for his own upbuilding.

It Requires Tact.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a young man who I think cares for me, but he goes with a certain crowd of fellows who are not the best companions for him. What can I do to win him away from this crowd?

"CATHERINE."

You may accomplish it if you'll go about it gradually and with tact. From time to time point out things these boys do which aren't right and nice and of which you don't approve. Assure him you know he wouldn't be a party to such conduct, but by association he subjects himself to criticism also, and you feel he's doing himself an injustice He'll understand.

Practical and Fancy Needlework By CLOTILDE

ABCD EFGH

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

EMBROIDERING THE ALPHABET.

HERE is the first installment of a new alphabet. These letters will be beautiful on household linen as well as on lingerie, overblouses, or dresses. In some ways these letters are heavier than many of the alphabets, and all work is done in the raised satin stitch. Much of the beauty of embroidery naturally depends on the perfection of the work; and a letter of this kind will take time to do evenly, but will be beautiful when finished.

Each letter must be clearly transferred to the material, and tracing paper can be bought for the purpose, then a single strand of darning cotton used for the outlining. Take small, even stitches exactly on the edges, making them shorter on the wrong than on the right side. After the outlining is finished, take a double length of darning cotton in the needle for the padding or filling in. A darning stitch may be used, making it a little long on the right side and as short as possible on the wrong. This work is always done on the length of the letter, and the padding is always heavier in the center of the space, making it lighter as the outline is reached. This work should be done with the material in embroidery rings.

Choose a needle that will take the floss easily and pull through the material without any effort. If it is difficult to pull the eye through, the material will be injured.

To have embroidery good looking the work must be evenly done—and haste is out of the question. The stitch used is simply an over and over one, always taken across the letter at right angles to the filling stitches. Where there are curves, the stitches must be taken close together on the inside, and on the outer edge there must not be any spaces—try to have the stitches just meet—and on the inside never lap.

A little practice will make it possible to do beautiful work, and if one is inexperienced time will be well spent by practicing first on an ordinary piece of cloth. It is fascinating work, but unless it is well done there is no beauty in it. An excellent way to show how stitches are taken around curves will be to examine carefully a letter that is well done, keeping it where you can look at it while working.

The second installment of the letters will appear next Sunday.

KINDER-GARTEN SHOES

"Made stronger to wear longer"

Over 300,000 mothers recognize this trade mark as their guide to comfort style and longer wear in children's shoes

YOU, too, can cut the annual cost of your children's shoes. With less money you can put their little feet in shoes that are handsomer, more healthful and more comfortable—Kinder-Garten Shoes!

"Made stronger to wear longer" is not only our slogan—it is actually a delightful fact. Kinder-Garten shoes wear twice as long as ordinary shoes. And as long or longer than any shoe you can buy—regardless of price! For twenty years mothers have watched their children grow out of their sturdy Kinder-Garten shoes before they have a chance to wear them out.

Of course, we use good leather—and leather alone. But it is the way in which we build these fine shoes that makes them last so long.

Extra large thread drawn through extra small holes "pegs" the soles securely together and prevents them from ripping. Our secret process of sole leather treatment waterproofs the sole and prolongs its life.

No. 5091
One of the 115 Kinder-Garten styles

But choose these splendid shoes not alone for their long-wearing, money-saving features. Buy them because they are also flexible and comfortable and beautiful. Each size is specially shaped for growing feet and tested and retested on many children.

Your neighborhood Kinder-Garten dealer is convenient to visit with the children. He will show you Kinder-Garten shoes for every purpose—for play or school or Sunday best—from $1.75 to $6 according to age. All of them are stylish and comfortable—all of them built to wear and wear and wear! (Remember—every box of these wonderful shoes has the three dancing children on its cover.)

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington, with current market materials, and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

A SET OF BATTERS.

If you look through the textbooks on cookery you will find batters defined in various ways. Here is one definition: "All batters can be stirred with a spoon. Drop batters are somewhat stiffer than pour batters. They contain, approximately, two parts of flour to one part of moisture." Plain muffin mixture is given by this teacher as a typical drop batter, while a popover mixture is a typical "pour batter."

This particular teacher considers batters in their services in bread making, but they are equally serviceable in pudding making, in dumpling making and in the making of all forms of pancakes and waffles. The frying batter, too, has more than one use.

Referring to the textbook again, we find this: "Quick breads are divided into several classes, depending upon the propertion of flour and moisture in the batter. A pour batter is the thinnest quick bread mixture. It usually contains about equal parts of flour and moisture. A definite proportion cannot be stated, since the thickening quality of different flours varies, and the wetting quality of different moist materials varies. Many pour batters contain a little more flour than moisture."

The wetting quality of milk is a little different from that of water, and that of sour milk and cream and sour cream are considerably different from that of water. A sour cream batter, with equal parts of flour and sour cream, may be almost like a drop batter, and will make an excellent tiny muffin, but it is not exactly a drop batter, because it pours better. Both milk and cream flavor and enrich a batter, and so does eggs, which is supposedly added for leavening it; and, while we speak of butter as shortening, its addition to a batter flavors it. Cheese is a quite wonderful flavoring for a batter. No cooking lesson can be more valuable than one on batters, because they have so many adaptations, and are so easy to manipulate and to use for all manner of quick and short time effects. More satisfactory and pleasant effects can be got with batters, quickly and encouragingly, than by almost any other cooking effort.

If a young cook knows how to make batters she cannot only make the quick muffin and pancake and dumpling without having to look up a recipe, but she can also make splendid fritters, the waffle, the popover and spoon bread, and many sorts of desserts. And best of all, by learning the simple batter principles or proportions she can link all these different results in her mind as simple variations of one and the same thing, so that she will never have the feeling that she must learn a great number of recipes in order to make all these things mentioned. She will not exhaust her patience over such easy things as this, nor get tired out because she is undisciplined in using her cooking muscles. And being happy in doing these things and pleased with the results, she will in time try recipes requiring more effort and discipline—more simple muscle discipline and more of the less simple mental discipline.

The cooking teacher combines with her lesson on "pour batters" that of "leavening with steam and air," as popovers are largely leavened. The egg in them, finally stiffened by heat, holds fast all the lightness acquired by beating in air and developing steam by heating the wet mass of batter. And so we come to the question of applying heat to batters, but before that we must not only grasp the idea of what proportions of ingredients to use but how to treat those ingredients. Air is beaten into them, but it may also be beaten out, as the girl realized who said, "I have stirred and beaten all the gas out of pancakes, and wondered why they did not rise." Soda and baking powder when wet generate a gas, and only so much beating of the batter must be done, then, as is required to distribute the gas through the batter. Beating longer than that will break down the bubbles of gas.

The Cooking of Batters.

When we consider the cooking of batters we can best realize how many things we can do with them. Suppose we had only a griddle iron or a "girdle," as it is often called in the British Isles. The Scotch are not satisfied with one sort of bread at a meal—they say "cakes," as we do in mentioning pancakes—and they can bake many different ones on a griddle. The Irish use the griddle, and have a supremely fine product from it called the crumpet. We know the status of the English muffin, which is baked on a griddle. With muffin rings we may bake batter cakes of a number of sorts, and exceptionally fine ones, on the griddle. The frying pan or "spider" cakes are of the same order. With no other utensil than a frying pan, and without an oven, we would not need to go without breads if we knew batters. If we have an oven we can still bake in the frying pan in it.

Suppose we had only the pot for cooking. Some primitive people have had this one and only utensil in which they have made, according to the country they have lived in, the porridge, the pot au feu, and other boiled meats and soups and vegetables. Having to cook our batter in a pot, we may call the product a dumpling. There are not a few fine dumplings to be made and not a few that are of national note, including the apple dumpling—which we now know, however, is infinitely superior if baked instead of boiled.

If we had such facilities only as the simplest of the Spanish and Italian cooks have we would cook our batter in deep fat. We then might get something resembling a doughnut, or in that batter—one containing nothing but flour and water perhaps—we might have fish or meat or vegetables well coated and delicious.

Our own American cooking skill with the batter has been largely developed through cooking it in the oven, though we steam batters of the drop type. Some of our superior oven baked batters are the popover, the spoon bread, and the little tea muffin. But we bake our batters on griddles also, and in those ancient types of double irons which give the waffle when they have deep lozenges, and the wafer when but etched. These represent a famous type of baked batter called in France and Belgium the gaufre and gaufrette. We do not do as well with the batter cooked in fat or in water, yet we do use these methods with doughs and sometimes with batters. And this brings us to the definitions of doughs, of one of them. Even a soft dough contains approximately three parts flour to one of wetness, and a stiff dough contains approximately four parts, according to the old definition, though nowadays we do not make stiff doughs for yeast breads, but keep nearer to the three parts flour to one of moisture.

Batter Variations.

We vary our batters by using either a sweet milk and baking powder, a sour milk or cream and baking soda, egg instead of either as in popovers, and we add sugar—if enough we get cake batters. And, of course, we get the widest variations by the combinations we make with them, although no small number of variations may be secured with one and the same batter by cooking it in different ways. For instance, there are the splendid timbales and the rosettes made by dipping hot irons in fat and then in a batter, and back into the fat again. Very simple batters with an egg are used for these, but the skill required for cooking them is great, although an amateur might hit it off the first time.

The Frying Batter.

The frying batter forms a coating over a food that would cook too crisp and dry if dropped into exceedingly hot fat. The batter protects it, while

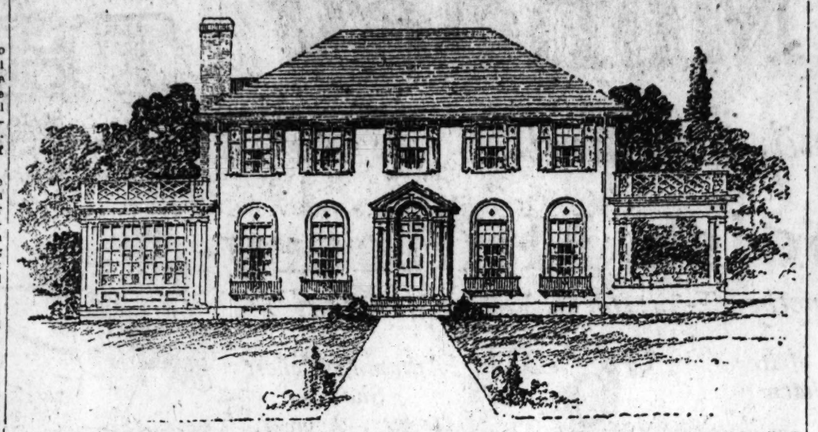
The HOME HARMONIOUS

By Anita de Campi



IT'S A COLONIAL.

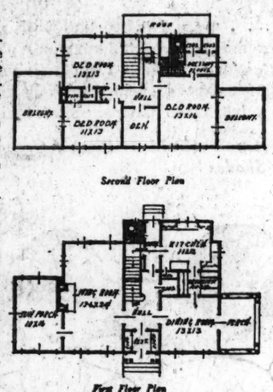
DISTINCTIVE of the Colonial style is the pleasing sense of symmetry embodied in the home illustrated today. Robt. L. Stevenson of Boston, Mass., is the architect. The good balance and attractive lines of the house give it an air of refinement and dignity which will never depreciate. Besides being a practical house in which to live, it is one which will not grow tiresome, even over a period of many years.

Touches of ornamentation lend a distinction to the exterior. The living and dining rooms have circular headed windows. Decorative wrought iron balconies beneath these windows are an interesting detail. The balanced arrangement of porches at each end of the house produces a feeling of spaciousness. Importance is given to the entrance door by the introduction of a pillared pediment and a delightful fanlight.

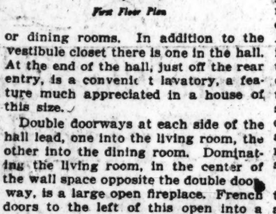
As the actual shape of the house is quite simple, it is a thoroughly economical one to build. All of the rooms are of good size, and so placed that ample space is provided for the desired furnishings.

Just inside the front door is a small vestibule with a coat closet on one side and a built-in seat on the other. The top of the seat lifts, affording storage space beneath.

Beyond the vestibule is a generous sized hall facing a staircase of Colonial design. The walls here are wainscoted and intended to have an old scenic paper above. Beside the staircase a passageway connects with the rear entry and with the kitchen, so that in answering the front doorbell the servant need not pass through the living or dining rooms. In addition to the vestibule closet there is one in the hall. At the end of the hall, just off the rear entry, is a convenient lavatory, a feature much appreciated in a house of this size.



Second Floor Plan



First Floor Plan

Double doorways at each side of the hall lead, one into the living room, the other into the dining room. Dominating the living room, in the center of the wall space opposite the double doorway, is a large open fireplace. French doors to the left of this open into a pleasant sun porch. This makes an enjoyable addition to the living room. Although the living room has five windows, there is still plenty of wall space for the proper placement of furniture.

On the other side of the hallway is the dining room. There are two windows facing the front and French doors to the open porch on the side. This porch could be screened to make a delightful outdoor place for eating the summertime meals.

Leading from the dining room to the kitchen is a short passage with a breakfast nook, of built-in table and benches at one side and a commodious built-in cabinet at the other. Windows in two sides promise that the kitchen will be well aired and lighted at all times. There is a closet off the kitchen for brooms, vacuum cleaners, etc. Ample provision of cupboards and cabinets in the kitchen simplifies the storage of canned goods, preserves, china, and cooking utensils.

Upstairs there are three good sized bedrooms, all with fine closet space. The largest bedroom has four windows. A convenient little dressing room adjoins. At the back of the dressing room are two closets, and there is a door opening into the tiled bathroom. Another door from the bathroom leads into the hall. At one end of the hall there is a linen press. Each of the other two bedrooms has windows on two sides, so that they will not be stuffy. The little room in the center of the front of the house designated as "den" could be made into a lovely reading room, with built-in book shelves lining the two side walls.

For the exterior it is suggested that the walls be a creamy white, chimney and entrance steps of variegated red brick, and window sashes of jade green. The width of the house over all, at porches, is 56 feet. The main house contains an area of 1,050 square feet.

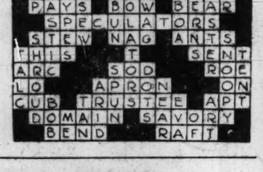
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE.



TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

the great heat causes all its juices to expand, and its solid parts to cook so quickly that they have a peculiarly fine quality which can be secured in no other way. The Italian "fritti," in which the Italian cooks dip almost anything to fry, contains often nothing but flour and water and a little oil. A satisfactory batter in which to dip fruit or cooked vegetables is: Beat two tablespoons of flour with two tablespoons of cold water till smooth and add in one tablespoon of egg white after beating it till stiff. Double this or multiply according to need.

A Simple Dumpling.

A simple dumpling to be cooked on top of the stew made in a kettle with a close fitting cover may be made in as small a quantity as one-half cup of flour, one-fourth cup of milk, one-eighth teaspoon of salt and one teaspoon of baking powder will make. But the beginning cook would perhaps best begin with one cup of flour, one-half cup of milk, two teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt. In listing these simple ingredients the milk is mentioned immediately after the flour in order to emphasize the fact that these are the two main ingredients. There are people who can make dumplings with no other ingredients than these, but, logically, when we are to use baking powder, it should be mentioned immediately after the flour. In making this dumpling, sift the flour, baking powder, and salt into a small bowl, make a little well in the middle of it, pour in the milk, then work the flour into the milk carefully, and smoothly, so as to get a smooth batter, and beat it just enough to complete its smoothness. Take up one tablespoon of it and, using another spoon, drop the pieces into the hot stew or even into boiling water, trying to get as shaggedy balls as you can. Cover the kettle closely and do not open it for twelve or fifteen minutes according to their size. Such dumplings may be cooked in a fruit juice, and may have fruit mixed into the batter for them. The chicken stew called the fricassee furnishes a liquid which flavors this batter deliciously. When the batter is correctly cooked it is as dry inside and as light as a fine baking powder biscuit.

A Sailor's Batter Pudding.

Mr. William Reade Hersey, with a long preface and many remarks, has recently described the plum duff made by a sea cook as follows: "He boils the raisins and saves the liquor which goes into the sauce. He butters a big deep pan; sugars it, flours it; lines it with raisins. Then the batter, blackened with more raisins, goes slowly in—exactly the tensile, half-sticky batter, leaving the bowl with regrets. And then a touch akin to the intuition of a French chef—in order to give it that quick bottom heat so necessary to very wet doughs, he starts it on top of the stove and finishes, covered with a pan, in an oven so moderate you would hardly know it from a June day."

In making batter puddings, whether they are to be steamed or baked, we may use a little more liquid in proportion to the amount of flour used than we use in making the dumpling to be dropped into a hot liquid. For a small amount of batter take one cup of flour and two-thirds of a cup of milk, and use with this a little salt and one or two teaspoons of baking powder, according to your skill or according to the brand used. Put this together just as you do the dumpling, beating it up quickly and stopping the beating when the smooth effect is secured. Put one tablespoon of this batter into a buttered custard cup, add one tablespoon of fruit and then another tablespoon of batter; then steam or bake for one-half hour, and serve with a sweet sauce. If apple is the fruit used serve with sweetened cream or rich milk, flavored with a little nutmeg. With the apple this little pudding is quite as agreeable as an apple dumpling, and much easier to make. Another fine fruit to use with this batter is the blueberry. Or dates are good.

FIGURES ON FASHION'S RUN-WAY

(from Paris to Chicago)

Fall—1925

These figures of Fashion on which every eye is centered, poise on the brink of the season—then turn with whimsical small whirls and display themselves bright messengers from Paris. A willow-slender dancing frock, all swirling rose soft velvet and brilliants, carries Monsieur Patou's message to perfection:

"In a word—the whole psychology of this season's fashions is dominated by the taste for sports and dancing."

And so it is that each figure on the run-way, as the expression of an artist designer, demonstrates that clothes in these practical and aesthetic times must respond to the exigencies of daily life.

Mannequins will promenade on the fourth floor.

FASHION FOREMOST

Our Fall Opening this year stresses the Parisian frock as never before. And our collections include the choicest pieces from

LELONG LANVIN RENEE
PATOU DOEUILLET
DRECOLL VIONNET JENNY

as each one of these sketches on this page testifies:

We have planned a careful programme of advertising for each day—spot-lighting various fashion features of high interest and indicating our complete readiness in all apparel and accessory departments. Watch the Tribune for the coming advertisements which will carry through the authentic "fashion foremost idea."

MR. SLIG SETS A TRAP.

BY WM. DONAHEY

SOME one had been prowling around Mr. Slig's house. Mrs. Slig had missed a pudding she had put in the window to cool. Mr. Slig's shovel turned up missing one morning and a few nights later a pick was gone.

Loaded his gun with salt and pepper.

"There's some one stealin' around here," Mr. Slig told Mrs. Slig. "A shovel and a pick and a puddin' can't walk off all by themselves—it isn't natural."

"Why don't you load your gun with pepper and salt and sit up some night?" asked Mrs. Slig.

"It's too hard to keep awake," answered Mr. Slig. "I always get a heavy eye when I'm sittin'."

"I'd be glad to sit by with the poker," said Mrs. Slig. "I'd keep you awake."

"Maybe you could sit up and watch," suggested Mr. Slig. "You certainly can do a great deal of damage with a poker."

"Sittin' up for a thief is a man's work," answered Mrs. Slig. "I have enough to do keepin' you and the children on your good behavior."

It was Mr. Nickeldick in full evening dress.

Mr. Slig decided to watch the next night, so he loaded his old gun with a great charge of red pepper and salt. When it grew dark, he sat down under a mulberry tree to watch. It was broad daylight when he opened his eyes.

"I must have taken a wink of sleep," muttered Mr. Slig, and crawling out of the bush he looked around to see if anything was missing.

His ax was gone. Now, Mr. Slig cared little when his shovel and pick were stolen, for he hated to handle a pick and shovel, but his ax—that was different. He had to cut wood for the Slig fireplace and an ax was quite necessary. It was Mr. Slig's favorite ax that had been taken, and he was angry.

The ax had been standing against a tree near the kitchen door. Mr. Slig examined the ground. There were tracks about the tree. They were faint tracks, so Mr. Slig examined them closely. They looked much like badger tracks—there was a sort of badgery smell about them.

Mr. Slig smiled and fished out his pipe—he wanted to think and a pipe full of opossum tobacco always helped him.

Mr. Slig nodded and smoked a great deal. He scratched his ear and puckered up his eyebrows.

"Those badger tracks look pretty suspicious," mumbled Mr. Slig. "I'll bet that good for nothin' Johnny Waters has been a snoopin' around here. He's always diggin' for worms and bugs, and I'll bet my last pipe full of tobacco he's taken that ax to chop open old rotten logs for grubs."

Mr. Slig smoked and thought. Finally he grinned, and presently he laughed right out loud. His fat stomach trembled and shook like a mold of jelly when some one bumps the dinner table.

"I'll do it," chuckled Mr. Slig, "I'll do it. It's a mighty good way of takin' a thief."

He waddled into the house and told Mrs. Slig his plan. They sat down and laughed all over the davenport.

Mr. Slig found some stout rope. Next he took his second most favorite ax and cut some stakes, which he drove into the ground under a young tree. He then threw the end of the rope over the top of the tree. He called Mrs. Slig and the two of them pulled the tree over until it bent nearly to the ground. Mr. Slig had made a big sliding loop in the other end of the rope and this he spread on the ground after first attaching it to the stakes. He fixed a clever trigger to the rope which would release the rope when a person walked against it.

"There," said Mr. Slig when the work was done, "I'll set a couple of rakes and a hoe against that tree and when the thief walks up to take them he'll step on the trigger. That will release the rope and the bent tree will spring back, catch his foot in the loop of rope, and he'll get jerked up and be left swinging in the air."

Mrs. Slig laughed so hard she cried. "Slig!" she said, wiping her eyes with her apron, "if you were not my husband I'd be proud of you."

"Thank you for the compliment," answered Mr. Slig, making a bow to Mrs. Slig.

"Now, Mrs. Slig," said Mr. Slig, "let us have supper so we can go to bed good and early, for I want to be up with the sun to see whether I have captured the thief."

Mrs. Slig soon had a bite set on the table. The four little Sligs were asleep under the table so Mr. Slig ate his soup with as little noise as possible. He nodded a few times over his salad and went completely to sleep in his pie. He slept for almost an hour, when he was suddenly awakened by Mrs. Slig.

"Slig! Slig!" cried Mrs. Slig, "you've caught the thief."

Mr. Slig wiped some pie out of his eye, and listened. Loud squeals for help came out of the night. Mr. Slig took a candle and went outside.

Some one was swinging in the tree. It was Mr. Nickeldick. He was hanging by one foot in full evening dress He was pawing frantically to keep his coat tails in place.

"Good evening, Mr. Nickeldick," said Mr. Slig.

"Good evening, Mr. Slig," answered Mr. Nickeldick. "I was passing by and I thought I'd stop in for a minute, but I was suddenly detained."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Nickeldick," said Mr. Slig, "but you have stepped into a trap I had set to catch a thief. Just make yourself at home and I'll go into the house for a knife to cut you down."

Mr. Slig hurried into the house for the butcher knife, but he could not find it. He hunted the house through without result.

"Poor Mr. Nickeldick will be terribly bored out there, hanging in the tree," he told Mrs. Slig. "I'd better take something out to him to keep him amused."

Mr. Slig caught up a book of poetry and hurried out to Mr. Nickeldick.

"I can't find the butcher knife," Mr. Slig told Mr. Nickeldick, "so I have brought this book for you to read while I am hunting for the knife."

Mr. Nickeldick tried to read, but his glasses would not stay on his nose while hanging head downwards, so he looked at the pictures.

Mr. Nickeldick tried to read.

Presently Mr. Slig appeared with the knife. He quickly cut Mr. Nickeldick down and helped him to his feet.

"I'm sorry, sir, to have caused you all this trouble," said Mr. Slig.

"I hope you will pardon me disturbing your trap," answered Mr. Nickeldick with a bow. "It was quite by accident."

At Mr. Slig's invitation, Mr. Nickeldick went into the house for a cup of tea. It was served in Mrs. Slig's best Dresden china cup and on Mrs. Slig's best drawnwork luncheloth. Mr. Nickeldick was much pleased at the honor shown him, and he stayed until Mrs. Slig snored into her tea.

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Pay

ISN'T it odd that a chicken should have no pores in its skin and should be unable to perspire as do animals of the mammal type!

Yet this is a fact. No member of the feathered tribe perspires. They are not built that way. Perspiration is chiefly a means of keeping an even temperature, is a scheme of refrigeration. The feathered tribe resorts to other means of remaining cool when the thermometer is high. It uses interior ventilation.

It is odd to know, also, the peculiar purposes that are served by the possession of such bits of information as the fact that chickens do not perspire.

There was the case of the advertiser of a fake scheme for keeping insects off of chickens, for instance. His scheme went to pot as soon as it was seen by the men of science of the department of agriculture, because they knew that chickens did not perspire.

This advertiser was selling an insecticide which, he claimed, would do away with all the trouble people take to get rid of insects in hen houses. Instead of taking the trouble to dust the chickens and their houses with insect powders, he argued, the chicken should be induced to disinfect itself.

A simple and recognized chemical enemy of insects was chosen as the means which was alleged to accomplish the desired end. This chemical, the advertiser claimed, might be introduced into the body of the chicken by dissolving it in its drinking water. When it took a drink the chemical would get into its system. Then the chicken would go about the barnyard, would scratch busily in the hay, would develop a healthy perspiration. The chemical would come out in that perspiration just as salt does in that of the human brow. The chemical would be present among the feathers. The insects that inhabit chickens could not endure the chemical. They would be killed or would go away from there.

But, knowing that chickens do not perspire, the experts knew this claim was not true. There are laws that forbid the sale of fake insecticides. The laws were invoked, the advertiser was called before the bar of justice, was convicted. Odd information had served its purpose.

$5 APIECE FOR BRIGHT SAYINGS

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee. The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Mrs. Scott was unable to take Willie to school for his first day, so the little boy was intrusted to the escort of a group of older children, who left him in the line of little beginners at the school building.

Seated at last in the strange room, he was so absorbed in his surroundings that it was hard to keep in mind all the things mother had told him he must or must not do.

When Miss Hill asked him, the very first one, "What is your name, please?" he was taken by surprise and rather frightened.

"Mr. Scott," he quavered politely.

My small brother was in the habit of always placing himself first when relating something. We had corrected him repeatedly.

One day, after a little adventure, he came home and started telling mother about it, saying the usual "Me and Ned and Carl!"

Mother said, "What have I told you about 'Me'?"

The little fellow, being flustered, said, "I mean, myself last, and me and Ned and Carl did something." V. L.

I was giving a dinner and all my guests had arrived with the exception of the Rev. and Mrs. Cooke. I had been busy in the kitchen, and as the dinner was informal my tiny son was permitted to answer the door. He had heard me saying who my guests were to be, but had evidently missed the names of the Cookes.

When the doorbell rang again he answered it. When he saw it was the Rev. Mr. Cooke and wife he opened the door just a little way and called to me for information, "Muzzer, are the Cookes invited?"

Phyllis was calling upon me one day and I was entertaining her by showing her some picture books which belonged to me when I was her age.

She sat turning the leaves, much absorbed in each page.

I asked her the names of her brothers, and then her sister's name.

She said, "Lucille Allington Savage."

I said, "Was Allington your mama's last name before she was married?"

"I don't know. I didn't know my mama before she was married," was the reply.

One morning mother was awakened by Donald saying: "Get up, mother; I've cooked breakfast."

Mother arose to find breakfast neatly prepared and on the table.

"But, Donald, how did you know how to make toast?" she asked.

"O, that's easy," replied Donald. "I just took it to the stove and burned it and then took it to the sink and scratched it."

My neighbor, Jordan, came proudly into my yard with a small black and white dog.

I said, "Hello, Jordan; what is that, a fox terrier?"

Jordan looked thoughtfully at the dog and replied, "No, sir; that dog is a full blooded United Stateman."

Several relatives dropped in for a week's visit, and we were crowded for sleeping quarters. A small niece was put to bed in a crib which was too short for her sturdy 5 year old self.

"O, aunty," she exclaimed, "I'm too long for this bed! But I guess it will be all right if I wrinkle up my legs."

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

HINTS TO YOU WHO ARE MOVING.

A GREAT many of us were busy last week arranging for the movers, emptying out trunks, closets, and storerooms, and generally getting ready for moving day. What a lot of things turned up that we can't take along—drapes and curtains that won't do in the new apartment, furniture that won't fit, and clothing outgrown. We know we can't take them, yet we don't want to discard the things while there's use left in them—so what to do.

That's just where we can be a tremendous help. There are thousands of families in the city who are facing the winter without anything, and they are greatly worried as to how they'll get through the cold months. Why not solve the problem of what to do with the things you can't move by letting me turn them over to some of these families that need them so desperately? Anything at all that you have to give will fill a need somewhere and will help some poor family tremendously.

Remember, you'll do nothing with such articles except to place them in the attic or storeroom or throw them away. Think of the great good they'll do if you'll let me distribute them among the hundreds of cases I have on file—and then write, please, telling me what you have! I'll promise to place every article where it will do more good than you thought possible.

All Need Clothing.

"I am coming to you for help. My children—a boy, 3, twin boys of 6, and girls, 4, 7, and —are all in need of clothing, and I expect another little one shortly. I will be glad to receive any children's or baby clothes. It is more than I can do to keep them dressed, and meet the bills, so I would be grateful for your help. L. R."

This mother from the stockyard district will be glad to pay postage on anything you may have to send her, and we hope you can help solve her problem.

Writes for Neighbor.

"I wonder if any of your readers have baby clothes to give to a deserving mother in our neighborhood. She has four small children, the oldest under seven years, and is expecting another this month. Her husband has been sick and out of work. He is willing to do any kind of outside work but cannot seem to get a job. Any kindness you are able to extend to them will be appreciated, I know. C. S."

I wish you could realize the good that your gift of baby clothes will do in a case like this one. Every article helps, and we will be glad to hear from you if you have something to donate to this expectant mother.

Widow Deserves Aid.

"A neighbor's husband was killed last Christmas, leaving her with five little girls, 13, 9, 7, 5, and 3. She is a neat woman, interested in keeping her family together and looking respectable, but she has had a hard time to make ends meet, and all of the children, as well as herself, need clothing badly. I wonder if some of your readers can help this mother with the clothes problem?
C. P. P."

Fall is on the way, with the first day of school coming around once more. Can some one help to clothe these children properly for school?

Who'll Give Day Bed?

"I wonder if some of your readers has a day bed which is no longer in use? We are in need of one, but cannot afford to buy one. My father is dead and I am the only one working. It is hard for me to provide all of our needs. I will be so happy to hear from you if some reader does have a day bed not in use.
L. S."

This correspondent has come to us before and been so grateful that we are printing this second request for her, with the hope that it is granted.

Grateful for Chair.

"What I am asking for is of real importance to me. I am a woman over sixty years, and afflicted, as I am, I cannot sit on the hard wooden chairs which are all they have in this institution. I would be grateful if some one having a soft spring chair no longer needed would pass it on to me.
"M. R."

Can you provide my correspondent with the comfort afforded by a soft spring chair? She will appreciate your kindness, I assure you.

You, yourself, rarely know when you have halitosis (unpleasant breath). That's the insidious thing about it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. It is an interesting thing that this well-known antiseptic that has been in use for years for surgical dressings, possesses these unusual properties as a breath deodorant.

Listerine halts food fermentation in the mouth and leaves the breath sweet, fresh and clean. Not by substituting some other odor but by really removing the old one. The Listerine odor itself quickly disappears.

This safe and long-trusted antiseptic has dozens of different uses: note the little circular that comes with every bottle. Your druggist sells Listerine in the original brown package only—never in bulk. There are four sizes: 14 ounce, 7 ounce, 3 ounce and 1½ ounce. Buy the large size for economy.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

LISTERINE Throat Tablets are now available. Please do not make the mistake of expecting them to correct bad breath. Rely on the Liquid, Listerine. Containing all of the antiseptic essential oils of Listerine, however, they are very valuable as a relief for throat irritations—25 cents.

FOUNDER'S DAY

Celebrating the Opening of Our Third Store

With the Greatest Values Offered in 43 Years

The New Mid-West Store—Now Open!

Ashland—Monroe—Ogden

Incorporating every new and modern convenience, it stands supreme as the most beautiful and most completely appointed Popular Price Department Store in all America. The West Side's own store—easily reached by street car, motor coach, or the "L". Those who desire to drive will find safe parking space for hundreds of cars with no time limit.

The West Town Store

On Milwaukee Ave. Near Ashland

The first store of three—located in the heart of the Milwaukee Ave. business district. It serves the surrounding territory with dependable, popular price merchandise, day in and day out, at uniformly low prices. It is this store's great growth that made possible our first expansion in 1917 —when the North Town Store was established.

The North Town Stores

On Lincoln Ave. Near Belmont

The North Town Stores consist of two buildings—a seven-story and basement building constructed in 1917, and a two-story and basement building erected across the street with connecting basements in 1924. The largest establishment of the three, and by far the finest department store on the great North Side.

AGAIN it is here—"Founder's Day"—the greatest event of the year! But this time it is of more than usual importance—we have two great events to celebrate—the opening of our new third store and the founding of W. A. Wieboldt & Co. forty-three years ago. This is probably the first time in the history of retail merchandising that a sale has been held to commemorate two like events.

Because of this fact—this rare coincidence—we have spared neither time nor money to assemble the great quantity of merchandise to be offered in this event. Many months ago, during their slack season, the manufacturers were keeping their factories running making this merchandise for us, and because of this condition we bought it at prices far below regular, and offer it to you at great savings.

Into every great market in the world our buyers were sent to secure the finest merchandise at the lowest possible prices. By steamship, by rail and by motor truck this merchandise has been arriving—and now it is ready for your selection.

Everything is brand new—no leftovers nor broken lots are offered. Just the things for fall that everybody needs—and not an item but what is marked at a lower price than you usually have to pay—even at The Wieboldt Stores. Please do not expect these prices to be maintained after this merchandise is sold.

Lowest-in-the-city prices every day, but lower by far on Founder's Day. Be sure to read the four following pages for real value news.

1500 New Fall Silk DRESSES

FOUNDERS DAY SPECIAL

A Score of the Latest Styles!

Such a collection! Never before have we offered dresses of such charm and individuality at so low a price. The fabrics most in vogue for fall are greatly in evidence—delightful weaves such as:

Patou crepe, brilliant satins, satin faced crepes, wool jerseys, soft flannels and twill fabrics.

You'll find many unique style features such as circular flare fronts—pleated tunics, long tight sleeves, pouch sleeves, etc., of course the lines are straight and tube-like—many long waisted models with shirred flare bottoms.

Every dress is ornamented in some clever, new way—with metal and colored glass buttons—bonnaz and colored embroideries, laces, georgette crepe—jabots, pleated frills.

And every color of the rainbow is here to choose from—the most prominent among them are pansy, pencil blue, Bokhara, wine, tan and black! Do not fail to investigate this offering—it is an event no style-interested woman should miss.

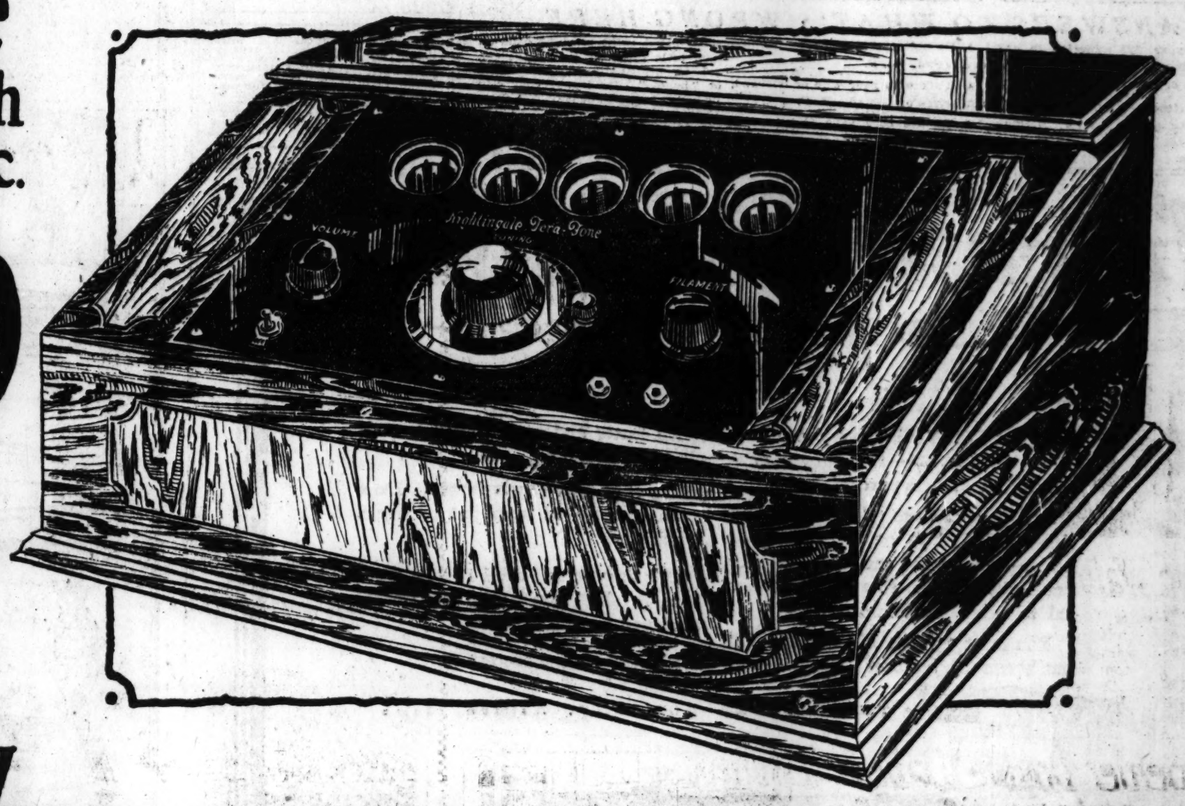
5 TUBE RADIO SETS

The "Nightingale Tera-Fone"

Completely Equipped With Batteries, Tubes, Loudspeaker etc.

$69.50

FOUNDERS DAY SPECIAL



$10 Down - $10 Monthly

On Sale At All Three Wieboldt Stores

Here Are the Accessories With Which This Set Is Equipped

A Manhattan loud-speaker—known for its exceptional tone qualities. Fiber horn, black crystallized finish—with adjustable unit in base.

Five guaranteed tubes—bakelite bases—tipless style. Guaranteed to be as efficient as any tube on the market.

A 90-ampere hour extra duty storage battery with binding post connectors, composition rubber case finished in crystallized black, and complete with handy carrying handle.

Two 45-volt long-life "B" batteries—a fresh stock just received.

Ground equipment—25 feet of insulated wire, and adjustable ground clamp.

* * *

A two-way plug for connecting the loud-speaker.

Just One Single Master Dial to Tune!

HERE at last is a radio set at a moderately low price with all the finer points of higher price models, plus several new improvements. The "Nightingale Tera-Fone" is a different radio set from any other, and does not follow in many ways, the generally accepted principles of construction and operation, resulting in a set uniquely different in operation and reception.

This set, already famous in the East, has never been featured in Chicago before, and through a fortunate deal, consummated many months ago, we were able to secure five hundred of these sets to offer as the outstanding feature of "Founders Day." At $69.50 it is complete—absolutely nothing else to buy. Simply connect the batteries and ground and tune in your favorite station. The operation is so simple a child experiences no difficulty in tuning in distant stations.

And remember—you need not pay cash! $10.00 down will buy this outfit; then you may pay the balance monthly while you are enjoying the broadcasts. Installed at a nominal charge.

No Aerial nor Loop Required!

Facts About the NIGHTINGALE TERA-FONE

It is a five tube tuned radio frequency receiver that operates to a maximum degree of efficiency without an aerial.

* * *

The single vernier dial is the only tuning dial, every station may be logged for future reference.

* * *

Extensive tests have shown this set to be unexcelled for volume, clarity of tone and selectivity.

* * *

Stations far, as well as stations near, come in with loud-speaker volume and with a clearness that is marvelous.

The "B" batteries are concealed within the set—out of sight and out of harm's way.

* * *

The cabinet is finished in mahogany—some two-tone effect—a charming addition to any living room.

Beautiful Furniture

Is a Source of Inspiration

THE young business man who has a home of his own—whether it be an apartment or a bungalow—and who is gathering into that home some of the beautiful articles of furniture and furnishings which he and his family enjoys, is making for himself a constant source of inspiration. From that home he can go out into the world and do bigger and better things because of the force which that home gives. We consider it a work of great importance to the community to have a part in making thousands of such homes possible through our system of extended charge accounts. By this plan payments may be arranged for, according to your individual circumstances.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

"KEEP MOVING" COSTUMES.

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Modern life makes it increasingly hard to find time or place in which to stand still. In the street taxis keep you on the jump. You can't have a quiet cup of tea any more, for just after you take your first sip, the irritable jazz orchestra starts up and somebody gets you out on the floor, where stepping lively is your only salvation.

Even at home the radio and the phonograph make motion incapable, and the prevalence of bootleggers often makes your bed move around. In the movies the figures on the screen step around so rapidly that you come out feeling as if you yourself had been chased by the latest comedian with a substitute for pie in hand.

Up to now there was one quiet spot where you could and did stand still, and stand by the hour, and that was at the dressmaker's. The well being of your new clothes depended on it, although most of us prefer to move after the first twenty minutes. Now Paris has conceived the idea of creating clothes in motion. That is, a Frenchman, and one of the leading couturiers of Paris has made the experiment, which proves to be a great success. That is Lucien Lelong.

M. Lelong was troubled about creating clothes on dummies, as most dressmakers do. "Women," said he, "never stand still nowadays." "The only woman who ever did stand still for any length of time was Galatea, and Pygmalian made her move on." So he tried out his "in movement" idea. Clothes created on the move, and for people who step lively.

He presented his three hundred models on the first of August, and every single, solitary one was made in this novel way. You sat down and looked at a moving figure on a screen, which presently emerged and proved to be a mannequin, dressed in a gorgeous new costume that was the first of the Lelong kinetic clothes. Naturally, since everybody moves forward in natural motion, the line of these new autumn clothes is a forward moving line, with the flares chiefly concentrated in front, where stepping occurs. In the same manner waistlines are lifted in front, just as the body moves, and skirts are, occasionally raised at the hemline in front also, while necklines move downward, just as the head dips a trifle when we walk.

Our first offering is one of the first of these in movement costumes from Lelong, and one that M. Lelong himself thinks expresses the idea very well. There is a slim little dress of bois du rose crepe satin with flaring side front panels, above a fur banded hemline. The wide front girdle that is cut in one with the side panels is lifted in a V to the normal waistline, where it meets the long band ties that hang from the V neckline. The back is straight.

1. Forward moving ensemble of bois du rose, trimmed with kolinski. | 2. Tailored coat of Persian lamé and beaded georgette frock form smart ensemble. | 3. Sports dress of brown and beige wool chevronné has new kilted skirt. | 4. Black broadcloth trimmed with graded bands of satin; ermine collar.

Over this is worn a coat of a new, long nap wool, soft and silky, called shapska, and in the same tone of bois du rose. The coat is cut with side front godets that curve out sharply below the hips, and give the coat a nice roomy flare at the bottom, which is accentuated in the cause of chic by a deep band of kolinski fur.

The collar and cuffs are also of kolinski. The sleeves are loose and comfortable, and fitted into large armholes that are generous enough to allow a golf swing unhampered.

A word about the color, which is nominally bois du rose, but for the winter has deepened into a richer tint that is almost a raspberry shade. You are going to see a lot of that shade before the season is over, if Paris has anything to say in the matter.

Our second offering is a kinetic evening ensemble, probably sewed to the latest American jazz and designed to keep us going even after the usual closing hours. It is dazzling in the subdued way, with a dainty little sleeveless frock of mauve georgette, having three graded and flaring front panels from normal and hip waistlines. These panels are encrusted with violet and silver embroidery and banded around the bottom with violet velvet bands. The V neck is also embroidered in scrolls of silver and violet.

The coat is made of one of the new Persian lames with tiny figures in green gold and violet scattered all over its surface. It is trimly tailored and has a dropped shoulder line, which gives the line a bit more verve than the old straight line. This coat is flared with circular insets at the sides of the front, and is lined with violet velvet. The sleeves flare gently from the upper arm where they go on duty, to the wrist, where they are banded with fur.

The big collar and the band at the bottom of the coat are of the same fur, which is violet fox. Of course, you never saw a purple fox, and you probably never hope to see one, but you will see plenty of purple fox bands ornamenting evening and even daytime coats this winter, for the Paris fashion makers have grown weary of renard natural, and while not tired of this really beautiful fur, they wanted a change in color, so they are making it pink, blue, green, violet, and all of the other bright and smart shades.

Some of the houses use this fur even on sports clothes, and all of them use it on evening coats and dresses. But we must go back to our kinetic clothes before we forget them.

Our third model is also a moving creation, and this time for sports. Lelong has selected the most animated material for this dress, a brown and beige wool chevronne, all full of zigzag lines, and he has made the skirt for freedom of marching, with a lot of deep kilts at the sides and side front. The jumper is different, and deserves close attention, for its inevitable row of buttons come at the bottom instead of at the neckline, it is fitted in no uncertain way to the normal waistline, and it is curved up at the center of the lower edge to remind you of a moving figure. The bishop sleeves have flaring cuffs, with bands of brown, and the pointed collar is of brown.

Our fourth offering is still an in motion model, but timed to the sober pace of our morning hours, with its scantly circular skirt tunic, banded with graded bands of black satin, in pleasant contrast to the dull black of the broadcloth from which the frock is made. The unusual girdle, lifted and double pointed in front, and the deep cuffs give this dress a lot of distinction. The yoke, too, is another item of interest, dipping in V's under the arms.

The collar is of ermine, and extends down to meet the top of the little yoke, terminating in narrow black satin ties. Knowing you cannot move very well in tight sleeves, Lelong makes these sleeves quite loose, as he does practically all of the sleeves in his autumn models.

Paris is all het up about these moving models, and tired women are looking forward to a pleasant hour at the fitter's, with a little jazz and a promenade to make it less an ordeal.

How to Use the Patterns

FLARES are seen on a great many dresses today, and they are generally becoming and make walking a more graceful operation than many of the exaggeratedly tight ones do. Pattern No. 2498 is a pretty design for an afternoon or street dress, and will work up well in any of the crepes, satin, flannel, or the light twills.

The long waisted body is cut with sleeves that extend to the neck line, and lend the appearance of a shallow yoke across the shoulders. To the front of the shoulder parts the fronts are gathered and set on. This slight fullness on the shoulders is a feature that is becoming to every woman; and is especially good where the material is thin.

The front of the waist is open the entire length, and plaits or hems are applied that extend up to the neck, where they join the collar and roll slightly to form revers. The dress can be buttoned—and this is best—or small snaps may be used to fasten, and the buttons put on as trimming.

A great many of the fall and winter dresses will be made with long sleeves, and this pattern provides for full length, close fitting ones. The short sleeves are prettily finished with turned back cuffs that should match the material used in the front plait and collar. A narrow band or belt covers the joining of the skirt and waist, and this is also made of the contrasting material.

The skirt is in two pieces, and cut circular. Any thing cut even slightly circular should be allowed to hang and stretch for several days before getting the correct length and finishing.

Pattern No. 2504 is for one of those pretty dresses for small girls. In wash materials nothing is prettier for every day wear than chambray—blues, pinks, and browns being particularly pretty. And the plain color should be made up with a matching pinhead check.

The dress is made entirely in one piece, slashed in the center front, underfaced, and rolled to form revers Small girls follow many of the styles of their mothers and sisters.

The dress can be finished with plain or scalloped outline at the bottom and sleeve edges, but the scalloped one is so attractive many will prefer it. An easy way to manage the scallops will be to either allow for a deep hem when cutting the dress out or cut one of the checked material and baste it to the wrong or right side of the skirt—just as you prefer. Then mark the scalloped outline and baste and stitch the scallops in a narrow seam. Clip the seam at each scallop, joining at the top where the scallops begin, clipping the seam just to the stitching, then turn right side out and baste and stitch the hem at the upper edge. This will give the dress extra strength and make tearing less likely.

With this dress comes a pattern for little pantees. These are sewed into bands at the bottom—these bands showing below the dress edge.

Pattern No. 2439 is for a one piece dress, with an inserted section underneath inverted box plaits at the sides below the hips. The dress is slashed down from the neck in the middle front, turned back cuffs. Flannel, wool jersey, taffeta, or any of the light weight twills will be fine for this design.

The convertible collar, like the one on this dress, is one of the most popular ways of finishing the neck of house and street dresses. And it is easy to put together. There are two thicknesses of the collar, and the front facing and the dress at the slash makes two thicknesses for that part. Pin one piece of the collar to the neck of the dress—so that the seams will come to the wrong side. Pin the middle of the collar to the middle of the dress, and then pin together at the ends. Baste and stitch in a half inch seam.

Clip the seam edges across the back, and then press the seam open at each end from the front edges to the shoulder seams. Across the back the seam may be laid towards the collar and pressed. Now pin each front facing to the edges of the other collar piece—pinning so the seams will exactly match the others. Stitch and press open. Now lay the two collar and rever sections together, wrong side out, baste and stitch from the opening at one end to the same point on opposite side. Use a sleeve board and carefully press the seam edges open. Turn to the right side, baste at the edgee and press, then hem the collar across the seam in the back.

THE BETTER PART.

MY DEAREST ALICE: Because I am braver than I ever could be were you here, I am saying good-by. Only God and you will ever realize how much I love you, darling, and even you may not fully understand. You have given me so much, you have made my life so much fuller and richer, that I can never repay my debt in full, but I can repay a little by going away now and leaving you to some one who can give you all the beautiful things you should have, and which I could never give you.

You are so young, dear—only twenty—and time will help you forget this heartache and help you to love Henry more. The merchant prince will buy you satins and jewels and all the lovely things that are rightfully yours—and you would soon tire of poverty and poems. Good-by, precious girl, and at least forgive, if you cannot understand.

Some day in the future, when you are happy again and have all your heart's desires, will you think of me a little, and say I was wise, so that I may be happy, too?

With every fast fleeting moment before this letter closes I love you even more. Because you will be happy I shall also be content. Eternally, RAOUL.

LORETTA: FALLING ARCHES will weaken the ankles, and usually there are shooting pains up the legs, which many people think of as rheumatic pains. Your shoes should give support to the arch and plenty of room for the toes. Go to a reliable shoe store and be properly fitted, and send along a stamped, addressed envelope for exercises for weak ankles.

ANN: LEMON JUICE TAKEN every morning is of no benefit whatever in reducing. Diet and exercise are the most effective means. I have a set of exercises and diets which I shall be glad to send you on receipt of a stamped addressed envelop. You are tall, but still too heavy. Five feet ten, age 28, you should weigh just 153 pounds.

A. B. A.: RED LIDS ARE DUE TO using the eyes in a poor light, and also to long, late hours which produce eyestrain. Send stamped addressed envelope for my pamphlet, "Care of the Eyes."

M. J. H.: PRECAUTION MUST BE taken in the treatment of moles, as they occasionally develop into malignant growths. While the tendency is slight, it is of sufficient frequency to necessitate treatment by a reputable skin specialist.

HEALTH TRAINING FOR CHILDREN

by Catherine Donnelly

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—A joint committee on health problems in education of the National Educational association and the American Medical association prepared a program of health education for public schools and teachers training institutions of the country.

The aims of health education are stated briefly as follows:

1—To instruct children and youth so that they may conserve and improve their own health.

2—To establish in them habits and principles of living which throughout their school life, and in later years, will assure the abundant vigor and vitality which provide the basis for the greatest possible happiness and service in personal, family and community life.

3—To influence parents and other adults, through the health education program for children, to better habits and attitudes, so the school may become an effective agency for the promotion of the social aspects of health education in the family and community as well as in the school itself.

4—To improve the individual and community life of the future; to insure a better second generation, and a still better third generation; and a healthier and fitter nation and race.

Home Conditions Important.

A plea is made for coöperation between home and school, one which surely no sane parent of this intelligent generation would fail to heed.

Home conditions, instead of complicating the school's problems of health education, should be heartily in accord. The school may teach proper dietary principles, but in case the home diet is unwholesome the influence of the school is, at least in part, nullified. The home is responsible for the amount of sleep the child takes, the frequency of bathing, the proper use of clothing, and example set by the parents themselves in the home may discourage the children from practicing health habits.

An idea of the benefits that must accrue where home coöperation is given wholeheartedly may be obtained from a perusal of the health behavior standards, which list in considerable detail the most important health habits for children between the ages of five and nine, as given below:

Nutrition Habits.

Under the head of nutrition the following habits are taught:

1—Acquiring a taste for the following foods: [a] milk, [b] green vegetables, [c] hard bread, [d] whole grain cereals.

2—Eating the quantities and kinds of foods apportioned to him [this assumes that they are suitable].

3—Forming the habit of not expecting sweets except at the end of a meal.

4—Forming the habit of eating only at regular times.

5—Drinking four to six glasses of water daily.

6. Drinking no tea or coffee.

7. Refraining from drinking ice water.

8. Using an individual cup, and using the drinking fountains properly.

9. Eating slowly, chewing his food well.

10. Taking small bites and mouthfuls.

11. Washing his hands before handling food for eating.

12. Refraining from exchanging food or eating it after picking it up from the floor, ground or street.

13. Refraining from handling other people's food.

Habits of Sleeping.

Under Sleep and Rest the child:

1. Sleeps 11½ to 13 hours, according to age.
2. Likes to sleep in the dark.
3. Likes to have windows open.
4. Relaxes during the rest period at school or the nap at home.

As regards fresh air:

1. He sleeps with windows open.
2. He enjoys being out of doors.
3. He spends at least four hours daily in activity involving the big muscles—out of doors as much as possible.
4. He helps in opening and shutting the windows when they are easily managed.

Regarding care of teeth and mouth:

1. He brushes the teeth at least twice daily in an approved way.
2. He eats candy and sweets only in moderation.
3. He never breaks or bites hard substances with the teeth.
4. He does not suck his fingers.

Caring for the Skin.

In his care of the skin the child

1. Takes a cleansing bath at least twice a week, but preferably daily.
2. Takes a cold sponge or shower in the morning, following it by a brisk rub.
3. Uses only individual towels and wash cloth.
4. Dries hands and face thoroughly after washing.
5. Washes his hands before eating and after going to the toilet.

In elimination of waste he

1. Evacuates the bowels at least once a day, at a regular time, preferably after breakfast.
2. Is able to control the voiding of urine and evacuation of bowels.

In caring for the eyes he

1. Reads only in a good light.
2. Reads little by artificial light.
3. Holds his book in the correct position.
4. Refrains from looking directly at the sun, or an extremely bright light.
5. Refrains from rubbing his eyes and keeps all inappropriate articles away from them.

In caring for the ears he

1. Learns to wash ears carefully.
2. Refrains from putting anything in his ears.
3. Refrains from striking other people's ears, or shouting into them.
4. Does not blow his nose forcibly.

Other Habits to Encourage.

In caring for the nose he

1. Breathes with his mouth closed.
2. Learns to blow his nose gently, without closing the nostrils.
3. Uses only his own handkerchief.
4. Uses a clean handkerchief.
5. Avoids picking the nose.
6. Refrains from putting anything into the nose.
7. Covers coughs and sneezes with clean handkerchief.

In caring for the hair he

1. Learns to brush his hair.
2. Uses own brush and comb.
3. Keeps his own brush and comb clean.
4. Submits easily to having his hair washed.

In caring for the hands he

1. Washes his hands before handling food or eating.
2. Washes his hands after the toilet.
3. Helps to keep his nails short and clean.
4. Refrains from biting his nails or picking at hangnails.

The above are the important physical health habits for the child to learn in early years.

Making a Healthy Personality.

"It should be understood," the committee report continues, "that social and emotional health are as essentially a part of a health education program in early years as in later life. A healthy personality responds to the following mental and emotional habits, in which parents may, by careful direction, be of invaluable aid. The child

1. Takes a keen, active interest in either friends, games, hobbies, or in all.
2. Is curious concerning the world about him.
3. Persists in work.
4. Concentrates on his work; pays attention to the task at hand.
5. Keeps his project in mind until it is completed.
6. Completes his task successfully, reasonably often.
7. Does his work promptly, not procrastinating.
8. Tells the truth.
9. Enjoys play.
10. Enjoys work.
11. Meets disappointments bravely.
12. Remains good natured under trying circumstances.
13. Enjoys humorous situations.
14. Forgets grudges quickly.
15. Is not afraid of animals, storms, or the dark.

Social Habits.

In social relationships he

1. Is friendly toward other children.
2. Is interested in making other people happy.
3. Is courteous.
4. Says, "Please, thank you, excuse me, good-morning, good-by."
5. Refrains from quarreling.
6. Is willing to share his possessions.
7. Refrains from taking what belongs to other children.
8. Gives back lost things to their owner.
9. Shows kindness to those who are weaker or younger, and does not tease or bully.
10. Shows kindness toward animals.
12. Waits for his turn.
13. Is willing to take part in group activities.
14. Settles difficulties without appealing to teacher.
15. Refrains from interrupting others needlessly.

Have you tasted ICED INDIA TEA?

How to make ICED INDIA TEA

THERE is a no more delicious or stimulating drink than Iced India Tea. You make this tea in the same way as you would if you were making ordinary tea, and pour it on the cracked ice which you already have in the glass (with a slice of lemon for preference) and drink with straws.

ISSUED BY THE GROWERS OF INDIA TEA.

NO other Iced drink is comparable with it, and you will say so, once you have drunk it. Insist upon India Tea, because there is no difficulty whatever in getting it. Any dealer can supply you with it, if he wants to, and most Hotels and Restaurants will serve you with it, if you insist upon it. Once you have drunk India Tea, you will never drink any other kind again.

To Wash Away Those Wrinkles and Crowsfeet

If your face is disfigured with wrinkles, no matter what the cause, you can quickly dispel every line, even the most obstinate, by using a simple, home made wash lotion. Merely dissolve an ounce of powdered Saxolite in a half pint witch hazel—ingredients found in any drug store. Bathe the face in this and—presto!—you scarcely believe your own eyes when you look into your mirror and behold the marvelous transformation!

The remarkable astringent action of the Saxolite so tightens the skin, wrinkles are literally pressed out. Best of all, this result is not purely temporary, for the lotion also has a healthful tonic action, which tends to strengthen and tone up the weakened tissue. It cannot injure the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance.

MEN'S FASHIONS

FEATURING BROAD SHOULDERS, HIGH PEAKED LAPELS, AND TAPERED HIPS.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—When you go to get your fall suit, if you haven't already done so, you'll find there is one idea in the tailoring of this season's suits, and that is to make you look tall and slender, and athletic. This is, of course, what the tendency has been for the last few seasons, but this fall especially you will find that all the details of the smartly cut suits aid toward giving the effect of slenderness.

The things that stand out are the broad shoulders, high peaked, broad lapels, the tapering of the coat over the hips, giving a slim hipped figure, and a higher placement of buttons and pockets than formerly. The coat is also rather short, which is one of the chief aids to a slim figure, for it enables more of the legs to show, instead of chopping the figure short.

The broad lapels and the narrow body lines are two of the most important features. The broad lapels give an athletic look to the figure, which is what the smart dresser is after these days. The peaked lapels, which formerly were seen only on the double breasted jackets, are this season popular on the single breasted coats, but are optional. If you prefer the notched lapels, they are at your disposal, and if you are naturally extremely broad chested, you will not need the long peaked effect to give you what nature left out.

Shoulders are high, with the coat fitting high against the collar. There are not many vents to be seen in the coats this season.

Vests are shorter, with none of the long points we've had in the past. Double breasted vests will be seen quite a bit with the single breasted jackets, but with the double breasted coats only single breasted waistcoats are worn.

Trousers are not more than moderately full, making a decided taper at the bottom. An eighteen inch bottom is as wide as the trousers should be. But they are good and full at the seat, and at the thigh and knee. The taper should properly end in a good break over the shoe, so that a graceful hang is the result. Cuffs are optional, but the cuffless trousers probably will prove to be the most popular.

Plaited trousers are in strong this season. Which means that they are also high at the waist. And that means suspenders, if you want your trousers to hang with anything like a neat effect. High waisted trousers and belts don't hang together at all. The high waist line is an English hand-me-down, and the suspenders are a little bit of British that goes along with it. In fact, all of the new tendencies in the lounge suits are direct from London tailors, who, in turn, got them from the smartest London style setters.

Materials of the new suits differ little, if any, from what the well dressed men have been wearing for the last season or so. Everything is soft, both to touch and as to the color of the goods. Unfinished worsteds, cheviots, flannels, Saxonies, all of which are soft, are the most popular materials, while tweed has some small showing.

Colors are decidedly colors this season, but they are not hard colors. There is plenty of color, but it isn't the kind that hits you in the eye before it's half way down the block. There will be a great deal of attractive shades of brown seen this autumn. They are new shades which are hard to describe. They were inspired by the colors of the Scotch bracken. Then there will be shades of gray and blue with a good deal of purple or lavender in them. Soft blues of all shades and innumerable grays, including warm and cold shades, will be among the popular numbers. There will be no complexion which cannot have full justice done to it with a fashionable color.

However, as I have said many a time and oft, don't let the fact that some colors are fashionable and others are not have too much to do with your selection of color, for what becomes you is far more important. If you are one of those who can wear brown you will find a wide selection of attractive suits in shades of brown to choose from. The browns especially are good colors for autumn, as they fit into the spirit of the season.

As for patterns in the suits, besides the stripes, some of which are so-called invisible, so faint are they, there are the barleycorn design, geometrical designs, and, especially to be noted, the Glen Urquhart plaid, which are coming into great popularity.

Then there are mixtures, with no special design. And the plain colors, unmixed and unpatterned, are always good, always in style. The suits of patterns and mixed colors take a much more careful treatment in making up color schemes, in order that a harmonious effect may be achieved. If you wear a suit of Glen Urquhart plaid, for instance, you can't go ahead and wear a violently striped shirt and a tie of many colors and emphatic pattern. But if you wear a plain dark blue suit you can of course do more daring things.

Whatever you do, don't wear anything that is exaggerated. Wear broad shoulders, but don't wear roped sleeve heads that stand out all over the place. Wear roomy trousers, but not meal sacks without any shape. Let your buttons be high placed, but not right under your chin.

Remember that always the best dressed man is the conservatively dressed one, yet not the drably dressed one. There is a happy sartorial medium which you can strike if you will take the pains.

The New MORRISON HOTEL

Embodying a Tradition of Economy and Service

LOOMING up against the sky, the impressive silhouette of the Morrison tower worthily symbolizes the purpose for which it has been built. For years it has been the policy of the Morrison to protect the pockets of its guests by renting rooms for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other hotel of premier standing. But now, with 890 new rooms in the 46-story section on Clark St., this "economy-policy" will receive far wider application. Every room will have bath, ice water and Servidor, and all guests will enjoy garage privileges.

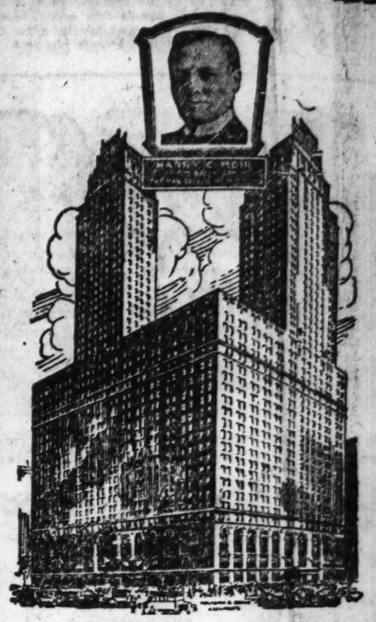
The Morrison now has 1,054 outside rooms, each with bath. They will eventually be increased to 3,400—the largest hotel on earth.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, famous for tastefully prepared meals, lively entertainment and perfect dance music. The artists appearing throughout the week beginning Monday, Sept. 21, will be:

THE INTERNATIONAL TRIO
Novelty Whirlwind Skaters
BOSCHA MALINOFF
Delightful Soprano Soloist
GENE COLLINS
Cleverest of Eccentric Dancers

Dancing Between the Acts to the Music of GUS C. EDWARDS AND HIS ORCHESTRA (A Benson Organization)

Reserve your table by calling State 8700



The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel, 46 stories high, with 3,500 rooms

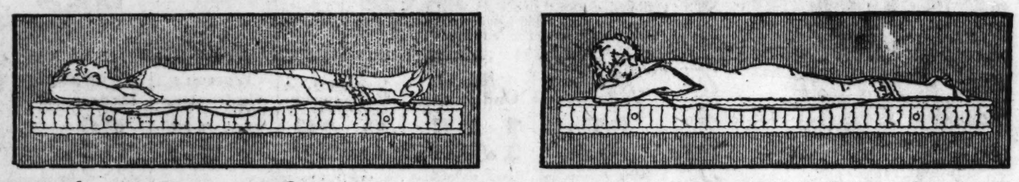
Note how evenly you are cushioned from head to foot. Instead of your body sagging to meet the mattress, buoyant springs adjust to every curve, firmly yet gently.

Sleep face down, on your back, or side. In any position your spine is not distorted. No muscle is strained, no pressure on nerves or organs. You lie completely relaxed.



Value, comfort, economy such as you have never seen: all in this new super-mattress

Here is sleep luxury you will marvel at, money-savings that will astound you, a super-mattress such as you have never known or even imagined.

One type of mattress, and only one, yields perfectly to the lower curves of your body, yet supports the higher curves. The Beautyrest super-mattress now brings you this super-comfort at a new low price.

Between two deep cushions of new felted cotton is hidden the secret of its marvelous comfort. More than 625 coil springs form a buoyant inner-cushion. Acting separately, each in its own fabric pocket, they conform to every contour of your body. No matter what way you lie, you are cradled in your most natural position, with every muscle and nerve relaxed, at rest. You sleep better, work better, feel better, look better. Automatic ventilation completes the luxury of this super-mattress. Live air constantly renews and refreshes the Beautyrest and keeps it as sweet as though aired daily in the sun.

$39.50

The day when only the rich could enjoy such a mattress has gone forever. Building it by thousands in the world's largest bedding factories brings the Beautyrest within reach of every purse. Because the Beautyrest lasts longer it costs less per night than the cheapest mattress.

Actually the Beautyrest is the only mattress you can afford to own. Ask your merchant. See also The Ace, the finest open-box spring in the world—only $19.75.

THE SIMMONS COMPANY: NEW YORK · CHICAGO · ATLANTA · SAN FRANCISCO

1 An inner-spring cushion of more than 625 springs. Each acts silently in its fabric pocket.

2 Generous layers of new felted cotton add their luxury at both top and bottom of the springs.

3 Eight ventilators in walls keep the interior as fresh and sweet as airing in the sun.

4 Fabric pockets cut open to show the sensitive coils. Of tempered steel, they never sag.

5 Sides and ends are cushioned with felted cotton the same as on both the top and bottom.

6 The cover fabric is the best obtainable, as durable as it is attractive. Generous roll edge.

Fundamentalism: Divine and Secular

By H. L. Mencken.

THOSE optimists who plan to put down fundamentalism by educating Homo boobiens are on all fours, it seems to me, with that simpleton of fable who sought to lift himself over a stile by pulling at his boot straps. Homo boobiens is a fundamentalist for the precise reason that he is educable. That is to say, he is quite unable to grasp the complex evidences upon which the civilized minority bases its heresies, and so he seeks refuge in the sublime simplicities of revelation. Is Genesis incredible? Does it go counter to the known facts? Perhaps. But do not forget to add that it is divinely simple—that even a Tennessee judge can understand it.

H. L. MENCKEN
discussing on the average man and science.
[Edward Thayer Monroe photo.]

Perhaps the process is a bit clearer on another plane: I choose that of medicine. As every one knows, scientific medicine has made more progress since the middle of the last century than it had made in the fifty centuries preceding. Today it is rapidly divesting itself of what remain of its old superstitions; it is becoming scientific in the exact sense, and year by year its practical efficacy, its capacity to cure disease, is greater. Yet in this very time of its greatest progress is is confronted by ever increasing hordes of quacks. The very day that news of insulin is in the newspapers Homo boobiens seeks treatment for his diabetes from a chiropractor.

Why? The reason seems to me to be simple. When an ignorant man goes to a doctor, he wants not only treatment but also enlightenment and consolation. He wants to know what is the matter with him and how it is to be cured. Now try to imagine a medical man explaining to him the nature of diabetes and the action of insulin. If you can imagine it, then you have an imagination indeed. The whole thing is inordinately complex. The explanation must be itself explained. To get to the bottom of it, to understand it in any true sense, is a sheer impossibility to a man not specially trained, and that training may be given only to men of unusual intelligence. But any moron can understand the explanation of the chiropractor. It is idiotic but, like most things that are idiotic, it is also beautifully simple. So the moron grasps it—and cherishes it.

Condemns What He Cannot Understand.

Something of the same sort goes on in the department of divinity. The clodhopper's objection to the hypothesis of evolution is not primarily that it is heathenish; that, indeed, is only an afterthought. His primary objection is that it is complicated and unintelligible—in the late Martyr Bryan's phrase, that it is "stuff and nonsense." In order to understand it a man must have a sound grounding in all the natural sciences; he must bring to the business an immense and intricate knowledge. And in order to get that grounding he must have a mind capable of taking it in.

Obviously, such minds are not common—that is, viewing the population as a whole. In the cities, where the sharpest

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

This is the quite thrillingly dramatic story of a mother who, sacrificing herself to protect a thoughtless jazz bebby daughter, ALMOST—but not quite, thank goodness!—found her own good name figuring heart-breakingly in newspaper headlines.

Producers and, probably, Alice Joyce herself, have discovered that she is quite as delightful in maturer rôles as she was when she played young girl parts, and are casting her accordingly. Remember her in "The Little French Girl"? Wasn't she lovely? Well, you're going to be quite as enthusiastic about her as the Phyllis Dale of this picture, for she brings a world of charm and understanding to this impersonation.

ALICE JOYCE
delightful in mother rôle of "Headlines."

Phyllis Dale is a newspaper reporter with a gay young daughter away at school.

Gay? O, exceedingly gay! SO gay that the school authorities finally throw up their hands, refuse to be any longer responsible for her gayety, and dispatch her home to mother.

"Old mossbacks! They don't know how to run a school!" declares the wild haired Miss Roberta, flinging herself down beside her mother and thrusting a cigaret between her carmined lips. "I'm going to stay home with you and show you how to live. You've grown seedy."

Daughter Takes Up the Reins.

Now, as a matter of fact, mother isn't in the least seedy. As a matter of fact, she is a vurr' pretty and up to date lady—widow—with a fiancé who thinks her the most beautiful and wonderful thing in the world, and associates, from the editor of the paper down, who have for her the highest respect and deepest affection. No gray in mother's dark, bobbed hair—but plenty of gray matter underneath, that guides her as she tries to guide—and guard—this breath-taking child of hers.

Well, the long and short of it is Roberta starts to do her stuff. She begins by telling everybody she is mother's little sister.

"I'll give you a chance!" generously says the child.

Mother, however, refuses to be a sister, and introduces her daughter AS her daughter to her nice fiancé—who isn't in the least bowled over by the announcement. He takes it quite as a matter of course, and is mighty nice to daughter,

Music World Meets Itself in Florence

By Edward Moore.

FLORENCE. — [Special Correspondence.] — One goes a quarter of the distance around the world or so to discover that here in Florence one might almost be in Chicago as far as musicians are concerned. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock are here; so is Karleton Hackett; likewise Edward Johnson, who for several seasons did important things with tenor rôles at the Chicago Opera company and has since been more important at the Metropolitan. Mrs. Snyder, who belonged to St. Paul, but used to assume local managements and give the Chicago Opera company successful engagements in that city, has taken a villa here and started a music school. Among visitors from other lands there is Maud Valerie White of England, whose songs used to be on every music rack in our youth, slightly elderly, but still active and still composing.

FREDERICK STOCK
reports new compositions are scarce in Europe.

Mr. Stock devoted the month of August to writing a piece that will be played at Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge's chamber music festival at Pittsfield, Mass., in October. Out on the hills in the direction of Fiesole, Villa Badio, Via Boccaccio, it sounds as though it were an ideal place for a composer, doesn't it? And it looks even better, an alluring combination of medieval charm and modern comfort, with heavenly views of the hills and city. At any rate, Mr. Stock has been plying an industrious pen for several weeks, and now has the work practically completed. He calls it a rhapsodic fantasy, and has scored it for an orchestra of fifteen pieces. After its Pittsfield premiere it may be heard later in the season at Orchestra hall, but in that event Mr. Stock is considering the advisability of rescoring it for full symphony, in which case its Chicago hearing may be delayed.

Little in the Way of Novelty.

Mr. Stock reports a confirmation of what I have been discovering for myself this summer—that little music of any importance has been produced in Europe during this last season. He tells of one work, Respighi's "Cypresses," a companion piece to "The Fountains of Rome," by the same composer, and constructed on the same plan; that is, cypresses on the hills, cypresses in a Roman cemetery, other cypresses elsewhere, and so on. This piece has met his approval, but whether he performs it or not will depend upon negotiations, now pending, with its publishers.

For there is considerably more to getting hold of music in Europe than merely finding a capable composer. That is only the start. Before the end is reached it is about as involved and incomprehensible to the American mind as the continental theory of train service, which holds that in order to make a trip, no matter how brief or how apparently simple on the surface, one must either get up at an unearthly hour or arrive at one's destination anywhere from midnight to four o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Stock says he has found little else in the way of novelties, though he has examined many manuscripts that

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF COMEDY AND CAST

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Theater Guild began its season on Monday with a revival of Shaw's "Arms and the Man," and the result was a little mystifying. Here was one of the brightest of comedy satires as perfectly played as it ever has been, and yet one that seemed to miss much of the fun long associated with the play.

LYNN FONTANNE
in revival of Shaw's "Arms and the Man."
[Moffett Photo.]

I concluded finally this was attributable to two things. First, we have become so used to thinking of "Arms and the Man" as "The Chocolate Soldier" that we miss the greater fund of entertainment the musical version offers. Second, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne play the leads so expertly that they give the comedy new and strange values that are not altogether favorable to it. For instance, when Bluntschli breaks into this Raina's room in the first act, he is the most distressed soldier ever you saw, hopelessly spent and near collapse. No amiable eccentric to make you laugh, this fellow. As Lunt plays him he is real, and being real he immediately assumes more importance as a hero than he does as an entertainer.

And Miss Fontanne, always a picture in the bustled costumes of the period, and amusing in Raina's attitudinizing efforts as the prize Bulgarian heiress, is still just conscious enough of trying to get more from the part than there really is in it and to force her funny costumes to help her, that she diverts attention from the character to its decorations.

At least, these were my impressions. Two fine performances, but for some reason too fine to keep the play in balance.

The settings in Lee Simonson's best manner are brightly Bulgarian, and the assisting players, Pedro De Cordoba as the pompous Sergius, Stella Larrimore as the fiery Louka, Henry Travers as Nicola, and Ernest Cossart as the be-whiskered Petkoy, are better than competent.

The subscribers will take to "Arms and the Man," I suspect, but for no longer than its allotted time, which probably will be for six or eight weeks.

You probably remember seeing or reading about J. M. Barrie's "Dear Brutus," in which all the guests at a Twelfth night party drifted into a magic wood and were given a second chance at life. Whatever they most wanted to be they became.

In a new play by Arthur Richman called "All Dressed Up," a scientist slips a few drops of a truth compelling drug into the cocktails of the relatives and guests invited to a dinner party, and they become for an hour their real selves. All the hypocrisy, all the pretty manners and habits civilized society has fixed upon them fall away, and they stand revealed for what they are.

Which goes to prove two things, the author contends. First, that we are, all of us, all dressed up in a lot of self-concealing, soul encrusting, herd endorsed inhibitions; second, that if we were not the world would be an awful place in which to live. Certain hypocrisies are necessary to the well being of all people.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

RETURNS from New-York on "The Green Hat" are not all in; but excitement concerning it has been such down there that the brokers have purchased all the main-floor and balcony seats eight weeks in advance, representing, according to the current issue of Variety, an investment of about one hundred thousand dollars. . . . As I observed some weeks since, the attitude of what regards itself as the illuminati of that city dated the start of the new season as the night of the first New-York performance of Michael Arlen's piece, last Tuesday—too late for Mr. Mantle to include a report on it in this week's letter to THE TRIBUNE.

LOU HOLTZ
He's now in "Tell Me More," but still sings "Sole Mia" as he twangs his goofy guitar.

There was less excitement about "No! No, Nanette!"; and what I read and am told of it is that it is a success there, with the cast much as it was in the final weeks of the Chicago run. . . . What I should regard as a handicap in the New-York venture with the piece is that the good tunes were long since made so familiar that there is likely to be small reaction to them when heard where they belong.

Mr. Mantle's theory that "Arms and the Man" is not in for a long revival because the public has for fifteen years been thinking of Shaw's comedy in the terms of "The Chocolate Soldier" is interesting and plausible. . . . Yet, the German librettists of Oscar Straus' operetta took little from the Irishman's play save the story;—and a bully story for operetta it proved to be. The points Shaw sought to make in the comedy were, of course, useless for all the purposes which animate the men who manufacture operetta, even in before-the-war Vienna; and it may be that the war, itself, disposed of those points without necessarily proving them to be without validity as philosophy or as social economics. . . . That neither Mr. Lunt nor Miss Fontanne would care to act the principal parts as Shaw designed them is not a surprising item in Mr. Mantle's report on the revival.

Odds-and-Ends.

Expectation is that Miss Lenore Ulric will return to Mr. Belasco's management and to her rôle in "The Harem." A reason is that, in the advertising of "Canary Dutch," Mr. Belasco is quoted as saying that Willard Mack's acting therein is the best New-York has had "since Miss Ulric's Kiki"; and it isn't Mr. Belasco's idea of business to give words of praise to players not in or about to be in his fold. . . . Another reason is, I should guess, that "The Harem"

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

isn't worth much without her, although she is believed to care little or nothing for the play or her rôle therein. The rôle was offered to Miss Francine Larrimore when Miss Ulric's intention of giving it up became known; but the former player and Mr. Belasco didn't "arrange an accommodation," to disdain a locution that was regarded in war-time as a lotta oatnip.

London's Grumbling.

The London Morning Post cites that play, "The Harem," with a number of others in a complaint that Americans are bad editors when their chore is to make over Continental works for the English-speaking stage. The post is of the opinion that "The Harem" in its original form was clean and sweet, and was dirtied up and defiled for use in this country; and it says much the same of "Fata Morgana." . . . I share the Post's attitude as to "Fata Morgana"; when I saw that comedy in New-York, a year or so ago, it was played for all the traffic would stand in the matter of deliberate filth for an act whose purpose was that of a mere prologue or preface to the actual drama. . . . The Post adds:

"The fact is that we are paying the penalty for allowing New-York to become the dramatic center of the world. London managers are today content to produce new plays second-hand. Vajda's three plays—'The Harem,' 'Fata Morgana,' and 'Grounds for Divorce'—arrived here via New-York. 'Rain' was dramatized by two Americans; 'The Moon and Sixpence' by another; and even 'Saint Joan' was produced in New-York before London saw it."

. . . "The fact is" that London's populace has no money wherewith to buy tickets for the theater, and, in consequence, London's managers have no money wherewith to experiment. So far as the Hungarian market is concerned, it was cornered long since by American importers; and, so far, the esthetic yield has hardly been worth the enterprise exhibted, save as some of the plays have been ground into movies.

A London manager seeking for a piece for his theater is taking appreciably less of a chance in importing an American success, whatever its origin, than in working from a manuscript. The basic risk is taken by the American producer. Thus, the English owners of "The Green Hat" held it until they learned that it was drawing $17,000 weekly in Chicago, although their first plans for staging it were made long before the American premiere. (The play, by the way, is reported by cable to be a success there, although the critics call it junk.) I doubt that any London manager would have chanced it with "Saint Joan" if royalties from the New-York venture with the piece hadn't shown so flourishing a box-office. . . .

English playwrights prefer, since the war, to deal with American managers, knowing that, if their plays catch on here, they can pick up the London money for a success in due time.

Novelties in Manhattan.

These are the new plays of the week in New-York:

"The Pelican," by F. Tennyson Jesse and H. M. Harwood, with Miss Margaret Lawrence, Fred Kerr, Henry Stephenson, and Herbert Marshall. . . . Miss Jesse is Mrs. Harwood and has written a number of plays, short and long; while Captain Harwood, also, is of standing as a playwright, although his work is not known well in this country.

"Easy Terms," which is the so-called play by Crane Wilbur which has been on view the last fortnight in the Playhouse. The cast will be the same.

"The Vagabond King," which was described here last Sunday: the New-York premiere was postponed until tomorrow night. . . . The piece is an operetta based on "If I Were King."

"Sunny," by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein, and Jerome Kern, with Miss Marilynn Miller, Jack Donahue, Joseph Cawthorn, Cliff Edwards, Clifton Webb, and Miss Mary Hay. . . . This is the piece for which six dollars a seat is to be asked after the opening, Tuesday, when the price is, I believe, $25.

"The Butter-and-Egg Man," by George S. Kaufman, with Gregory Kelly, Miss Sylvia Field, Denman Maley, Miss Lucille Webster, and Robert Middlemass. . . . This is the first original work written by Mr. Kaufman since his alliance, in 1920, with Marc Connelly. It has to do with practical theatricals in their fiscal aspect; and it is reported to have shown all the signs of success when tried out some place in Jersey.

"The New Gallantry," by F. S. Merlin and Brian Marlow, with Miss Carroll McComas, Cyril Scott, Mrs. Theron Maxwell-Conover, and Miss Elsie Mackaye.

"Gunpowder," by J. C. and Elliott Nugent, with the senior Nugent, Fritz Williams, Miss Sue MacManamy, Frank Thomas, and Frank Conroy. . . . Another play by the Messrs. Nugent, "The Poor Nut," is counted among the current successes in New-York, where the younger Nugent is the star.

"Merry-Merry," a song-play by Harlan Thompson and Harry Archer, with Miss Marie Saxon. . . . The authors wrote "Little Jessie James."

Miscellany.

New plays in London last week were "The Monkey Who Talks," adapted from a popular French piece, and "The Fair Sex," by Eric Hudson, who died two years ago. . . . Jacques Lerner, who had the rôle in Paris, is the author of the man-monkey in London.

Shipworthy's "The Forest," a play as yet unacted in this country, is to be the first work shown in the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Memorial Theater, on the Lake-front. The date given is October 22—a Thursday.

A. E. Matthews, who was here in "Spring Cleaning" and later for a week in the Palace, is returning from London to act with Miss Ina Claire in Frederick Lonsdale's "The Last of Mrs. Cheney"—which is the piece at first named "Most of Us Are." . . . Miss Helen Haye and Felix Aylmer are other London players coming over for the piece.

"Young Woodley," the English piece in which Glenn Hunter expects to act here, isn't wholly to the liking of England's censor of plays. . . . Tom Douglas, who went to London to play Mr. Hunter's part in "Merton of the Movies" and remained there, hopes to be the star in the overseas production of the new piece, which has to do with a boy at school.

Sacha Guitry, whose fecundity is unabated, is making ready to act as Mozart in a play of his own making about the composer of some of the loveliest music yet written. The play is to have an accompaniment arranged from Mozart's works; and Miss Yvonne Printemps [Madame Guitry] is to be in the cast. . . . An unsuccessful play about Mozart by Mrs. Ivy Ashton Root was staged in 1906 in New-York.

Paris expectation is that Miss Gloria Swanson and her new husband are to return there to act in a sketch made up partly of talk and partly of movie.

W. C. Fields is to remain a while longer in the Ziegfeld Follies (which last night ended its long New-York run); but it is thought that he will soon succumb to the wages offered by the movie-makers as a result of his successful screening in "Sally of the Sawdust." Anyway, the plan for him to go into a new piece named "The Showman" seems to be off.

A rumor is that William Collier will be Mr. Fields' successor if the latter decides to leave the Follies,—indicating that the former is not to bother further with "Going Crooked," the piece in which he was seen last April in the Cort. . . . And, should Mr. Collier not go into the Follies, it is added, Johnnie Dooley will be used in an effort to fill Mr. Fields' place.

Otis Skinner, it is said, will resume acting soon in a play written by Miss Cornelia Skinner, his daughter. She is fairly well known as an actress. . . . Mr. Skinner's last performances were in "Sanchi Panza"; and he was good in it.

George M. Cohan is to make of Boston the place for his return to the stage in "American-Born." . . . This is the play with which, it is said, he plans to reopen his Chicago theater in December.

AS HE LOOKS IN HIS NEW PART

ERNEST TRUEX AS JOHNNIE QUINLAN

He is pictured here as he looks in "The Fall-Guy," in which he is at least as good as he has been in any part; and he has been good in many since, in 1911, he acted the timid bridegroom in "Over-Night." (He had the same part when, years later, that farce was made over into a song-play called "Very Good Eddie.") . . . And Mr. Truex has been good in "The Dummy," in "The Very Ideal" in "Six-Cylinder Love," and in "New Toys."

ON HAND

HALFRED YOUNG

He's the tenor who did so well in the title-part of "The Student-Prince" in the absence on vacation of Mr. Cropper, incumbent of the rôle since the start of the long, successful run, thirty weeks ago tonight. . . . Mr. Young's singing and deportment in the rôle were warmly praised by those who attended the performances in his fortnight as the deputy-tenor; and the number included the critic of The Tribune.

Lights and Shadows of Comedy and Cast

By Burns Mantle.

In this new application of a familiar idea the scientist who invents the new scopolamin is anxious to find out what kind of young man it is his daughter is anxious to marry. He also is a little curious about certain of his own relatives.

While he has them under observation, he learns that the most successful of his brothers, a psalm singing back slapper, is brutal and ugly at heart, intent on beating down the salaries of his workers and resenting every cent he has been obliged to share with his fellow stockholders or give to his relatives.

This man's son, on the other hand, being a cynical young alcoholic, grows sweet and lovable under the influences of the drug, and traces his alibi as a drinker to the fact that he was ruthlessly shoved into the underwear business as a young man when he really wanted to write sonnets and things.

As for the youth who wants to marry the scientist's daughter, he accidentally misses the drug in the first round of cocktails when the butler pours out an extra glass, but he takes his later in a bit of rare old port, and immediately he becomes a wild youth and rough. Having always been a modest, refined, rather diffident lover, much too distant to suit his fiancée, he now woos her with such ardor that he tears her gown loose at the shoulder straps and bites her upon the neck.

Apprised of his unbecoming action, father is for throwing the young man out of the house, but daughter, after thinking it over, pleads his case. It was an unfair advantage to take of any man, for one thing. And, for another, she rather enjoyed being mussed up. There is, she suspects, something of the wild woman in her.

I don't believe "All Dressed Up" is going to please this public entirely, though it is a provocative and interesting drama, well written, and especially well played. Norman Trevor, the most impressive of the three syllable stage scientists, is the investigator, James Crane, son of the essayist, Dr. Frank Crane, is playing the lover who goes mad. Eliot Cabot does the minor alcoholic well, and Kay Johnson, last year's "Beggar on Horseback" heroine, is the girl.

David Belasco and Willard Mack have unearthed an old one called "Canary Dutch," a melodrama that might easily have been written for David Warfield in his "Music Master" days.

Probably the fact that in it there is a part for the new Mrs. Mack (Beatrice Banyard) had something to do with its production. And the further fact that D. B., feeling indebted to Mack for favors of one kind and another, was anxious to please the playwright.

Anyway, here it is, with the author playing an honest old Dutchman who, having served twenty years in Sing Sing as a counterfeiter, goes to live at the Try Again club, whose patroness is one of society's fairest and richest ladies, when he gets out.

At the club the old man falls in with a new set of crooks, some going straight and others merely resting between jobs. Also he meets one of the club's stockholders, who turns out to to be a member of the old counterfeiting gang. And this fellow has been waiting twenty years for old Dutch to get out of jail. He wants him to complete a plate for a $20 bill, which only his skill can so fashion as to fool the secret service men.

Of course, the old man refuses. He never was a counterfeiter in the first place. It was his ignorance that got him into trouble. Then they try to force him into the plate job by threatening to tell his daughter. Which would have interfered something awful with her social standing.

Whereupon Dutch whips out the revolver he had bought with some thought of shooting himself, and kills his tempter. Whether he goes back to prison or not the author does not say. But probably he got off and enjoyed his slippered ease the rest of his life.

Mack does the Warfield part very well, helping himself to a German dialect, a bent back, and chin whiskers. Catherine Dale Owen is the daughter, and Annie Mack Berlin has a part. "Canary Dutch" was once called "Alias Santa Claus" and inspired by a John Morosco short story.

In modernizing "Capt. Jinks" for its musical comedy score they have turned the jaunty hero of the horse marines into a citizen soldier out of war and privileged to wear his uniform only on Armistice day.

There isn't much left of the old romance, and less of the heroine who first lifted Ethel Barrymore up among the $2.00 stars a matter of twenty odd years ago. Ethel, by the way, has just agreed to co-star with Walter Hampden this season in a series of classic revivals. She will play Ophelia to his Hamlet in October, and there is some talk of their doing a series of Elizabethan comedies.

The heroine of the musical "Capt. Jinks" is Louise Brown, another of those smiling, dancing girls of the Marilyn Miller-Mary Eaton-Queenie Smith school who pirouette their way into stardom by being sweet and young and light on their toes.

The soldier boys meet this youthful Tuntoni at the steamer when she comes back to America to make her home town debut as a dancer, and thereafter there are bits of the old plot, with the young captain caught making the foolish bet that he will successfully flirt with the dancer.

He, played by Harold Murray, woos her in song, and she sings a bit herself. But mostly the play swirls about them in the form of peppery ensembles and such comedy as Joe Brown, playing an old fashioned cab driver with a comic horse, can give it. Of course, the girls dance the Charleston, and there is considerable romping and a little suggestive costuming, but it is a better class musical comedy.

BEEN AWAY A LITTLE WHILE

MISS MABEL WITHEE

She was here as recently as June in the second issue of Artists and Models, wherein she divided the soprano singing with Miss Nancy Gibbs; and, when she left, it was said that she was doing so to be with Mr. Jolson in his resumption of "Big Boy." . . . Miss Withee returns tonight in "Tell Me More!" the week's sole novelty in the Chicago theaters.

Embarrassing Moments

Hard to Find.

Accompanied by a dignified friend, I was returning on a fast train from a week-end visit. This train stopped at my destination only a few minutes, and as we were hurrying down the aisle, my umbrella fell, almost tripping me. Upon recovering it, I found the amber ring missing. In vain the passengers aided in my search.

It was time for the train to depart, and the brakeman told me I must get off and he would look for the missing ring. My friend, heavily laden with parcels, was making her way to a taxi, but I begged her to wait. Glancing up, I noticed amused faces peering at me from the windows of the car I had just left, and one lady attracting my attention with her smiles, pointed at my wrist. I gazed down to behold the bracelet-like handle. Thus was recorded into my life my most embarrassing moment. H. C. F.

Hollywood Has a Big Party for 1 Year Old Leatrice Joy II.

By Rosalind Shafer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Leatrice Joy II. may be only a year old, but the party she had on Sunday was the biggest gathering Hollywood children have ever known. A big circus tent was erected for the little guests out in the yard, and was decorated with all sizes and shapes of lanterns, streamers, and bouquets tied to the tent poles. Five Hawaiian musicians were vibrating a quintet of mean thumbs while "our gang" alongside absorbed ice cream and birthday cake to the point of being still able to chew but no longer able to swallow.

A long table decorated in pink and white was set for the tiny guests, and at each place was a little white cake with the guest's name in pink icing surmounted by a tiny pink rose and candle. A huge cake in the form of a baby's cradle was the centerpiece.

Leatrice Joy herself presided, in a rose crêpe de chine gown with a circular yoke of smocking, her dark hair curling out from her head in soft spirals. Large wash baskets of favors were at each end of the tent for the little guests, and paper caps, balloons, fancy napkins, and horns helped out the festivities.

The guests who sat at table included little Bill Hart, who came over from his own birthday party; Barbara Ethel Roscoe, Ruth Marjory Nagel, Sidney Franklin, Edwin Hubbell, Diana Meredith, Lois Bennett Niblo, Guy Cooper Jr., Lucretia Tenney, Helene Lucas, Alan Hale Jr., Kerlen Hale, Neill Lehr, Mary Ellen Hughes, Betty Ann Armstrong, and Gene Lewis. Other guests were Barbara Ford, Patrick Ford, Sally Ann Rawlinson, who, as she is only three months old, came in her carriage; Dustella Farnum, Ned Barnes, Mary Gene Flynn, Jeane Smith, Jackie Smith, Tom Smith, Richard Bayne Bushman, and John Dillon Jr.

Two Proud Mammas.

Bill Hart Jr. entertained some little chums at his home with a huge birthday cake decorated with guns and roses on the top and jungle animals in colors all around the sides. Stick candies in vari-colored bunches tied with ribbons formed the favors, and snappers with paper caps inside caused considerable excitement.

A big gold drum on a stand, a gift from Bill Sr., stood in the parlor alongside a mechanical doll "From Mrs. Gish's Little Girl, Lillian." A Dobermann Pinscher puppy with a large red bow on his neck came from a Swedish count and his wife, and a cute fluffy gray Angora kitten from his mother. Many gifts filled the parlor, many from screen notables.

The two proud mammas had their birthday children's pictures taken together, Leatrice II. and Bill Jr. Leatrice herself looked stunning in a close Gloria Swanson bob. She wore a white crêpe dress embroidered in a wide band of eyelet work in Balkan colors which ran around the skirt and around the large loose bishop sleeves of her gown. Black velvet slippers trimmed with gold kid were worn with white stockings.

Winifred Westover Hart, in her brand new bob, fluffy and curled, looked even more beautiful than she did when she was in pictures before her marriage. She wore a soft gray georgette ensemble made over rose georgette with wide insets of gray silk lace. Gray kid slippers and hose completed her costume.

None of Leatrice Joy's friends have been able to identify the handsome, dark haired young man who has shown much devotion to the actress lately. Accordingly speculation about him has become a popular sport. All are sure of just one thing—the new gallant is not Jack Gilbert, who has passed so completely out of Leatrice's life that the baby does not even bear his name. Now "Who is he?" is the favorite remark from behind the lace curtains of the neighbors along Sweetzer avenue as the dark but unknown hero approaches with the bouquet or the box of candy.

Gossip of the Players.

Mack Sennett, who owns a large private ranch back of Griffith park, last Sunday opened a fifteen mile long bridle path to the public. The path runs all through his grounds. He built it at his own expense. A large old fashioned hunt breakfast was served at the house in the morning after which the guests took a canter over the winding scenic trail which wanders all over the side of the mountains and through some picturesque strips of woodland with miniature waterfalls. All the drinking water at the Sennett studios is brought from mineral wells on the Sennett ranch.

Douglas Fairbanks is strutting a tough looking pair of hands these days with an amazing acreage of calluses caused by handling the bull whip which appears so conspicuously in his "Don Q." All the ladies squealed, of course, and had to feel them. Probably only President Coolidge knows what an overworked feeling Doug's hands had before the party was over.

Music World Meets Itself in Florence

By Edward Moore.

had to be promptly returned. Germany has produced nothing valuable, France as little. England's output has been chiefly that of Ralph Vaughan Williams with his Pastoral Symphony, not entirely new, and Gustav Holst, who is at work on a new symphony not yet completed.

So, as I said a week ago, if any American composer has anything to say through the medium of the symphony orchestra, this would seem to be an uncommonly favorable time for him to be saying it. There is just one check on the situation. It is earnestly requested that the aforesaid American composer have something under his scalp worth saying.

An Offer for Polacco.

Speaking of conductors, I learn there is a chance that Giorgio Polacco's term of service with the Chicago Civic Opera may be drawing to a close, though I hasten to add it will not be before the season of 1925-26 is ended. Mr. Polacco has received a definite offer to take the chief directorial post of the new Italian national opera house the corner stone of which was laid in Rome not long ago. This, I may venture to say, is considerable of an offer, for opera is a serious matter here, going to the point where people on the streets sing and whistle arias to themselves instead of discussing baseball scores.

Mr. Polacco has not indicated whether or not he intends to accept the offer, but he admits it has its points of temptation and has given him cause for moments of earnest thought. Evidently the new venture is to be large and comprehensive, with great resources behind it.

Holiday of an Artist.

Mr. Johnson has just got to Florence after a concert tour that carried him into Corea, Japan, China, Hongkong, Manila, and other points east and south. He tells of meeting the general strike in China, which, among other things, caused the cancellation of about half his dates; of his ship sailing with seventy of the crew short, so that even the ship's orchestra had to turn to and serve as waiters, the passengers meanwhile making up their own berths; of a hotel with neither waiters nor cooks, where the guests were invited to go into the kitchens and cook their own meals. There were various other incidents connected with labor troubles. But he denies he was forcibly dumped out of a rickshaw in Shanghai, as related in the American papers.

This is his vacation period, so all he is doing while in Florence is learning a new recital program for use in the United States this season, and two new operatic rôles, one of which he will certainly sing at the Metropolitan and the other of which he may be called for. The operas are Spontini's "La Vestale" and Giordano's "La Cena delle Beffe," which latter was known in America as a play under the name of "The Jest."

"La Vestale" belongs to the school of operatic antiques, dating from the time of Mozart, Rossini, and the early Beethoven, and containing forcible reminiscences of all of them together with much honest, old fashioned melody of its own. "La Cena delle Beffe," wherein Titta Ruffo is to sing the baritone part, is its exact opposite, with dramatic, shouting high notes no end and even less melody than is in the same composer's "Fedora." And that, as those who go to opera by night will recall, has only one tune worth the name, which is exactly four lines long.

So that is a busy artist's idea of a vacation. Of course, Mr. Johnson has some other activities, among them the hearing of a swarm of young singers studying in Italy, who, as soon as an artist of recognized standing appears on the horizon, begin to flock around for hearing and advice.

As Puccini Left It.

It may not be news by the time this is printed, but Arturo Toscanini is talking of making a change in the Milan production of Puccini's "Turandot," his last work. Instead of bringing it out next spring, the first plan, he now talks of doing it this fall on the anniversary of Puccini's death. Puccini left the final scene unfinished, and the autumn performance, if it is given, will end as the composer laid down his pen. Later it will be finished by other hands following Puccini's sketches, and presented complete.

Toscanini is anxious to get Rosa Raisa and Edith Mason to sing in the first performance, an impossibility because their Chicago engagements will prevent their being here. That would seem to be the principal obstacle to the autumn project, for, as I have had occasion to say repeatedly this summer, most of the world's principal singers are doing the most of their singing in America.

The next time I write I hope to have an account of a performance of "Romeo and Juliet" according to the music of Riccardo Zandonai, the composer of "Conchita" and "Francesca da Rimini," both of which were once in the repertoire of the Chicago Opera. "Romeo and Juliet" will be given on Saturday night of this week at Pesaro, not far from Florence as the crow flies, but an unholy distance round and about by train. However, a party of us plans to go over for the performance.

DOING WELL IN A GOOD PART

MISS ELSIE KEENE

SHE is all that even the authors could reasonably ask in the part of the Quinlan girl in "The Fall-Guy," and is in nice alignment in her playing with that of two others who are just about perfect in the same piece—Mr. Truex, the star, and Miss Beatrice Noyes.

NEW AND GOOD

MORGAN FARLEY

He's the actor of Marchbanks in the current performances of "Candida," and is so good in the rôle that no player who might be better for this especial task comes to mind. . . . Mr. Farley, it appears, first won attention in New-York in Guitry's "Debereau," one of the plays in Mr. Belasco's fantastic and futile campaign to make a star of Lionel Atwill. He made a definite success there a year ago in "Fata Morgana."

New Playbills

"Tell Me More!" in the Selwyn.—A song-play with music by George Gershwin, and written in other respects by Fred Thompson, William K. Wells, B. G. De Sylva, and Ira Gershwin. The piece was produced last April in New-York, where it ran for a time, and was said by the reporters to be pretty good. Lew Holtz, Miss Emma Haig, Miss Mabel Withee, and Eugene Redding are in it. . . . Opens tonight.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 27:

"Sky-High," with Willie Howard, in the Olympic.—A song-and-dance show whose basis is a piece of English make named "Whirled Into Happiness." It was staged in New-York earlier in the year for the purpose of putting Mr. Howard forward as a star; and it appears to have served that purpose. The reporters of the première there had much to say in praise of the dancing. . . . This date will mark the opening of the Olympic under the management of the Messrs. Shubert,—and with the entertainment they announced when they gave August 2 as the date for the restoration of the theater to the list of "regular places."

"My Son" in the Playhouse.—A play about the Portuguese and others of the Cape Cod neighborhood by Miss Martha Stanley. It had a run of many weeks last season in New-York; and the story has since been used for a film shown in Chicago. The cast for the Playhouse is not made known. . . . This theater is closed for the current week.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28:

Eddie Cantor in "Kid Boots" in the Woods.—A show that ran a year or so in New-York, where it was in high favor. Miss Mary Eaton and Miss Jobyna Howland are in it.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4:

"Aloma of the South Seas" in the Garrick.—A play by John B. Hymer, who helped to write "East Is West," and Le Roy Clemens that has been running in New-York since April 20. . . . "Mercenary Mary" will be taken from the Garrick Saturday night; and the theater will be closed until October 4.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 5:

"Rain," with Miss Jane Eagels, in the Harris.—This at length is a definite bulletin on a play first acted in New-York three years ago.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 12:

"What Price Glory!" in the Studebaker.—The celebrated piece by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson about the Marines in France, with, it is promised, the New-York cast.

Fundamentalism: Divine and Secular

By H. L. Mencken.

fellows congregate, they may run to four or five per cent of the total, but in the back reaches of the land, where the population has been degenerating for generations, they are probably far below one per cent. The fact was brilliantly on display at the late trial of the infidel Scopes at Dayton, Tenn. What impressed me most, watching that trial through long sweaty days, was the honest bewilderment of the assembled yokels. They simply could not understand the thing that Scopes was accused of teaching. Its veriest elements were as far beyond their comprehension as the music of Bach or the theory of least squares.

Nor was it only the obvious peasants who showed that pathetic puzzlement. The judge on the bench was plainly flabbergasted. His questions were those of a man completely ignorant and, what is more, of one completely unable to learn. When Darrow attempted to explain the A B C of the evolutionary hypothesis to him he sat there with his mouth open, blinking his eyes uneasily. The thing was beyond his powers, and so he quite naturally concluded that it was senseless and against God. An explanation of the nature and causes of diabetes would have dismayed and alarmed him in exactly the same manner.

Beyond Average Reach.

The central difficulty lies in the fact that all of the sciences have made such great progress during the last century that they have got quite beyond the reach of the average man. There was a time when this was not so. Even down to the end of the eighteenth century any man of ordinary intelligence could understand every scientific concept in good repute, even in astronomy. In medicine the thing was quite simple. Read the memoirs and biographies of the period—for example, Boswell's "Johnson"—and you will find every sick man disputing with his doctor as an equal, and often driving the good man into an uncomfortable corner.

But with the dawn of the nineteenth century all that began to change. Chemistry slowly took on the character of an exact science; physics, stimulated by the discovery of electricity, made vast and rapid progress; geology began to stand on its own legs; biology was born. More important, the sciences began to interchange facts and ideas; it was no longer possible for a zoölogist, say, to be ignorant of chemistry, or for a pathologist to neglect physics. There followed an era of synthesis, culminating dramatically in Darwin's publication of "The Origin of Species," and science was reborn.

Simultaneously it threw off all its old diffidence, its ancient subservience to general opinion, and especially to theological opinion. The earliest scientists of the new order had to step very softly; the whole world was yet a sort of Tennessee. But the later revolutionists promulgated their heresies boldly, and met the ensuing uproar bravely. In England it was Huxley who led them; in every civilized country there was another like him. When the battle was over science was free at last, for the first time in the history of man. Since then no scientist, coming upon new knowledge in his laboratory or in the field, has had to pause before announcing it to sound out the bishop.

Placing the Blame.

This freedom, as every one knows, has immensely increased what may be called the momentum of scientific research. Discoveries have followed one another at a rapid pace, and some of them have been of the first importance. There is scarcely a science that has not been completely revolutionized since 1860, and to the old ones many new ones have been added. Thus the body of scientific knowledge has grown immensely, and as it has grown it has taken on an ever greater and greater complexity. No man of today could hope to sweep the whole field of the sciences, as many men did so lately as 1850. And no man can take in all that even one science has to say without long and difficult training, and a special aptitude for that sort of knowledge.

Meanwhile, man in general has lagged far behind. He remains, indeed, precisely where he was when all this tremendous advance began. His mind is simple; his talents are few. In the days when the sciences themselves were simple, he could be made, perhaps, to understand their elements—in other words, he was educable. But today the thing is quite beyond him. No conceivable training could convert an ice wagon driver into a pathologist or a hill billy into a mathematical physicist. But the former may become a chiropractor and the latter may become a rustic judge. And there we are.

The fundamental fallacy is the assumption that all this is not true—that Homo boobiens is still capable of grasping anything and everything that goes on in the world. It is an imbecility, and hence dear to pedagogues. They are responsible, at bottom, for fundamentalism. Half-educated themselves, they have sought to crowd an impossible education upon their victims. The young moron in the village high school must be taught geology, paleontology, biology—all completely incomprehensible to him, and both incomprehensible and sinister to his pa. No wonder his pa sounds the fire alarm, rushes to the village tabernacle, and appeals for succor to the Lord God Jehovah!

IN ONE OF NEXT WEEK'S PLAYS

MISS LORNA ELLIOTT

SHE was just right when here last season in an incidental part in "The Goose Hangs High," but didn't have much to do. She classifies as a Chicagoan, from all accounts. . . . Miss Elliott is on her way hither in the cast of "My Son," due next Sunday in the Playhouse.

Movie Sidelights from Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

At last a new style that has some sense to it is being launched in Hollywood. It won't be sensible in Hollywood, but it would be in Chicago and New York; that is, the nifty sheba will no longer slight her shapely shins with galoshes, but will wear fur shoes. The latest stuff is to have slippers of the fur to match your coat. Carmel Myers is sporting a leopard skin pair combined with black caracul trimmings.

An interstudio tennis tournament looms in the offing for the sport calendar of Hollywood athletic events. The moving spirits are Ramon Navarro and Norma Shearer. They have argued Louis Mayer into building them two concrete courts at the lot, and this fact is being used by other stars at other studios to get courts put in.

Mildred Davis Lloyd is again to feel the burning Kleigs after an absence of three years. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton are to play with her in "The Two Soldiers," under the direction of Victor Fleming, for Famous Players-Lasky.

Some talk was stirred among movie folk by the recent assignment given Pat O'Malley, popular portrayer of plumbers, tramps, peddlers, and such, to portray a grand duke of Russia in Laura La Plante's new picture. They didn't see how it would be done at all, but Pat found one stanch upholder in his friend, the traffic cop, at the corner of Cahuenga and Hollywood boulevards, a busy traffic center.

"Sure and why not?" says the cop. "All the Irish are the sons of kings annyways, and as for bein' a great lover, don't the Irish have the biggest families in the wurruld?"

The New Brunswick-Radiola

Equipped with the New RCA—UX120 Power Tube

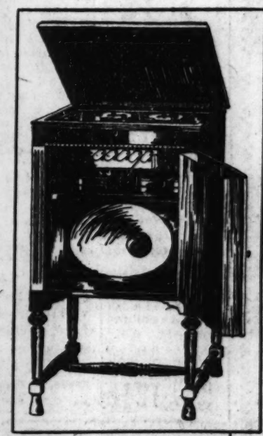
THIS is a real value. This new model gives the highest type of radio reception. Whenever you wish you can tune in and pick up distant stations without interference by local stations. The radio equipment is the famous Super-Heterodyne. All apparatus is enclosed in the cabinet.

No such beautiful cabinet Radiola has been placed on the market which can anywhere equal this price. We have been fortunate in obtaining a limited quantity. We urge your early selection.

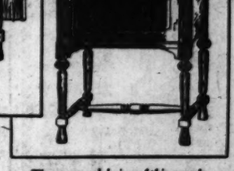
Famous for years for the exquisite design and lasting qualities of their cabinet work, the Brunswick Company has put out this special model to contain the Radiola Super-Heterodyne. All outside wires are eliminated. Everything is contained in the cabinet. There are no acid batteries to spoil your rugs and floor. The loud speaker is enclosed and uses the famous Brunswick laminated horn.

Do not delay. We have only a limited quantity. Call at once or send coupon below.

Remember
1. No acid batteries
2. No outside wires
3. No exposed horn



The cut at the left shows the compact arrangement of the radio apparatus. The outswung door contains a loop aerial which can be swung on its hinges directionally to pick up any station. The set operates on dry batteries. Six tubes, loud speaker and all equipment are included in this special price.



The grace and design of this console model is in keeping with the finest furniture. It is beautifully finished in walnut and will make a desirable addition to any home.

Easy Terms Arranged

AT $275 this model is greatly underpriced. Shop around before coming here and you will be convinced of the genuine bargain it is. No introductions are needed for the Brunswick. Neither are they necessary for the Radiola.

Radio outfits ordinarily do not fit in harmoniously with home furnishings. Here is an instrument that does at a popular price. Now you can buy at a large saving a genuine R. C. A. Radiola in a beautiful Brunswick console cabinet. Since our supply is limited we urge your immediate visit. If you cannot call at once, clip the coupon and send us your name and address at once. Unless you reserve one in this manner, we cannot guarantee delivery. We know our stock will not last long. It is such an unusual value people will buy it up in a day or so. Do not put off your decision. Come in or write us at once.

For Those Who Would Be Slim

NEMO Leads in Figure-Grooming for New Styles

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

The Princess Line is a pronounced development of the new Fall modes shown by the leading designers of Paris at the Fall Openings. This definite trend towards Princess lines with the gored waistline and flaring hips, calls for proper corseting—women can no longer go without a support and be stylish.

This new era in corsetry demands Figure Grooming, that is, you must put yourself in the hands of a trained, experienced corsetiere, one who knows how to corset you softly, how to hide that middle-aged spread, that settling down of the waistline until it blends with the bulge of the hips.

How to take away that bulge at the diaphragm, that is the outstanding defect of the age. To some we will give a corset, to others a girdle, and again to others a Nemo-Flex, but we assure you that if you spend fifteen minutes in our fitting room with one of our experienced fitters, your figure will be comfortable and stylish.

Nemo Self Reducing Corset style 506 as illustrated, absolutely controls the abdomen, sizes to 38, at 5.00

Nemo-Flex, moulds the figure and slenderizes the abdomen, sizes bust measure, 34 to 48, at 3.50

"Headlines" a Film Well Worth Seeing

By Mae Tinee.

who, mistaking his niceness for infatuation, cruelly appropriates him, announcing to her mother one day that they're engaged.

Daughter has a line that goes big with all the men—"You're SO masterful! Marry me and subdue me!"

* * *

She springs it on the fiancé, who laughs it off. The editor takes her at her word, and is told he has taken too much for granted. The notorious gentleman whose wife is about to divorce him, and is industriously sleuthing about for EVIDENCE, takes her at her own apparent valuation—which is not high—and it is in his apartment that the scenes occur which schedule somebody to be named as co-respondent.

Mother, being swift and shrewd as well as noble, gets there in time to take the blame.

It takes a cyclone sometimes to clear the air.

The hideous session in the Austen apartment is the blow that fixes this ether.

Enjoy the picture, if you please, for it is well done. But please don't believe all you see. For instance, honest to goodness, all beauty, love, and movie editors are not as portrayed here! There are lots of lady reporters, though, as delectable as Phyllis Dale, and the boyish editor is not too nice to be natural.

I won't tell you how it all comes out, but you are to rest assured that "Headlines" is a cleverly acted and skillfully strung together movie.

See you tomorrow!

The Voice of the Movie Fan - - - - - - - -

Conducted by Mae Tinee.

A Thousand Pardons!

Dear Mae Tinee: A family of four chose to see "Seven Days" because you recommended it. We went expecting to have a jolly hour laughing hard at a play which you assured your readers some days ago was genuinely funny.

We were bitterly disappointed. It is true, we did laugh several times and quite heartily at repartee in the subtitles, and we did enjoy the watchful police and eager reporters and cameramen in the background, roosting on roof tops to prevent escapes. But in the main, we are sorry we went. L. H.

[Editor's Note: I guess you think I'm all wet, don't you?]

It Has Been Done.

Dear Mae Tinee: With more or less regularity I read your comments, but always with interest.

I like the "Good Morning," and "See You Tomorrow."

Just by way of interest and change, how does this suggestion strike you:

That these be varied each day in a different language. Hebrew, Chinese, French, Spanish, Swedish, clear down the line.

I am sure it would please these various nationalities to see these and make the rest of us curious.

Anyway, good luck, good health, and a few real friends. TRAVELER.

[Editor's Note: Thanks for your encouragement and suggestion. It's a good idea, but we used it once—quite a while ago. Where were you, I wonder?]

Bricks and Bouquets.

Dear Miss Tinée: Here are a few expressions of admiration and two hard slams:

"Broken Blossoms"—My mother told me to go to see it; she was sure I would enjoy it. It sure thrilled me, it was so delightful and sad. Anybody who misses this play is missing heaps of wonderful acting. I can't stop praising the unique way in which Richard Barthelmess took the part of the yellow man.

"Zander the Great" was surely great. Really, I can't speak enough praise for it. Marion Davies, just as sweet as ever, and she surely took her part well. Harrison Ford had all the Valentino, Cortez, patent leather sheiks beat by a mile.

"Don QQQQQQQQQQ!" Ah! That wicked whip, the clever hand that held it! Mary Aster is swumpsciously bootiful, and such eyes, my, O, my!

Honest, a person really does not mind spending her hard earned money (I mean dad's) to see such plays as the above mentioned, but when it comes to such Dumb-Dora get-ups like "Chickie" and "The Desert Flower" it's the limit and I draw a line.

Colleen Moore is a good actress, and I do not see what the big idea was in ruining her good reputation by putting her in such a meaningless play as "The Desert Flower."

Maybe you will think this chatter is awful. If you get tired reading it just chuck it in your waste basket and forget it. PUG NOSED PEGGY.

[Editor's Note: Chatter some more when you have time, P. N. P.!]

Here You Are.

Dear Mae Tinée: Every Sunday I read the kick corner and enjoy it immensely. I have my agreements and disagreements with other people's views of the movies.

This is my first letter to you, but I have wanted to write ever since I saw "Chickie." It was a piece of amateur work. The story and characters are both murdered. If I were the author I'd consider it quite a slam. Doris Kenyon would have made a better Chickie than Dorothy. Poor Jake! They sure did him dirt.

If I see this in print I will write again. Thank you for this space. MILLIE.

[Editor's Note: See! It's in print! Now write again!]

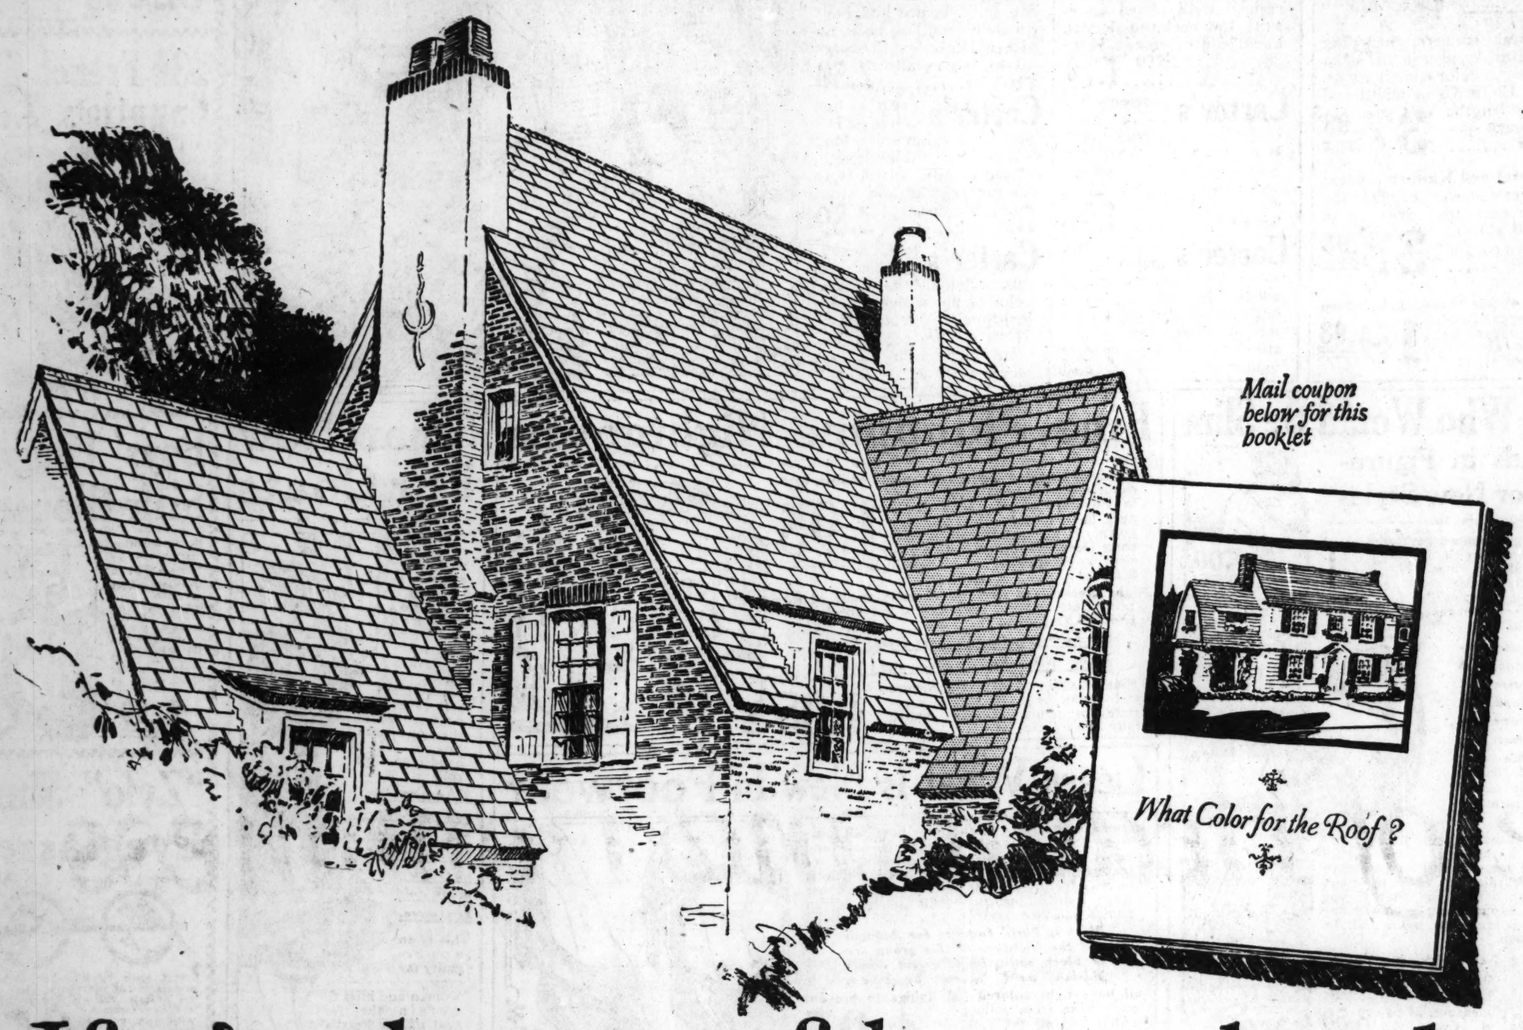
Sorry, It's Been Done.

Dear Miss Tinée: I notice that "Broken Blossoms," revived recently, is now coming to some of the neighborhood theaters. I shall be grateful if you will review it soon, as your reviews are at once interesting, witty, and, most of all, dependable. You always hit the nail on the head. J. C.

[Editor's Note: The picture was reviewed when it was here before. I liked it. Thanks for your pleasant words.]



If it's a house of brown brick

Here is the roof Richardson recommends

It makes a rich-looking, substantial home, this popular mottled brown brick of rough texture—with the right roof and trim colors.

But try to picture the house illustrated above with a drab colored roof, or one too bright in tone. The effect would be ruined!

A wise choice of roof and trim colors, on the other hand, makes it one of the most attractive homes you could imagine.

For there lies your greatest opportunity to add to the outward beauty of any home.

On such a house Richardson recommends this color scheme. A roof of antique brown, a brown as rich and mellow as age-old brick—of heather purple, the purple of distant hillsides—and of opal, where gray green slate flakes, combined with the rare weathered brown, add a touch of cooler color. Here is a roof that blends right in with the house itself, both in texture and color. And notice how skillfully the roof-colors are reflected in the green trim and purple-blue shutters. Details like this are the making of a beautiful effect.

And they are new, the colors that form this roof, never before available in a roof of moderate cost.

This is only one of the beautiful effects you can secure with Richardson Multicrome Roofs. The other new colorings are equally attractive on different types of homes.

Other rich blends of color

The onyx roof, for example, is unusually attractive on a white Colonial home trimmed in green. And the new heather and blue shingles form just the roof for a gray stucco house.

Before you build, before you re-roof, by all means see these new Richardson colorings.

With them you can make the roof one of the most effective units of your decorative scheme. One of them can give your home just the distinction and charm you have always wanted it to have.

To help you choose

To help you choose the roof which will make the most of this opportunity we have prepared an authoritative booklet. It is called, What Color for the Roof?

In it, there is page after page of beautiful homes in different architectural styles, all in color to show the most tasteful effects in body, trim and roof combinations. Interestingly explained, too, are the principles of all good color schemes.

And with the Richardson Harmonizer which it contains you can see the complete effect of 54 different roof and house combinations.

The price of the book and Harmonizer is 25c. Send the coupon below for your copy.

See the new colors at your dealer's

Your nearest dealer in building materials can show you these and other beautiful Multicrome Roofs. He will tell you, too, why the points mentioned in the panel at the left make their beauty lasting.

DEALERS: There is a Richardson product for every roofing need. Perhaps you can secure the Richardson franchise for your territory. Write us.

50% thicker than the ordinary roof

The Multicrome Roof is built of Super-Giant Shingles—extra large, extra heavy. Its 50% greater thickness adds both beauty of texture and years of endurance. Its base is sturdy, long-fibre Richardson felt. Its waterproofing is Viskalt—99.8% pure bitumen, especially vacuum-processed. Its surface is slate in close, overlapping flakes—further protection against weather and fire.

This roof gives the maximum roof value at a moderate price. It is economical to lay and equally good for new or over-the-old-roof jobs

The Oval Basin, Indrio's proposed bathing casino. Here young and old will gather to disport themselves in invigorating salt water, or to exchange idle gossip on the loggias which overlook the gleaming pool. Here tea will be served on restful afternoons, and at night the tinkle of music will invite you to dance away the hours under colorful lights and the star-studded Florida sky.

A Place of Health and Happiness

Indrio will have outdoor sports and social gayety galore

Study the Advantages that Set INDRIO Apart

Indrio has countless advantages that distinguish it from the average Florida townsite development and assure a phenomenal growth. Among them are:

A high, dry location on the Indian River (an inlet of the Atlantic), the Dixie Highway and the Florida East Coast Railway.

A comfortable climate the year 'round; average annual temperature 72 degrees.

Numerous social and recreational facilities to be provided.

An abundance of shady parks, plazas and boulevards, the latter to range from 100 to 200 feet in width.

All residence lots to be 100 feet wide, and to face either an avenue or a boulevard.

Architectural harmony assured by the adoption of the appropriate Mediterranean style of architecture as standard. All structures to be approved by the city planners before erection.

Paving, sidewalks, water, electricity and sewers to be installed without expense to the buyer.

An inexhaustible supply of pure drinking water.

Rigid restrictions to exclude undesirable citizens.

Splendid game fishing and hunting at all seasons of the year.

Surrounded by Fort Pierce Farms, Florida's most productive farming and fruit raising land.

All titles guaranteed by New York Title and Mortgage Company.

Men of Repute Back Indrio

Indrio is the practical vision of reputable men, who command the financial resources and artistic genius necessary to insure its realization. These men include John I. Beggs, a leader in the public utility field and a director of the North American Co., the First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee and the First National Bank of St. Louis; Edwin B. Meissner, president of the St. Louis Car Co.; Richard McCulloch, formerly head of the United Railways of St. Louis and now a director of the St. Louis Car Co.; Frank B. Shutts, owner of the Miami Herald; Edwin Binney, president of Binney & Smith, New York; Charles O. Reynolds, investment banker of Chicago, and George T. Baker, realtor, Fort Pierce, Fla.

Wm. C. Krieg, J. T. Hetherington and M. D. Hetherington, eminent city architects of Chicago, are the city planners of Indrio. Charles W. Murray, for eight years city engineer of Miami, is in charge of development.

THE health-giving qualities of Florida air and sunshine, combined with a bewildering array of social and recreational facilities, will make Indrio an ideal home town for the jaded city dweller.

Here outdoor sports in wide variety will build up weary bodies, while social activities of every description will refresh the tired mind. Here the pallor of the city will give way to a healthy bronze as day after day is spent 'neath Florida's glorious sun and azure skies.

Many and varied will be the sport and social facilities which Indrio will provide. These will include a magnificent salt water bathing casino, wading pools for the children, tennis and roque courts, bridle paths, a million dollar hotel and a country club with a sporty 18-hole golf course.

The site of Indrio is healthfully high. It is entirely free from germ and mosquito breeding places, and is fanned summer and winter by refreshing breezes from the nearby sea.

Another Unit of INDRIO Will Open Soon
Make Reservations NOW at 10% Discount

The first unit of Indrio, which opened recently, was over-reserved before its opening. Deposit checks on property to the amount of $584,500.00 have been returned to would-be purchasers whose reservations reached us too late to be accommodated.

The overwhelming response to the opening of the first unit prompts us to urge you to act quickly if you would procure a homesite in the next unit. This will be opened just as quickly as our Engineering Department can prepare it for sale—watch this paper for announcement of the date and time.

Protect yourself against possible disappointment by making a reservation at once. Reservations made now will be subject to the 10% introductory discount which will apply only on the opening day.

The coupon at the right will bring you a price list of Indrio property, a reservation blank and an elaborately illustrated folder describing the town. Clip, sign and mail—right now! If you plan to go to Florida this winter, do not fail to visit Indrio and see this masterpiece of civic planning for yourself.

U. S. RADIO CHIEF REVEALS FACTS ABOUT WAVES

Explains Popular Fallacies of the Ether.

Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio laboratory of the U. S. bureau of standards, has written an article on "Facts and Fallacies of Radio Wave Transmission." Among other things, he says:

"About a year ago Marconi stated his belief that high-frequency transmitting stations could be built for reliable commercial communication over any desired distance at a very small fraction of the cost of long-wave stations. Despite occasional repetitions of this opinion by others, most of the research in this country is throwing grave doubt on this conclusion. In spite of their success in bridging great distances, these waves are subject to far more vagaries and peculiarities of behavior than the more familiar longer waves.

"The many puzzling characteristics of short waves have stimulated widespread examination of our knowledge of the mechanism of radio wave transmission. Recent comments on the idea of a radio roof or ceiling over the world indicates the need for a clarification of what is new and what is old, of what is understood and what is not understood, of what is true and what is false, in such explanations.

World's Roof Not New.

"There is nothing startling about the idea of such a radio ceiling nor of the propagation of waves along this upper atmospheric surface in such wise as to explain many of the peculiarities of radio transmission. The existence of this conducting surface due to low density and ionization high in the atmosphere was postulated by Prof. Schuster in England in 1887, before radio existed. In 1900, not long after Marconi succeeded in sending radio waves across the Atlantic, it was suggested by Heaviside, the great electrical genius, and by Prof. Kennelly of Harvard, that this surface or ionized region might have some effect in radio wave propagation. Then in 1912 Dr. H. W. Eccles published some calculations on the inter actions of radio waves and the ionized air and showed how the waves are thereby bent down to follow the curvature of the earth.

The bureau of standards in 1920 introduced the idea that waves may be transmitted either along the earth's surface or along the upper atmospheric conducting surface, and used this idea to explain the superiority of long waves in the day and shorter waves at night, and also worked out from this an explanation of the prevalence of fading and great transmission distances at night. This explanation, published in 1921, cleared up many of the peculiaries of radio transmission that had previously been a mystery. It was the basis of the numerous discussions of the double transmission path, ground waves and upper air waves, which have appeared since.

Shoot Waves Upwards.

"The simile of a radio roof or ceiling of the sky, with waves reflected as from the dome in a whispering gallery, was not used in the bureau's explanation, and does not give a true picture of what happens. Probably a better picture is that set forth in the original publication, radio wave transmission being compared with the German long range gun which bombarded Paris from a distance of 70 miles.

"The rarefied higher portions of the atmosphere which permitted the projectile to fly toward Paris with little resistance, played the same rôle that the upper electric strata of the air play in radio transmission as, by their particular conditions of ionization, they permit radio waves of particular frequencies to travel enormous distances around the earth. And, just as the Germans aimed the gun at a very high elevation so as to put the projectile quickly up into the little-resisting portions of the atmosphere, so we are nowadays using new forms of antennas to shoot high-frequency radio waves upward instead of starting them out horizontally.

"Recent theoretical work by Larmor, another English physicist, has extended this theory by showing that the height of the conducting level in the atmosphere is different for different wave lengths, and this presents an explanation of the differing character and distance of transmission of short waves of different frequencies and at different times."

Inside the Loud Speaker

with Quin A. Ryan, the Voice of W-G-N

PAT BARNES, the WHT announcer, has a new radio story.

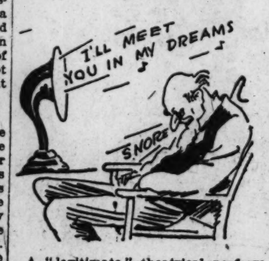
An Irishman named Pat and Mike, and an Englishman named Cecil were arguing—and what they were arguing about was, of course, the accomplishments of their respective races.

The Englishman said that recently excavators were digging among the ruins of a medieval English castle and they found a well preserved network of ancient telegraph wires, thus proving that the English had invented and used the telegraph even in the middle ages.

And the Irishman came back with, "Shure, that's nawthin' at all. Two years ago in Ballydonegan weren't they diggin' amidst the roons of an Irish castle, too, and divil a thing did they find—thus provin' that the Irish had wireless even in the early cinturies."

HOW LONG'S A RADIO SHOW?

Assuming that the style and the standard of the entertainment remains constant, how long do you listen to radio? How long, we mean, should a radio performance be?



A "legitimate" theatrical performance may run two hours and a half or three hours. A movie show will consume an hour, two hours, or more.

A radio performance, we think—that is, one that is an entity, that has coherence and sequence—should not run over an hour, if it is to receive from the listeners the concentrated attention that it warrants. Because, excepting the cases of feature events, such as football games, auto races, and drama broadcast from the theater, the radio audience will not linger longer.

But a "program," as such, of good music or other entertainment, may proceed indefinitely. A good classic orchestra, or a fine jazz orchestra, alternating with an organ, for instance, if broadcast for as long as three hours, would always be entertaining and valuable on the air. A station that could stay on the air for such a period would please, somewhere in that span, the bulk of that great body of listeners who as yet do not take their radio punctually but who tune in hit or miss at odd times of the day. Thus the station would be ever "on tap" and the listener could take as much as would satisfy him.

WHERE RADIO GOES

There's an odd, semi-humorous, semi-tragic, psychological touch in one of the letters received yesterday at our radio station. Larry Shay, the young composer, who sings ever and anon from W-G-N, has given the jazz and ballad world many a hit, such as "Memories," "That's Georgia," "Too Tired," "By the Light of the Stars," and "You're in Kentucky Sure as You're Born," and at present has a long string of new ones.

Yesterday Larry received a letter from one of the inmates of the state prison at Auburn, N. Y., who had heard him singing a few nights before. The prisoner requested of Larry professional copies of four of his new songs, and if you are acquainted with the titles of Larry's new ones, you will read with a shock what four songs the prisoner picked, seemingly unconscious of the ironic humor in the selections. The letter runs, in part:

". . . No letter that you can receive is prompted by a more real spirit, is actuated by a deeper sincerity and appreciation that gives license for me to address you now. Some one has said of us here that we close our eyes, for the darkness under our eyelids is not so depressing as the sombre darkness that we see if we open them. And how much more clearer, how splendid and 'far away' is that light if we can close our eyes and see through the music that comes to us 'over the air.' Simplicity is, after all, the most perfect of tributes, won't you accept this? We, here, 1,300 of us, prisoners, in the deepest meaning of the word 'felt' with you last night when you sang to us. Thanks for it.

"We are giving an inmate show, soon, for inmates and their friends, gratis, of course, and we should like very, very much to be permitted to sing your songs, and we would sing them with just a little bit more pathos than those outside, for they brought a message. Will you, Mr. Shay, send me a few professional copies of 'After Today,' 'I'm One of Those Guys,' 'Nobody Cares for Me' 'What Do We Care If It's One O'Clock, or Two, or Three, or Four,' and anything else you may care to?

"And the next time that you put that funny little catch in your voice, when you are singing 'After Today,' know that we are with you, and that we have a real funny feeling in ours. Thanks for your songs, they help." [Signed].

Famous Bands Exchange Music with Washington

Picking up the Army band broadcasting from Washington has brought requests from bands in foreign countries for the loan of American music in exchange for some of their unusual scores. Among the organizations with which Capt. William J. Stannard has exchanged music recently have been the famous Garde Republicain band of Paris and the Banda Mayor of Mexico City.

STATION JAM TO COME BEFORE 4TH CONFERENCE

May Ask Congress to Put Brakes On.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—An outstanding recommendation of the Fourth National Radio conference to be held at Washington will probably be that hereafter any one who intends to build a broadcasting station will be required by law to secure a construction permit before breaking ground. At least this seemed to be the consensus of opinion of six or eight prominent radio officials who were asked what they thought might be the conference's principal accomplishment.

This they agreed will likely go to congress along with another extremely important recommendation that Secretary Hoover hereafter be authorized to limit the number of broadcasting stations granted licenses.

No Place to Operate.

Even more embarrassing to the government are the applicants who suddenly appear in Washington seeking a license for a station that is half or three-quarters finished. They are all dressed up but find they have absolutely no place to go, inasmuch as it is then the government's painful duty to inform them all the desirable wavebands have been exhausted.

However, it is one thing to turn down an applicant who is intending to erect a station and quite another to turn down an individual who has already erected one.

Erected Upon Impulse.

Yet the commerce department is meeting with just such cases every day. It is almost unbelievable that a man, ordinarily conservative in business matters, would go ahead and spend $15,000 or more on a broadcasting station without looking far enough ahead to see what the possibilities are of being able to operate it.

This is one of the amazing conditions of radio which, as Secretary Hoover recently well said, is moving forward with the strides of a giant wearing seven league boots.

New South Wales Fights Competition

Possibly predicating the same attitude as other countries, a strong fight is being made in New South Wales to shut out foreign radio competition by heavy duties. It is said this is especially aimed at American manufacturers.

MYSTERIOUS GERMAN STATION.

A report has reached this country that a new German station has been transmitting lately by telephony on enormous power.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, Sept. 20, 1925.) (Chicago daylight saving time throughout.)

The Wieboldt string quintet, playing in celebration of the opening of the W. A. Wieboldt company's new store at Ashland avenue, Ogden boulevard, and Monroe street, will be heard this afternoon at 4 o'clock in a full hour of classical and semi-classical music from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

At one o'clock this afternoon W-G-N is to broadcast for the second time a complete performance at the Balaban & Katz Chicago theater. The program today features the new dance, "Charleston," in the theater's seventh edition of syncopation week. The announcer is situated in a soundproof room and announces the various stage features while other microphones pick up the music and songs.

Headliners in the show include Ray Miller and his Brunswick orchestra; Adler, Weil and Herman, California's Sunkist Syncopators; White and Manning, featured in "Puzzles of 1925"; Joe Whitehead and Jimmie Dunn; Alice Ridnor and Babe Payne, singers; and Edith Blossom and Tommie Wonders, dancers. Other features that will be heard over the air are Jesse Crawford's organ solo, "The Kinky Kids' Parade," and the overture, "Charleston Echoes," by the Chicago theater orchestra, Nathaniel Finston, musical director.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock this evening the Drake concert ensemble is to present the following program, assisting the vocal artists:

1. "Under the Linden" ..... Maseenet
2. Valse Suite ..... Brahms
3. [a] "Canzonetta" ..... Heimandahl
   [b] "Bagatelle" ..... Heimandahl
4. Berceuse ..... Juon

Uncle Walt will read THE TRIBUNE comics to the children at noon today.

Trading English for Portuguese by Radio

The Paria Vermelha Radio station of the Radio club in Brazil, South America, broadcasts a lesson in English twice each week. This not only affords an opportunity for Brazilians to acquire some knowledge of English, but it also gives the American colony a chance to learn Portuguese.

Japs Want Only Best in Radio Equipment

Word comes from Nagoya, Japan, where the new broadcasting station is getting into its stride, that the more expensive receivers of American origin are being sold quite readily. Our commercial attaché advises that Japanese competition makes it practically impossible to sell American sets that retail below $50.

The Best Aerial is a Beldenamel Aerial

THE difference in price between an ordinary bare copper aerial and a Beldenamel Aerial is insignificant, but the difference in results is astounding. This is particularly true after the aerial has been exposed to fumes and smoke for a few weeks.

A Beldenamel Aerial is coated with several layers of baked Beldenamel. It cannot corrode or oxidize. Its receiving range does not fall off, like that of a bare copper aerial. It insures maximum range and volume at all times. Be sure your aerial is a good aerial by installing a Beldenamel Aerial. Install one, today.

RADIO MEN SEE BILLION DOLLAR GOAL THIS YEAR

Record Breaking Season Talked at Shows.

BY FRANK HINMAN.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The radio industry this week opened what, it is believed, will be the greatest year in its history and with the close of the two radio shows, manufacturers, distributors, jobbers and dealers are on their way home, all set to do a record breaking business. Predictions were freely made at both shows, the second annual radio world's fair and the fourth annual radio exposition, that the industry, which is only five years old, will this year break into the exclusive billion dollar class. Last year a business of a little less than $500,000,000 was done, but there is every indication that it will come close to reaching the billion dollar goal this season.

In making their predictions of a record breaking business, radio experts point out the fact that radio is no longer a novelty. They state that the industry has been stabilized, that there is no longer the fear in the public's mind that some new invention will come along over night to revolutionize the whole wireless field, making the sets they have just bought obsolete and, lastly, that prices, have come within the reach of every one.

Demand Quality and Tone.

Pointing to the field for radio sales, they cite figures given by Senator C. C. Dill last week in which he said that of the 24,000,000 homes in the United States, 17,000,000 had automobiles while less than 5,000,000 owned radio sets.

While there have been no radical changes since last year, there have been many innovations and improvements. Sets on display at the two expositions indicate that tonal quality, beauty and ease of operation were the primary factors in their construction.

Manufacturers have learned that the radio fan is no longer satisfied if he can coax his set, after many squeaks and squawks, into producing a few bars of music. The novelty of that is gone and the fans are demanding instruments which will reproduce radio programs without distortion. In this connection, too, the fans have discovered that they can get just as good programs from nearby stations as they can anywhere and so, beyond the novelty of listening in on coast stations occasionally, there will be little DX work done by the ordinary fans. In fact, some manufacturers have sacrificed distance to obtain tonal quality.

Sets Are More Simple.

There have been many improvements in the construction of cabinets for the sets, many being elaborate and artistic pieces of furniture. Last year's complaint that many of the larger sets were too hard to operate has been remedied in a great many instruments, sets which formerly had five, six or seven dials and knobs on the front panel now having two, three or four.

The fact that fans are demanding tonal quality will also be reflected in radio programs. This is evident from conversations with numerous broadcasters who held a convention in conjunction with the radio shows. The fans are demanding quality as well as variety, and much of the slap stick stuff of the last few years is scheduled for the discard.

There will be several radio treats for radio fans, many of the stations having plans for innovations in broadcasting. Plans have been completed for the rebroadcasting of European programs through American stations, while another international radio week has been set for the week of Jan. 24. During this week American and probably Canadian stations will be silent for a given time each night so that United States fans can attempt to get programs from European stations.

COLISEUM SHOW TO BE CLIMAX OF EXPOSITIONS

Following successful conclusion of radio shows in New York and other places, manufacturers and exhibitors are planning to cap the climax of a wonderful send-off of the 1926 season by moving en masse to attend the Fourth Annual Chicago Radio Show to be held in the coliseum November 17 to 22.

Previous shows this year have caught many manufacturers without complete samples to exhibit, so in reality the November show will be the "real" exhibition to the last word in radio, the others having represented rehearsals.

New coils, condensers, and tuning devices, made necessary by the changes in the broadcasting situation, will be prominently displayed. New sets, with concealed controls, or small knobs with indicators inside the panel, will feature many af the new sets designed to appeal to those who want radio to harmonize with other home surroundings.

The show is under the personal direction of U. J. Herrmann, one of the men responsible for the success of this year's show at the Armory in New York, and the previous radio shows at the Coliseum. The show is indorsed by the Radio Manufacturers' association as the official show in Chicago, and all of the leading manufacturers in radio and allied arts will be present to display their latest contribution to the art.

Another Radio Show Announced for Chicago

Radio week, to be featured by the Allied Radio congress and the National Radio exposition, according to announcement, will be held in Chicago Sept. 28 to Oct. 3. Manufacturers and dealers from every part of the country will attend the joint six day show, which will be held at the American Exposition palace, 666 Lake Shore drive.

W-G-N NOTES

The most riotous hour of music that has ever been put on the air will be broadcast by W-G-N next Thursday night—or really at 12:30 Friday morning—in the Milky Way party which will feature "Siggie and his Musical Maniacs," playing at the Pantheon theater. This volcanic jazz band is under the supervision of Paul Ash, and is directed by "Siggie" himself. The specialty of these twenty musicians is symphonic syncopation. This will be their first appearance on any radio.

"Tea Time" is the newest feature added to the W-G-N programs. Every afternoon between 4 and 4:30, W-G-N will broadcast tea time music by the Marshall Field String quintet, directed by Samuel Leviton, playing in the tearooms of Marshall Field & Co.

Jack Chapman's orchestra, famous for its broadcasting and phonograph records, is to return to its original home, W-G-N and the Drake hotel, next Tuesday evening, to open an autumn and winter engagement. These mellow and popular musicians will be on the air between 10:30 and 11:30 every evening.

Gov. Al Smith of New York will be heard next Sunday afternoon from W-G-N when he delivers the principal address at the picnic of the Democratic party of Cook county at Beverly Hills. Gov. Smith's address will be of particular interest because of the recent victory of his faction in the New York mayoralty primaries.

U. S. TO PUT PEP INTO RADIO MARKET REPORTS

An effort will be made to inject some pep into the market news summary to be given by the United States bureau of agricultural economics each evening at 7 o'clock from WRC or WCAP in Washington. At any rate, it will not be long drawn out, inasmuch as the summary will be limited to ten minutes.

J. C. Gilbert, specialist in market news, will endeavor to make it of interest to both producers and consumers. There will be a housewives' angle also.

Fruit, vegetable, live stock, meat, dairy product, hay, feed, and general grain reports will be included.

"It will be of interest to the farmer on the one hand," is the word that comes from the agricultural department, "and the buyer on the other. Everything will be given in popular style, and snappy and to the point."

WOMAN LISTENER IN BRITAIN TWO TO EVERY MAN

But American Mere Men Lead Here.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Women radio listeners in Great Britain outnumber men by two to one.

The actual figures are 65 per cent women and only 35 per cent men. The investigation also finds that women are most critical of range and tone in receiving sets and that they encourage their husbands in buying the latest type of receivers and making addition to their original sets.

Women prefer talks, wireless plays and dance music, the British Broadcasting company's survey has found. As a result of their investigation special afternoon programs of talks and music will be introduced. Three times a week a talk on cooking will be given by the head chef of the famous Berkeley hotel restaurant and regular talks on dress will be given by leading British dress designers.

American men listen in on the radio much more than women according to an interview given by Col. McKelvey, director of many Pacific coast stations, upon his arrival at the Berkeley hotel in London. The colonel attributes this to the extreme "restlessness" of modern American women.

Wales is a Fan.

The Prince of Wales has followed in his father's footsteps and become an enthusiastic radio fan.

News has been received here that the magnificent train which recently carried the prince across the pampas of Argentine was equipped with one of the most remarkable radio sets in the world. It was a powerful valve set, and the set itself, enclosed in a handsome case, floated in a container of water in order to prevent any derangement due to the motion of the train.

The big Buenos Aires station sent out special programs and greetings day and night to the prince's special set.

Ecclesiastical authorities in England are gradually overcoming their original prejudice against the microphone.

A full service will be transmitted from Durham cathedral on Oct. 8, with a sermon by the Bishop of Durham. It is also hoped to broadcast a service from St. George's chapel, Windsor, in the near future.

Short Waves Successful.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 19.—The official Dutch wireless service has been making experiments with very short wave lengths—26, 36, and 42 meters—especially for the service to the Dutch Indies. These experiments, which have been going on for about two weeks now, have been very successful. Last Monday calling for Java started at 6 p. m. and at 6:10 the connection was obtained and at 9:45 all telegrams for India had gone through. The new Hague station was able to give 20 ordinary words per minute on a 26 meter wave with two repeats for code words and a single repeat for ordinary words, whereas the great wireless station built for interoceanic intercourse at Kootwyk was limited to 12 words per minute and was forced to give three repeats for each word.

Radio Playlets to Go on Barnstorming Tour

The radio revues and musical playlets have proved so popular when broadcast from two of the big London stations that arrangements have been made for them to go on a tour of the provincial English broadcasting stations during the autumn.

PORTUGAL STILL ASLEEP.

There is but one broadcasting station functioning in Portugal devoted to concert or popular programs and no new stations are known to be projected.

BOOK LOVER

CLAUDE J. PERNIN, S. J., the man behind the voice in KYW's regular Thursday evening feature, "Twenty Minutes of Good Reading," completed his third year of radio reading on Thursday evening, Sept. 17.

It was just three years ago when KYW's microphone gave voice to Father Pernin in his first reading—"The Gift of the Magi," by O. Henry, his favorite author. There were not so many listeners-in then, but during the three years past, Father Pernin's audience has grown, until today the "Twenty Minutes of Good Reading" is one of the station's most popular features.

CENSUS REVEALS RAPID STRIDES OF RADIO IN U. S.

The bureau of the census reveals that the value of radio appliances manufactured in 1923, excluding motor generators and vacuum tubes, reached the total of $44,176,298. This is contained in the general census of electrical machinery which it has taken the government about two years to make. While the figure given is not of a current year, it is the latest official figure and definitely indicates the trend.

The first mention of the manufacture of radio apparatus was made in the census of 1914, during which year it was approximated to be $792,465. In the census of 1919 it climbed to a figure a trifle over $8,000,000 and in the census of 1921 reached almost $10,000,000.

ENGLISH DEALER SQUIRMS AT BAN ON U. S. GOODS

With American manufacturers largely the bone of contention, the chairman of the Wireless Retailers' association of Great Britain has expressed dissatisfaction with terms of membership imposed upon retail dealers in radio apparatus by the National Association of British Radio Manufacturers. This is because of restrictions placed upon the sale of imported goods.

The chairman states that there is a growing demand for imported apparatus and is of the opinion that retailers should be left free to select their own sales stock without reference to the country of origin.

"At the turn of a single dial"

You don't need to see the dial

YOU can tune in with a New Magnavox any time—in the dark or in the light. You don't have to see to do it.

That's one point in favor of the New Magnavox—due to the perfected single dial control.

And because all Magnavox circuits are forever in perfect resonance—sealed that way at the factory—you get a degree of sensitivity impossible in multiple dial sets.

And as for selectivity—the New Magnavox tunes out the large powerful stations right under them and gives you the thrill, the elation, of getting that distant station just when you want it.

To know the joy of simple radio operation you must have a Magnavox.

A demonstration costs nothing—get one today.

The new Magnavox Tube, absolutely non-microphonic, will not squeal or howl. $2.50

The New Magnavox Models, all 5-Tube Tuned Radio Frequency, are priced as follows: $85.00 and $110.00, without speaker; $145.00 and $200.00 with speaker enclosed. There's one for every taste and practically every pocketbook. All prices without tubes or batteries.

Those who stopped in the hallway to listen did not know he was playing her accompaniment without touching the keys!

THAT morning one of the visitors at the Music Trades Convention was playing roll music on the Gulbransen Registering Piano with all the expression of a brilliant pianist—yet this man could not tell one note from another on a piece of sheet music!

His audience sat and listened in amazement—among them composers, musicians and dealers in musical instruments.

It was a thrilling revelation—this instrument on which can be played roll music with all the Self-Expression—the Personal Touch—the variety of Tone Volume—that hand playing has.

Yet there are actually thousands of people—people unable to read sheet music—who play the Gulbransen easily and inspiringly. And you can do the same.

Your Undiscovered Talent

You can play the introduction to a ballad or an operatic aria as a musician would play it—lively at first, then slowly as you near the words, then pausing for the singer, then subduing the melody to a whisper.

The vocalist carries the air. The piano plays only the accompaniment, usually in the bass or lower register. You can do this on the Gulbransen, regardless of the melody notes that are cut in the roll.

Notes accented, notes subdued, notes sustained, tone volume varied, and melody notes omitted entirely if you wish, leaving these notes for the voice or violin.

On the Gulbransen Registering Piano, you can play only such notes as you choose—bass or melody alone or both together—and play them with your Touch—as in playing by hand.

It happened at the Drake Hotel, Chicago, during the National Music Trades Convention in June

And now anyone—without previous training—can do the same at home

You can play roll music on the Gulbransen Registering Piano with the same control of the Keys—the same selective Touch that a pianist has in playing by hand

You can play a piano solo correctly, accenting the melody or the chords.

You can play dance music in perfect time and rhythm.

There are many who play the Gulbransen exceptionally well. Who play accompaniments for noted artists, but always by roll on the Gulbransen. They play for artists who would not tolerate the "mechanical" playing of ordinary player-pianos.

National Prices—Suitable Terms

Gulbransen pianos are sold at the same cash price, freight prepaid, throughout the United States. For your protection, we stamp this price on the back, where you can read it. And Gulbransen dealers are prepared to deliver any model, Grand or Upright, for a small cash payment—balance to suit the purchaser. A reasonable allowance will be made for your present piano, if you own one.

Four Upright Models—Community, $450; Suburban, $530; Country Seat, $615; White House, $700; Straight Grand, $785; Registering Grand, $1275.

The Nat'l Association of Piano Tuners recommends that all pianos be tuned twice a year. Your Gulbransen deserves this care

Do you wonder that the first time people play this beautifully toned instrument they ask, as was asked by scores of musical folk at the Drake Hotel:

"How can roll music be played on the Gulbransen equally as well as music played by hand?"

The Answer is Personal Touch

Personal Touch—selective touch—self expression—control of keys, as in playing by hand—that is the missing art that A. G. Gulbransen contributed to roll playing.

Hand playing had it. Player-pianos did not. So untrained persons could not play as musicians do.

Mr. Gulbransen had spent a life-time in making fine musical instruments and believed there must be a way. At last he discovered it, and gave it to the world in this masterful creation—the Gulbransen Registering Piano.

This art, that enables you to play with the same expression as though you touched the keys, distinguishes the Gulbransen Registering Piano from every player-piano in existence.

Yet anyone can play it—you, or the unexpected guests who drop in of an evening.

Your home will be known for its entertainment and charm if you own a Gulbransen—Grand or Upright. And when alone you will always have the companionship of music—music you can play yourself, to suit your mood.

Comes the Equinox and Summer's End

By Mme. X.

TOMORROW is the equinox, that mysterious astronomical moment when the earth, on its elliptical spin, begins to tip so far from the sun that in its daily trip around on its axis the nights in the northern hemisphere are longer than the days. It marks the end of summer and sends men and women to get themselves new headgear.

That of the women either clings even more closely to the head than was the summer mode, or else spreads out laterally almost to the end of the shoulder. Frocks are not growing longer yet, though it is a safe bet that winter will see them descend a little. Skirts are flaring at the bottom a little more than they did last spring. Up to the moment Paris has not uttered any startling word to set the fashion world agog. The hat question for men is merely one of getting out the trusty friend and having it cleaned and pressed.

One set of folk is glad the season is passing swiftly from the dry heat of summer to the crisp and snappy air of autumn, and these are the hay fever-ites. There is one thing to which I would like to call the attention of this luckless class of sufferers and that is the possibility of arranging to escape the malady and yet stay in this part of the world. Up above the lower strata of the earth's atmosphere there is immunity for them. The deadly pollen of the infernal ragweed does not rise beyond what would be the tenth floor in a city skyscraper. Why can't some one put up a building in which all the space above this tenth story shall be devoted to those suffering from hay fever? Here they could come either for a few hours' immunity, or for such hours as they had to work and needed all their forces for it. Or, if they could afford the money and time, they could live at this altitude for six weeks, the usual duration of the malady.

Needs Drastic Measures.

Hay fever is by no means the insignificant disease our forefathers considered it to be. It doesn t kill anyone outright, but it delivers its blows at the foundations of vitality, sapping and weakening them so profoundly that when any serious illness comes along, particularly one attacking the lungs or their neighboring bronchial tubes and other respiratory organs, the power of resistance is lowered, often to a dangerous degree.

Won't some philanthropist consider the possibilities of erecting such a refuge for those sufferers from this sneezing, wheezing disease who are unable to get relief by going to some non-hay-fever climate? A wholesale campaign against ragweed might help some people, but not all hay fever comes from ragweed. The malady is spreading and becoming a national curse. It should, like the mosquito and other widespread pests, be dealt with wholesale so that all may benefit from its curbing or extinction. The betterment of man both mentally and physically should be the chief concern of all of us.

Chicago the Gainer.

Speaking of the betterment of mankind, there is a real agency to this end coming here soon in the person of Max Mason of Madison, Wis., who is to be the new president of the University of Chicago. He held the chair of mathematical physics at the State university at Madison. He is, however, much more than a scientist; he is a real man; one with a vision ahead of him, something which leads him on, and which is saved from being an impalpable, unrealized chimera by the man's dynamic quality. He is of the best that our western virility can produce.

In looks he is of the same type that was Abraham Lincoln; also the late President Burton of the University of Michigan; lean, well built, clean cut, a fine brow, with a jutting nose, between keen, deep set eyes, a firm, thin lipped mouth, and red hair. You would know he was an American, no matter where you met him. There is that in his quiet, observant alertness which places him among the men who opened this continent and made it what it is in a little more than two centuries. He is a capital talker, with that rarest of qualities in good talkers, the ability to listen well and intelligently. He will be a great addition to Chicago, both in his official capacity, at the head of one of the great institutions of learning in the country, and as a man among men.

His wife is charming and good looking, although the fact that at present she is not in good health may keep her from taking as active a part in the city's social and official life as she would otherwise do.

President and Mrs. Mason were born and brought up in Madison, and are definitely of the west, though both are extremely cultivated, and would be at home in any society.

Good at Golf.

During the world war Mr. Mason invented a sound detector for submarines which was a marvel and which saved no one can tell how many thousand lives. He is also fond of sport and is an excellent golfer. He and his wife were members of a house party which Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank gave in their honor last week-end, and he astonished the company and the rest of the members of the club by his snappy and efficient game of golf. He beat his opponents both days that he played.

The onlookers admired his game, and quite believed one of his party, a wag, who when asked who he was said that he was the professional golf teacher at the Madison club. When they discovered his identity—well, the exclamations of surprise were picturesque, but not printable.

Take him all in all, he is as fine and likable a man as has come on our civic horizon in many a day. Give him half a chance and he'll make his mark. He has a good deal of time in which to do this, as he is only forty-seven years of age.

Something to Be Proud Of.

Many people who live in and around Chicago do not realize what a far famed, distinguished university ours is. Its research work along various important lines, such as physics, mathematics, astronomy, archeology, etc., is known the world around and the results are changing the face of learning and remaking theories and prophecies.

The difference between a college and a university is that the former undertakes to teach already accepted knowledge; the latter, in addition to doing this, reaches out to acquire new knowledge. It scans and analyzes the universe, searching out its secrets, assembling its facts, and making them a coordinated system of learning, to explain as far as we may the great riddle of life. In the light of such learning as has been assembled by the scholars of the University of Chicago the recent affair at Dayton, Tenn., assumes an aspect of almost Gargantuan humor.

The late President William R. Harper, who gave the University of Chi-

Debs of last year who are now brides are Mrs. Donald Hamilton McLaughlin, the former Miss Eleanor Eckhart, and Mrs. Charles E. Crone Jr., who was Miss Edna Shepard; and one of this year's buds is Miss Katherine Putnam.

Miss Eckhart's wedding to Mr. McLaughlin, who is professor of mining engineering at Harvard university, was an event of Sept. 12. The service was read at the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth, and was followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy B. Eckhart.

The wedding of Miss Shepard, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Shepard Jr. of 2216 Pine Grove avenue, to Mr. Crone, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Crone of 5432 Woodlawn avenue, also took place on Sept. 12 in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church, and was followed by a small reception.

Chicago Is All-Agog to Know What Is to Be Worn This Autumn — and Here It Is.

Individual DRESSES That Have Charm

In this Fall parade of fashion, Frocks assume flared, fluttering lines and clever treatment of detail. Two-piece dresses, fitted Princess models and draped dinner gowns are strikingly interesting. Unadorned Frocks are fashioned of the handsomest fabrics and colorings, while others show elaborate embroidery or metal ornamentation. Necklines and sleeves are varied and stunning. Dresses as low as $35 and up to $250.

HATS that are the Height of Chic

The gracious new millinery mode shows models of casual elegance. Exquisitely simple dress hats in Velvet, Metal Brocade, Rayon Velours and Satin Soleil are here. Whether large or small they are enchanced by symmetry of line, rich materials and colorings, and trimmings of bewitching originality. Hats from $10 up to $45.

SPORTS APPAREL in New Guise

Two-piece dresses are at the top of the Sports mode this Fall, introducing lines decidedly flaring and different. Coats may flare from the waist or from the shoulder—but they must flare. The season's colors include Bordeaux, Gray, Blue Royale, Yellow, Bois-de-Rose, Charteuse, and Dark Green. Kasha holds a prominent place in Parisian Salons, while Tweeds, Velveteens, Jerseys and Balbriggans rank high.

SPORTS—FOURTH FLOOR

Black Kashmir Duvetyn Coat, flared and luxuriously trimmed with matching Fox. $385.

Elizabeth Crepe Dress with gold stitch embroidery and the new dyed mole featured by Premet. $150.

Three-Piece Costume Suit. Tanager color Coat of Kashmir Satina, flared and trimmed with Dyed Muskrat. Dress of Crepe Satin with mesh trim. By Paton. $300.

MISSES' APPAREL—THIRD FLOOR

WOMEN'S APPAREL—FOURTH FLOOR

The Kind of COAT to Wear

The authentic silhouette attends to flares and details. The flare may be at the side, front or back, or from the waist in animated Russian style. Collars assume an air of assured importance if they have the new notched lapel, or are of Queen Anne, shawl or rever style. Soft exquisite fabrics are further enriched by the new furs and colors, and wonderfully soft tweeds appear in smart sports coats. Coats, both Women's and Misses' range in price from $55 to $400.

All About SUITS

Costume Suits are fashioned of handsome fabrics and trimmed with luxurious furs. Velvet Coats are shown over contrasting dresses, while tweeds and mixtures are used for coats with dresses of self or harmonizing material. Elaborate use of fur, heavy embroideries and rich linings are the distinguishing marks of chic. Suits are priced from $75 to $400.

BLOUSES that are Costumes

Swinging, graceful circular or kick plait skirts—on a bodice top, of course—are combined with matching Blouses of the proper length. Various modernistic and conventional designs are colorfully appealing on Crepe Satin or heavy Crepe de Chine. Original necklines are of special interest—colors are those favored for Fall. Blouses from $10 to $45.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

cago its original impetus, was so able a reader of men that he chose a group of at that time young and little known scholars and gave them their opportunity to study the universe with the equipment provided by the university, and from that group have come some of the most noted scientists of the day.

Albert Michelson, for one, is by many considered the greatest living scientist. James Breasted is one of the most distinguished archaeologists of today. Prof. James Frost of the Yerkes observatory, which is a part of the University of Chicago, has revealed hitherto unknown and vast tracts of the heavens to contemporaries, his especial field being the discovery and study of twin stars. John Manley is one of the recognized authorities on literature. All of these men had their chance and grew up in the University of Chicago.

Scarcely less in name and fame are such men as Robert M. Lovett, Robert Herrick, William Nitze, and James Weber Linn. I am sorry I am writing far from any list of the faculty and have only my imperfect memory to serve me in specifying the individual instances of brilliant scholarship, all of which go to make our university one of the greatest institutions of advanced learning in this country; it is only incurable modesty that keeps me from using the well worn term "one of the greatest in the world," but I'd hate to have foreigners think we were stuck up or conceited about our country and its achievements, wouldn't you?

So you see it is to no mean city, or any picayune university, that Mr. Max Mason is coming on Oct. 1. But it is safe to say that the man fits the place and the job.

Farewell to the Gades.

Seldom has a former citizen and playmate had a finer welcome or more cheerful banquet given for him than the dinner which Alfred Baker gave last Monday evening at Shoreacres in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade. He assembled over fifty of their friends and former neighbors around a capacious U-shaped table. A lively jazz band escorted the conversation at the table and supported the dancing afterwards. The only speech of the evening was a brief but eloquent welcome from the host.

Various members of the party warbled well known old songs. Mr. Gade, himself, sang some of the same songs with which he used to regale his companions in the old, gay days when he and his wife were popular and prominent in the social life of Chicago and Lake Forest. Intervening days have not touched that mellow, resonant voice or dimmed the radiance of his smile. One of the features of the evening was an exquisite young danseuse who gave some of the "dances fantastique" of today.

Now the Gades have departed for the west, where they are going to spend the next few weeks at Santa Fé and at San Francisco. They will be in Chicago for November, after which they embark on a Mediterranean trip which will include visits to North Africa, Spain and Italy. Thence they go in the spring to Norway to see Mr. Gade's native place and his Norwegian friends and relations.

Chicagoans are becoming the world's greatest wanderers. The usual greeting when two or more meet is, "When are you next going away and where?" Now it is the Joseph Cudahys who are off for Spain and Italy on Oct. 3, to be gone until a little before Christmas, when they return here to spend a few weeks before opening their Palm Beach house, that charming Spanish residence on the edge of the sea.

Abram Poole Here.

A former Chicagoite who is making a name and place for himself in the world today and who is here for a brief visit is Abram Poole, who is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Leverett Thompson, at her charming Lake Forest place. Mr. Poole is the Veronese and Tintoretto of the builders of great houses in the east. His mural work in the Marshall Field's stately mansion on Long Island has attracted attention from all sides. The set of lovely grisailles, or monochromes, is painted not on canvas, but directly on the plaster after the manner of the old masters who decorated Italian palaces and English manor houses.

Mr. Poole is at work now on a similar order from Mrs. R. T. Crane Jr., whose new abode at Ipswich is in its first stages. He is here to consult with her architect on this task. An idea of the size of the house and its perfection can be gained by the statement that it will take two years to build. It will be probably the most beautiful house on the North Shore, that region of fine places. This is Boston's most fashionable suburban district. It includes Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, and Manchester-by-the-Sea, and has been for several generations the favorite summer haunt for the Hub's oldest and most aristocratic families.

With that permeating quality which is undeniable to us of the Windy City, some of our pleasantest Chicagoites have made and kept a real place for themselves there in that exclusive society. Mrs. Walter De Nevre and her brother-in-law and sister, the William Walkers, were among the first to penetrate the frosty borderland that lies between the genuine Back Bayite and the rest of the world. Contemporary with this contingent were the Francis Meredith Whitehouses, also formerly of Chicago, who have for several decades had a place there.

Today an errant Chicagoan might meet at a turning of the road either the Frederick Clay Bartletts, once of Chicago, or the Albert J. Beveridges. Mrs. Beveridge was formerly Miss Catherine Eddy of Chicago. There are several others of the western clan there, but their names escape me at the moment.

Along the Maine Coast.

Farther north along the same shore are others of our fellow citizens. At York Harbor Mrs. Bryan Lathrop has long had one of the most hospitable and delightful homes in that region. Next door to it is the house formerly lived in by the Thomas Nelson Pages. William G. McCormick, once of Chicago, always spends the warm months in this cool and invigorating place. Still farther towards the arctic regions, though not so near as to be troublesome, is Bar Harbor, Me., where for several generations a few eminent Chicago families have spent the three summer months.

Years ago Bar Harbor, which is on the island of Mount Desert, was extremely smart and was the haunt of the smart set of New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago. Then fickle fortune deserted the place, and for some time it was not so much the fashion to go there, though the big yachts that cruise along our eastern shore used to drop in continually, and each summer saw many visitors.

Today, however, Bar Harbor is once more courted by the world that amuses itself and that delights in beautiful places. The hotels are full of guests, and all the houses that are to let are taken, while new houses are being built. One of these is a charming cottage which Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick has completed this summer and in which she and her three children are spending the season. It is on the rocks overlooking the sea. The old and roomy house that was built by the late R. Hall McCormick was not occupied this year, although two of Mr. McCormick's daughters, Mrs. Nelson Williams and Mrs. Walter Ayer, as well as his daughter-in-law, spent the summer at Bar Harbor.

Other ex-Chicagoites who have their own places on the island are Mrs. William Gerrish Beale and Mrs. Lulu Platt-Hunt. The latter has not lived in Chicago for many years, but her western friends renew the acquaintance when summer finds them all together on the lovely island.

Mrs. Joseph Bowen usually passes two or three months there on an estate which was originally built by her father, the late John De Koven. The place consists of a roomy house set in a lovely garden. At the beginning of the season Mrs. Bowen sends out cards which read to the effect that the rose garden will be open to all visitors every pleasant Sunday afternoon and that tea will be served there. People flock to these informal and delightful gatherings.

Perhaps it is because of the short season, or the sea breeze, or a particular quality in the sunshine, but it is reported that flowers on Mount Desert island grow to a size and attain a rich color not to be found anywhere else, so that the gardens there are a thing of joy from early June until September. Spring comes late and autumn early to that storm-beaten isle, so that the sun and rain and dews have to accomplish their miracles in a short time.

Other Chicagoans who have been going there for years and years are the Harold O. Howards, who live in the large and spacious old house that was built I don't know how many years ago by Mr. Howard's father.

Up on a breezy hilltop and somewhat removed from the gay crowds Miss Mary Smith and Miss Jane Addams have a house on the island to which each season they go for rest and renewal. Mrs. William Prescott-Hunt and Miss Marie J. Rozet spent six weeks with them. Still other Chicagoans who delight in Bar Harbor are the Potter Palmers, who returned from Europe in mid-August to spend the last weeks of summer there.

Hunt Race Meeting.

Saturday, Oct. 3 is the date set for the Onwentsia Hunt race meeting which will be held as heretofore on the Onwentsia grounds. The events will be a race open to amateur riders for the Onwentsia Hunt cup; a polo scurry; a farmers' race for a purse of $150; Jorrock stakes; Ladies' Hunt plate; Lake County Hunt cup; tallyho chase, open to amateur and professional riders, for a purse of $150. It ought to be a good show. The two mile course is full of interesting hazards and there are a lot of good horses accumulating on the north shore and in and around Chicago which should afford some sporting events in an affair of this kind.

Last week on Wednesday evening Lake Forest golfers celebrated the thirty-first anniversary of the introduction of golf into the community. They held an all day match at the Onwentsia club between the Onwentsias and the Indian Hill players, the latter being invited up from Winnetka for the occasion. The day ended with a big club dinner for the players.

Thirty-one years is a long time, and those early days of sport and merry-makings seem almost as remote as the stone age. Many who instituted the then new régime of diversion in the fields for the tired business man have gone on to fields Elysian, but their friends think of them and talk of them on occasions like this.

There is no saner, more wholesome occupation than golf for the average man or woman. It ought to be made obligatory. Why shouldn't a government which tells us what we should or should not eat and drink also oblige us to spend so many hours a week out on a golf course plodding blithely round, rousing the meadow larks from their nests and sending the cotton tails scurrying to their holes, while the sun sinks slowly down behind the distant, dewy woods sending long shadows across the green earth? Wouldn't that be sane legislation for an active, eager people?

Austin H. Nisbiack sends out the following notice of the opening of the hunting season: "The first hunt of the season will take place Sunday, Sept. 20, at 3 p. m., from the club stables. Tea will be served after the hunt at the house of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick Blair.

"Until further notice, hounds will leave the club stables at 3:30 p. m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and at 3 p. m. on Sundays."

From now on until the snow flies the horn of the hunter will be heard on the hill on these days in the neighborhood of Lake Forest.

MISS ELIZABETH BUCKLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Buckley of 1446 Jarvis avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Marie, to Raymond Earl Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orson H. Watson of 5721 Magnolia avenue. The wedding is to take place on Oct. 18, the silver wedding anniversary of Miss Buckley's parents.

MRS. THEODORE T. STONE.
[Daguerre Studio Photo.]

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Herta Helen Van Elkan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Van Elkan of Evanston, Ill., to Dr. Theodore T. Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stone. After a honeymoon in California, Dr. and Mrs. Stone are to reside at 311 South Central Park avenue.

MRS. DONALD CARR STIMSON.
[Daguerre Studio Photo.]

Miss Frances Jones of Chicago, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Jones of Chrisman, Ill., was married on Sept. 5 to Donald Carr Stimson, son of Dr. C. A. Stimson of Eton Rapids, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Stimson have returned from their honeymoon, and are residing in Rogers Park.

MRS. CARL ARTHUR LAYSTROM.
[Gordon Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. William James Minter of 1187 Columbia avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Violette Mae, to Carl Arthur Laystrom, on Sept. 5. Mr. Laystrom and his bride are to live at the Surf hotel after Oct. 1.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent either of the bride or the bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Wednesday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be published.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Springer of 17 East Elm street announce the marriage of their daughter, Katharine Rand, to Gerrit Van Westrienen Sinclair on Sept. 4. After Oct. 1 they will reside at 333 3d street, Milwaukee.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Edna Augusta Haas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haas of 3615 North Hoyne avenue, to Ralph F. Keepke of Marshfield, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Badger of 8613 Ellis avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Marianna, to Albert J. Hall on Saturday, Sept. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Bertram Mason of Winnetka announce the marriage of their sister, Ethel, to Niels Christian Nielsen of Greenwich, Conn., at noon on Saturday, Sept. 12, at the Church of the Transfiguration, New York City. Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen will reside after Oct. 15 at Four Winds farm, Goshen, Conn.

The marriage is announced of Miss Isabel Leach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferry W. Leach of Oak Park, to Norman Stewart Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Folwer P. Stone of Wausau, Wis. Dr. John M. Vander Muelen of Louisville performed the ceremony in the First Presbyterian church of Oak Park last evening. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, 417 North Kenilworth avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Stone will reside at Mosinee, Wis., after Dec. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Huxley Jones announce the marriage of their daughter, Grace Huxley, to Erwin Fred Hurt, on Saturday, Sept. 5. After a motor trip through the east they will reside at 740 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park.

The marriage of Miss Charlotte Moysey of Berwyn, daughter of C. H. Moysey, to Edgar D. Ballard of Monticello, Ga., took place at the Baptist church at Berwyn last Wednesday evening. A reception at the Berwyn club followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Ballard are visiting his parents at Monticello and will return to Chicago on Oct. 1, to reside at Harlem avenue and 32d street.

From THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

EDITED BY Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

EARLY MICROSCOPISTS.

BY SIR E. RAY LANKESTER.

THE microscope is the means by which our modern understanding of the structure and nature of living things—as contrasted with the baseless fancies and blank ignorance of three centuries ago—has been gained. It is a noteworthy fact that even the use of a simple lens of glass or crystal as a magnifier is not recorded by ancient Greek or Roman writers—though it is difficult to believe that some of the minute engravings on ancient gems were made without the use of a magnifying glass. It is true that Pliny tells us of the concentration of the sun's rays by a glass globe filled with water, and of the use of such a globe as a "burning glass" but the first records we have of the use of glass lenses as optical instruments date from the early years of the fourteenth century, when they were used by ingenious Italians [some say by Roger Bacon also] to improve the failing sight of old people, and were [as they still are] called "spectacles." In a portrait of Pope Leo X, painted by Raphael in 1520, the pope is drawn holding a hand magnifier, evidently intended to enable him to read the pages of a book open before him.

It took two hundred years for learned men to advance from the use of "spectacles" to the first combination of lenses, to form on the one hand "a telescope" and on the other "a microscope." The first-made "compound microscopes" or adjustments of two lenses—an "ocular" and an "object-glass" mounted in a tube so as to give great magnifying power—were not so serviceable as a means of exploring the invisible world as were the cleverly shaped single lenses, used by some naturalists. Robert Hooke—the secretary of the newly incorporated Royal Society of London—constructed in 1665 a compound microscope consisting of a cylindrical tube seven inches long, a carrying eyeglass at one end and object glass at the other; this was fixed by a ball and socket joint to a firm upright support, and could be inclined at any angle. A screw arrangement for focusing and also elaborate illuminating apparatus were provided. Hooke's miscroscope was an improvement in mechanism upon the Italian instrument of twenty years earlier. One of these is attributed to Galileo, and was the first described.

Cell Structure Revealed.

The main features of Hooke's instrument, though the lenses have been greatly developed and improved, are retained in the latest compound microscopes of our own day. Hooke published a folio volume entitled Micrographia, describing his observations, COLUMNAR CELLS fringed with vibrating "cilia," ci, and each containing a "nucleus," n. A, a row of such cells; B, a single "ciliated cell" detached from the others.

finely illustrated by enlarged drawings of the flea, the louse, the housefly, the nematoid worms called "vinegar eels," and of a variety of other objects. His drawing of the appearance of a thin slice of cork, greatly magnified, has become celebrated, since it is the first recorded observation of the cell structure of plants. The dried dead tissue, consisting of cell walls enclosing air spaces where once was living protoplasm, was compared by Hooke to the honeycomb made by the bees, the minute air holding cavities resembling the closed "cells" of the honeycomb. Hence the word "cell" came into use for these universal units of plant structure.

A century and a half later the word "cell" was applied, not to the empty cell wall, but to its living viscid content by the founders of the "cell theory" of organic structure and function, Schleiden and Schwann. We now speak of the viscid content of the vegetable "cell" and of its equivalent in the structure of animals as "protoplasm."

The early "compound" microscope, though giving high magnification, was of much less value as a means of discovery than might be supposed, owing to the distortion and want of clearness of outline in the magnified image which it gave. It was not at first better than, not even so good as, a single lens or simple microscope. In the later third of the seventeenth century Antony van Leeuwenhoek, a merchant of Delft in Holland, who has been called "the father of microscopical discovery," made observations on "animalcules"—living in water, and in the interstices of his own teeth—with a microscope consisting of a single glass lens no bigger than a dried pea, ground into proper shape and curvature by himself, and mounted between two perforated plates of silver. In 1672 he sent descriptions and drawings of his observations to the Royal Society of London—then recently founded. During fifty years, that is, from 1672 to 1722, fifty of his communications were published in the Philosophical Transactions. He was made a fellow of the society and received from it copies of its publications, including the book by Willoughby on Fishes, the cost of which caused such financial difficulty to the society as to render it unable to undertake the publication of the Principia of Isaac Newton.

Leeuwenhoek's observations covered a wide field. They included the discovery of the red corpusles of the blood of man and birds, the capillaries and the movement of blood along them, the spermatozoa of the dog and of the bird, the banded or cross striped fibers of muscular tissue, the wheel animalcules and their survival of desiccation and their "dispersal" as "dust," the structure of yeast as a mass of spherical corpuscles, and many other important things. It required no little skill and patience to make observations with the small simple lenses used by Leeuwenhoek. Though definite facts were thus ascertained, the optical imperfections of both the simple and the compound microscope were in these early days such as to give very incomplete and often erroneous notions of the things examined.

Infusoria Named.

Even after the lapse of a century, when O. F. Müller of Copenhagen (born in 1730) described and figured with great skill the freshwater worms and other inhabitants of the ponds and streams of his native land, in publications which are still valued, the microscope was as yet so untrustworthy when high powers of magnification were used, that little value attaches to his drawings of very minute forms, though they are beautifully executed and engraved. He published in 1786 a volume entitled Animalia Infusoria—fluviatilia et terrestria, employing the name Infusoria (ever since retained in use with important limitations) for the first time for that population of swarming, struggling, multitudinous living things which, otherwise invisible, were revealed by the microscope in infusions of vegetable and animal debris. Such infusions occur in natural waters or are purposely prepared in vessels and set aside for observation by the inquiring microscopist.

From THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

Leeuwenhoek had already drawn attention to the minute living things thus revealed in their hundreds of thousands in "infusions" which he exhibited with his simple microscope to the fellows of the Royal society, to whom also he bequeathed a case containing twenty of his lenses. He wrote of the minute creatures discovered by him as "infusion animalcules."

It is difficult to identify all the kinds described and figured by Leeuwenhoek with the comparatively feeble and "uncorrected" (that is, "distorting") magnifying glass used by him, and the consequent want of accurate detail in his figures. But the great successor of Leeuwenhoek and O. F. Müller in this field of study—namely, Ehrenberg—writing in 1838, credited Leeuwenhoek with having distinguished twenty-seven kinds or "species" of Infusoria or "infusion animalcules;" and O. F. Müller may be credited with a hundred more. Undoubtedly Leeuwenhoek saw some of the very abundant and excessively minute organisms which are now known by the name bacteria, and described their characteristic movements. But he did not give any specific names to the forms which he described nor define them precisely.

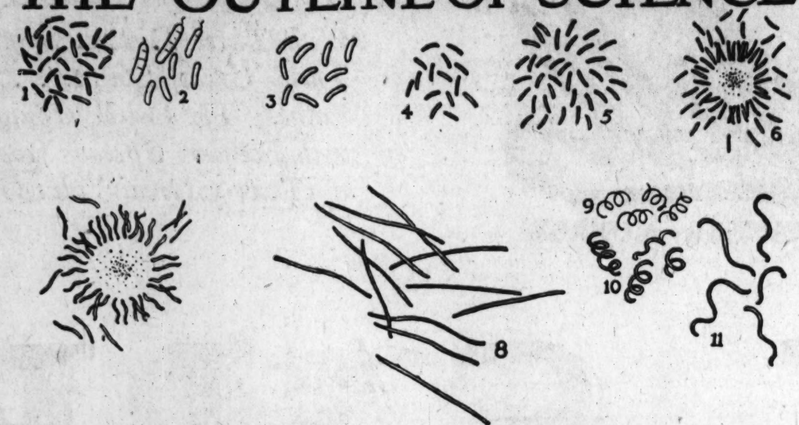
O. F. Muller's Work.

In the work of O. F. Müller a hundred years later the new influence and example of the great Linnæus in introducing the use of generic with specific names and in systematizing the nomenclature of living things had its effect. Müller distinguished and named the different "kinds" or species of infusoria which he observed, and sorted the species so named into different genera. Each genus so formed received a name and contained species which were held to be more like to one another than they were to the species of other genera. Thus he instituted a genus which he called "Vibrio," and in this genus he placed several "species" which he had observed and of which he gives drawings. Thus we get his Vibrio lineola, V. rugula, V. bacillus, V. undula, V. serpens, and V. spirillum. They are very minute, almost structureless, threadlike organisms which exhibit a darting and often an undulatory movement and locomotion. We can recognize them today by his drawings and still use his names for them.

They comprise a large proportion of those organisms today known as bacteria. But Müller was led, by a vague similarity in their shape, to name and enroll in his genus "Vibrio" a number of other small (but not so very minute) worm-shaped creatures revealed by his microscope, which were really, as we now know (as the result of using improved microscopes), of more complex internal structure than, and remote in character from, his other species of Vibrio. Thus he reckoned as forming species of this genus young thread-worms of the sort known as Nematoids; also the wonderful organism which we today call by the name given to it by Ehrenberg, "Bacillaria paradoxa," and other minute plants—now familiar to "pond-naturalists" as Desmids and Diatoms—besides the swan-necked animalcule called Trachelocerca!



"SPECIES" NAMED BY EHRENBERG as follows: 1 and 2, Bacterium triloculare (2 more highly magnified); 3, Bacterium enchelys; 4, Vibrio lineola; 5 and 6, Vibrio tremulans; 7, Vibrio rugula; 8, Vibrio bacillus (what today would be called a Leptothrix form); 9, Spirillum volutans (x300 linear); 10, Spirillum volutans (x800 linear); 11, less coiled examples of Spirillum.

SECTION THROUGH VEGETABLE TISSUE showing hexagonal cells inclosing "protoplasm"; a, cell wall; b, protoplasm; c, liquid holding space; d, nucleus or center "kernel" in each cell.

Genera Mixed.

This genus Vibrio, with its strange mixture of species, was placed by Müller with four other genera—viz.: Monas, Proteus, Volvox, and Enchelys, as the lowest or most simply organized group of the Infusoria. His genus Monas comprised four species—M. termo, M. atomus, M. punctum, and M. lens—very minute spherical forms, which it is not possible to identify today with certainty. Müller's genus Proteus contains the species of P. diffluens, which was described by other observers before him as "the Proteus animalcule." It is today known as one of the species of the genus Amœba.

A second species named by Müller Proteus tenax, and admirably drawn by him in its changes of shape, is really a species of Astasia—a genus not known by name in Müller's day. Müller assigned to a genus "Volvox" the well-known globular composite organism still known by that name and several other microscopic forms resembling it in general shape, but now assigned to separate and widely separated genera. Under his genus Enchelys, Müller placed (and gave specific names to) a number of obscure forms which it is impossible to identify (from his drawings) with any of the microscopic forms which we know today. Of larger kinds of Infusorial animalcules

THE ANIMALCULE KNOWN AS EUPLOTES HARPA—One of the larger "ciliated" Infusoria, provided with delicate cilia along with coarser leg-like outgrowths. The lower figure gives a side view of the animalcule "running" on a piece of weed.

Joseph E. Flanagan, for four years county commissioner of Cook County, now an artist of note, whose business it is to supply most of the large new cathedrals with beautiful stained glass windows.

Whole Family Restored to Health

Mr. Flanagan's letter is further evidence of the wonderful things the new discovery "Biofood" is doing for sick people.

"I consider it my duty to humanity," says this prominent Chicagoan, "to tell of the amazing results my family and myself have had from Biofood.

About six years ago relatives of my daughter were getting astonishing results with Biofood, so when my grandchild was seriously ill we decided to try it. The results in this case were amazing.

Then my daughter took it and persuaded many of her friends to do likewise. Several of these cases were far advanced and appeared as though nothing could help them, but Biofood did.

Seeing these things I decided to try it myself, and while I didn't think there was much the matter with me, I am 67 years old and thought it might help me. The results are almost unbelievable. I am taking a new interest in life, my business energy of some years ago is returning, and I am feeling such renewed vitality that I am telling all my old cronies about Biofood.

I consider it such an exceptional health builder that everybody should know about it. You may publish this letter if you wish."

Remarkable Cases

Mr. Flanagan's experience is only one of thousands who have found new health and new happiness in Biofood. All classes, rich and poor, young and old, have benefited by this new discovery. Illness of long standing has often disappeared after only one month's use of Biofood, and in many cases the improvements attributed to it are truly remarkable. Parents tell us of backward children who have become normal, and remarkable improvement has been noted in cases of diabetes, goitre, stomach and nervous ailments. Biofood is not a medicine, not a harmful drug. It is a scientific compound of the natural elements which the body needs to build up its own cell structure. Thousands of people in Chicago are using it and singing its praises. Now all the better druggists are prepared to supply it to you. The cost is little compared to the wonderful things people will tell you it has done for them. If you are ill or do not feel up to standard, or if any of the members of your family or friends are ill, learn about Biofood. Consult your druggist, your physician, or write us.

Daring Miners Cheat Death Valley

WAVE, Cal.—Death valley has been cheated again. Three miners who dared to pit themselves against its treachery and white heat succeeded in getting out recently. An Indian half-breed found them after they had crawled to within sight of green grass and then collapsed. Three companions who starved with them died on the way.

It is rarely that the valley is thus defeated. A malignant, fire-scourged desert, it stretches for 75 miles along the eastern border of California, and for three-quarters of a century has stood for all that is most terrible to prospector and explorer.

Its blinding whiteness of alkali flats and salt morasses is strewn with the bones of men and women who have endeavored to penetrate its mysteries. In summer, when the sun stands overhead like a furnace in the sky, every vestige of moisture is sapped, and the brain reels with madness.

Its waters reek with the poison of death, its miles are passages of torture. When a man strays he is given up as lost. It is the hottest place in the world. The tops of thermometers blow off and the mercury has been known to run over 137 degrees Fahrenheit.

It was across this inferno that pioneers in the days of '49 endeavored to make their way to the gold fields. Few survived. Others wandered up and down the valley, mad with thirst, falling, dying where they fell. Heat whitened their bodies; some found the earth giving way, drawing them down in salt morasses. It was every man for himself.

Later silver was discovered and, despite the odds against them, prospectors flocked into its sinister stretch. And still later borax opened the way for the great mule trains and even a railroad was built. Yet always the killing heat brooded over operations. The borax works had to close every summer, and at last shut down altogether.

Oddly enough, Death valley has always had its population. Even today they are there—Piute Indians, "desert rats," prospectors. Draft dodgers of the civil war and "bad men" of every kind once made it their haven of refuge. To follow them meant death to the officers of the law.

The valley, too, has known its heyday of prosperity. Gold was found on the Panamint range. Mining camps grew overnight. Thirty or forty men in a single summer died while the rush was on. "If it gets you—it does," was the slogan of the camps.

Parts of Death valley lie as low as 280 feet below sea level. During its worst season meat dipped in brine will be cured in a single hour. Furniture falls to pieces. One end of a blanket being washed dries while the other is immersed in water.

Wedding in Jail, Prison Honeymoon

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Kissing each other good-by for perhaps two years, a bride and bridegroom went on a honeyless honeymoon in the Missouri state prison here. Sentenced to two years each for manufacturing corn whiskey in Washington county, the couple—Charlie Fann and Alice de Clue Fann—arrived at the penitentiary after having been married several days ago in the Washington county jail at Potosi, Mo.

While confined in the jail romance bloomed for them and the wedding ceremony ended that chapter. Each is about 40 years old.

Bound together by the bonds of matrimony placed upon them in the jail at Potosi, the couple entered the grim prison, bound together by another type of bond—steel handcuffs of the law. They were sentenced on August 29th.

Prison officials said that so far as is known, Mr. and Mrs. Fann are the first man and wife to spend concurrent sentences in the penitentiary.

They said farewell before being checked into receiving cells, for it is doubtful if they will meet against until they are released. Unfortunately, there is no bridal suite in the massive stone-walled prison, and the newlyweds will have to spend their honeymoon apart. The bridegroom will be confined in the prison proper, while the bride will be kept in the woman's department.

First of Season.

The Woman's Catholic club of Wilmette will hold the opening meeting of the season on next Friday in the St. Francis Xavier auditorium. The meeting will be in honor of the new president, Mrs. Charles Barton, and past presidents, Mrs. L. W. Crush, Mrs. W. P. Seng, Mrs. W. L. Ballard, and Mrs. J. Verhalen, who will also act as hostesses. The Florentine trio will assist in presentation of an interesting program.

Paris has a club which only accepts members among the fair sex who have not had their hair shingled or do not intend to.

Rhodesia Reports Weird "Lost World"

LONDON.—[United News.]—A real lost world, long legendary among African natives, has been found in wild northern Rhodesia.

Scientists believe it may contain, as the natives have always claimed, living specimens of animals, birds and fishes now described as prehistoric and extinct.

The new lost world centers around a mysterious limestone pit, a hundred yards in diameter, in the unexplored regions of northern Rhodesia, fifty miles west of Broken hill at Kapopo.

The pit is filled with water to within forty feet of the top. Its sides are vertical, so that it is impossible for an animal to get out of it. All attempts to sound its bottom have failed.

Either this pit or one similar was found years ago by Sir Lawrence Wallace, then chief surveyor for northern Rhodesia. He and a friend shot and killed there an unknown Creature, which they described as having a "thin, snake-like head and neck above water, and a body resembling that of a large duck below water."

The animal sank immediately, and it was impossible to recover the body. As in the case of the pit now discovered—or rediscovered—no bottom could be found even at a depth of 200 feet.

A British official in northern Rhodesia has made the present discovery. He told of his find in a letter to Frank Worthington, former secretary of state for native affairs in northern Rhodesia.

Deciding to investigate for himself, the official penetrated the wild country and discovered it. No effort was made to investigate the claims of natives that animals existed in the vicinity which scientists describe as prehistoric.

Scientists are greatly interested in the find, and a properly equipped and armed expedition may be sent there next year.

London's Sun Bath Eden Goes from Bare Skin to Bear Skins

LONDON.—[United News.]—England's first practical colony of sun bathers, discovered living in idyllic nudity in a forest on the Sussex coast, has hoisted the white flag before the rigors of late British summer.

For the first time in four years Great Britain has basked in weather that would have been called good even in the United States. Deciding to try what they had been talking about for months, the Society of New Gymnosophists established itself in Paradise woods, in beautiful Sussex, near the south coast. They flourished. No clothes were permitted.

Then the sun went in, and, though the colonists, shivering in the chill winds that blew across country from the English channel, tried substituting games for the daily bask in the sun, the colony began to dwindle. By ones and twos at first members remembered engagements in other parts of the country. Finally there was a rout.

Then only the two pioneers, Herbert J. X. Bynghan, former army officer, and Miss Mollie Crick, daughter of a wealthy Midlands business man, were left. They showed signs of gooseflesh and a disinclination to remain. But they declared they would stick it out.

Now even they are gone.

"He was wearing plus-fours and a woolen muffler, and took an occasional swig from a vacuum flask that steamed when it was opened," said an informative rustic who saw them leave.

"She had on a woolen costume and woolen gloves.

"They said they might come back, but they didn't say it as if they meant it."

Digs Hidden Grave and Dies Next Day

CLINTON, Tex.—[Special.]—When parishioners of the Rev. Lewis Todd, an aged Negro preacher, passed by his home they saw him hard at work digging a hole in the ground.

"What are you doing, Brother Todd?" they asked.

"I am digging my grave," he replied.

He told members of his congregation who heard of the preparation he was making for his interment that he would soon pass away and he wanted to be buried in the grave he was digging. Finally the task was finished. Next morning he was found dead in bed. He died from natural causes, the coroner said.

A group of irate wives in the town of West Yorkshire, near London, have formed the "Society of Wives of Henpecked Husbands" for the purpose of making a study of how to henpeck husbands.

Churches Urge Free Press—Frown on War

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In the new social creed for the churches to be proposed at the twenty-first regular meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches in Washington in October there is a plank which says, "The churches must stand for the enforcement of constitutional rights and liberties, including freedom of the press, of free speech and of peaceable assemblage."

John Calder of Boston, the chairman, will present the report, which contains a proposed new social creed. The Rev. H. C. Herring of Boston is the secretary, and in the membership of the commission are such well-known Americans as Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, William Allen White of Kansas, President Kenyon L. Butterfield of Michigan Agricultural college, Prof. Jerome Davis of Yale, and such well-known pastors as the Rev. N. J. Elderin of Duluth, the Rev. E. G. Guthrie of Boston, the Rev. Harry F. Peabody of Appleton, Wis., and the Rev. John Stapleton of White Plains, N. Y.

The new social creed for the churches which the commission will propose is an attempt to point out certain consequences which would follow for social life if the world were to take Jesus in earnest and make His social and spiritual ideals its test for community as well as for individual life. It insists on a strengthening and deepening of the inner personal relationship of the individual with God, and a recognition of his obligation and duty to society.

This is crystallized in the two commandments of Jesus: "Love thy God and love thy neighbor." It involves the recognition of the sacredness of life, the supreme worth of each single personality and common membership in one another—the brotherhood of all. In short, it means creative activity in coöperation with fellow human beings and with God, in the everyday life of society and the development of a new and better social order.

Among the thirty-five proposals of the commission are the following:

1. That the church no longer support war in any form.
2. That group interests must always be subordinated to the welfare of the nation as a whole.
3. That in industry and economic relations, recognition that the unlimited right of private ownership is unChristian.
4. Conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes, with adequate means for the same.
5. A frank abandonment of all efforts to secure unearned income; that is, reward which does not come from a real service.
6. Recognition of the right of labor to a fair share in management.
7. The farmer shall have access to the land he works on such terms as will insure him personal freedom and economic encouragement, while society is amply protected by efficient production and conservation of fertility, and the cost of market distribution from farmer to consumer shall be cut to the lowest possible terms, both farmers and consumers sharing in these economies.
8. That in education there should be the building of a social order in which every child has the best opportunity of development and the conservation of health, including instruction in sex hygiene, abundant and wholesome recreation facilities and education for leisure, including a nation-wide system of adult education.
9. Efficient rural organization along all lines.
10. That in racial relations there shall be the same protection and rights for other races in America that we ourselves enjoy, especially legislation against lynching, and that racial discrimination shall be eliminated and full brotherly treatment for all races in America shall be substituted.

It is expected that these proposals will provoke wide discussion and that vigorous differences of opinion will be in evidence. It is not expected that the council will approve of all of these proposals; in fact, the commission in sending out the proposed creed says: "These affirmations are launched for the discussion they may provoke. They are not proposed as the final statement, nor are they set forth as the authoritative statement of any group.

"It is hoped that out of wide discussion there may come further suggestions which may be incorporated in a social creed which will be proposed to the national council meeting in Washington."

The commission believes the proposed social creed, while not perfect, is far superior to the old one adopted by the federal council in 1908, and recommends to the national council that it suggest that the Federal Council of Churches submit this draft to all the denominations within their membership for criticism and discussion. After this is done the commission hopes the federal council may adopt it with such changes and modifications as then seems best.

Barbecue Today.

The women's auxiliary of the 41st ward Democratic organization will assist in the Frank J. Wilson day barbecue to be held today at White House park, Irving Park boulevard and River road. Dinner will be served at 3 o'clock. The affair has been arranged by the ward leaders as a tribute to Mr. Wilson, who as a county commissioner is particularly active in the good roads movement.

Strap Watches

From THE OUTLINE of SCIENCE Edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson

thirteen genera with a great number of species. Some of them are examples of the group of Protozoa which are today called the "Ciliata," because they are beset with vibrating filaments or hairs called "cilia," and for these Ciliata the names used by him still are maintained, since his drawings leave no doubt as to their identity.

Such are the well known species of "Paramœcium," of "Kolpoda," "Bursaria," and "Vorticella," though Müller erroneously placed in those genera, together with true "Protozoa," many small worms and wheel animalcules (Rotifera). He established one genus of wheel animalcules, namely, brachionus, which was excellently figured by him and is still recognized by that name, though he wrongly included other forms (which his drawings show were wheel animalcules) in his genus Vorticella, together with the bell animalcules, clearly recognizable from his drawings. He knew and figured the attractive group of Ciliate animalcules now called "Hypotricha," with their leglike locomotive organs. But he classified along with them in his heterogeneous assemblage of Infusoria also the minute tailed larvæ of the parasitic flukes, to which he applied the name Cercaria, still used for them.

Bacteria Classified.

O. F. Müller is not only a pioneer in the history of our knowledge of microscopic life but the first naturalist to figure accurately and to name the extremely minute organisms which are today indicated by the comprehensive group name bacteria; but he has the credit of entering upon the difficult task of naming these and the many other kinds of Infusoria revealed to him by his microscope in accordance with the binominal method of genus and species introduced by Linnæus. This is all the more noteworthy in that Linnæus himself (as pointed out by Müller) in his "Systema Naturæ" renounced his task and, with what looks like a little outburst of temper, assigned these minute organisms to a debatable group of his great class "Vermes," to which he gave the name "Chaos"—chaos infusoriorum, as he writes.

Müller made the attempt to reduce this chaos to order, and, though naturally enough, as a pioneer must, he failed in some respects, yet the value of his effort is attested by the fact that many of the descriptions given by him are declared today to be excellent and accurate as far as they go, and many of the names given by him in his orderly work are honored and used by the naturalists of today.

As the Salesman...

WOULD YOU ACCEPT DEFEAT?...OR...?

The prospect's emphatic tone and curt manner are unmistakable. "I'm NOT interested!" As the salesman facing this situation, what would you do? Accept defeat? Or...?

Suppose a man you called on greeted you in this fashion. Would you know how to remain completely the master of the situation? Would you still feel reasonably sure of an opportunity to tell your story?

It is no disgrace to answer "No" to these questions—to admit that this and similar problems have blocked your progress.

But, it is an injustice to yourself, a rank injustice, to continue indefinitely on the same path, when the means are at your command to handle such situations easily and surely—to use deliberately the successful methods which others use only once in a while, by chance or accident.

For—mark this well—there is a fundamental rule of action that teaches exactly what to do to win the confidence of the man who has just said, "I'm not interested."

Why "trust to luck" when—

"Back of every successful action in business there are guiding principles, unchangeable laws."

Naturally you ask, "If this is true, how can I quickly acquire these principles?" The answer is, simply thru training that deals in basic principles—training that brings within your grasp not merely cold facts, not merely a fund of information, but the live, vital forces that mark the difference between success and mediocrity.

The LaSalle Problem Method of training for salesmen (and for men in every other branch of modern business) deals in such essentials, and only in essentials. Intensely practical, it combines the best that has been learned by thousands of salesmen in the "school of experience."

Learn the principle and method that turns "I'm NOT interested" into a receptive attitude.

Ask yourself this simple question: "Have I the necessary knowledge of the science and strategy of selling to make of myself the fullest success of which I am capable?"

For example, can you put down on paper the basic laws underlying every successful sale, the violation of any one of which unfailingly reduces or destroys your chances to make the sale?

These four principles—together with the plan which has enabled thousands of men and women to double their incomes—are fully explained in the interesting booklet which will be given FREE to any earnest man or woman calling at our downtown offices.

Here Is an Unusual Opportunity to Learn Salesmanship

Departing from its policy of teaching salesmanship by home study exclusively, LaSalle Extension University will conduct

Downtown Night Classes in Salesmanship

Only a limited number of applications for enrollment in this training can be considered; therefore only those acting promptly will receive the unusual benefits offered by this opportunity. Back of these resident classes will be the same men who have made LaSalle home study training in salesmanship the biggest single contribution ever made to the development of salesmanship as a profession.

While applications are being accepted, the same LOW COST and EASY TERMS as offered in other courses will be granted. Call at once for sales booklet and complete information regarding this training.

Traffic Training That Actually Trains

The Men

WAYNE E. BUTTERBAUGH, Director. Railroad experience with the Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Pere Marquette, Illinois Central, and Canadian Pacific. Was Eastern Traffic Manager with Skinner & Eddy Shipbuilding Corporation of Seattle; later with traffic department U. S. Shipping Board. Author, "Principles of Importing" and "Atlas of Traffic Maps."

JOSEPH H. DONNELL, Traffic Counselor, La Salle Extension University. Formerly Traffic Manager Stein Hall Mfg. Co., associated with Southeastern Freight Ass'n, member of rate board of Swift & Co., and rate expert Interstate Commerce Commission. Author of "Freight Rates and Tariffs."

AMOS ADAMS, Traffic Department of Swift & Co. Formerly associated with C., B. & Q. in local and general offices. Co-author of "Overcharge Claims."

B. F. KNIGHT, Assistant Traffic Manager Stein Hall Mfg. Co. Formerly Traffic Manager Hubbard, Warren & Chandler, and member of rate boards of Wilson & Company and Swift & Co.

B. R. CLEMENT, Traffic Research Staff, La Salle Extension University. Formerly with American Optical Co., New York Central R. R. and Solvay Process Co. Co-author of "Overcharge Claims."

The Plan

In equipment, in instructors, in course of instruction, and in its Problem Method, the La Salle Evening School of Traffic Management is planned for just one thing—fitting you to lead in the actual solution of traffic management. Theory and principles are made clear first of all, but continual stress is laid on the actual details. Among other things, each student is called upon to classify freight, to check rates and charges, to prepare shipping documents, to appear before classification committees, to prepare exhibits for use in rate complaints, to attack and defend rate adjustments, to analyze the legality of application of carriers in given cases, and to participate in mock trials involving utility or federal commission procedure. The graduate is thus ready for positions in the industrial or the railroad traffic field. He knows the field thoroughly from all sides and he knows what is to be done and how to do it.

CLASS STARTS SEPT. 21

For your accommodation, La Salle Extension University conducts evening classes in Traffic Management. The class term begins Monday, Sept. 21, and registration to date only a limited number can be taken. Write or call or phone immediately for information.

Accountancy

Downtown and Englewood Night Classes Now Forming

Here is an exceptional opportunity to prepare yourself for a high salaried accounting position or for the degree of C. P. A.

LaSalle Extension University has so long dominated the field of Higher Accountancy training that its standing in this field is generally recognized as supreme.

Points of Superiority:

1 COMPREHENSIVENESS: The LaSalle course is the most comprehensive because it embraces the entire range of accounting—with electives covering all the principal types of business, industry, and organization.

2 INSTRUCTION STAFF: No other institution approaches LaSalle in the size and standing of its Accountancy Instruction Staff, which is composed of over seventy-five instructors—thirty-one Certified Public Accountants, including men of the highest standing in the profession. The staff is headed by Wm. B. Castenholz, C. P. A., M. A. I. A., author of Cost Accounting Procedure, and Auditing Procedure.

3 EXPERIENCE: Having for many years held first rank in the Accountancy field, LaSalle has trained a far greater number of executive Accountants, including C. P. A.'s, than any other business training institution. Its graduates are holding high salaried positions with business firms in every American and Canadian city.

4 PRACTICAL METHOD: LaSalle training can be had without interruption to a man's present work. The LaSalle Problems Method hurls the student right against the actual problems of the factory, office, store, bank, etc., and he solves these problems by actually doing them under the direction of experts. The big positions of business are open to the men who can solve the problems of business.

5 STANDING WITH BIG BUSINESS: On account of the widely recognized standing of LaSalle in the Accounting field, and the wide range of its students, it is the first source of supply turned to by Public Accountants and business executives when in need of all kinds of Accountants, from cost clerks and auditors at moderate salaries up to treasurers and comptrollers at very handsome salaries.

6 PLACEMENT SERVICE: LaSalle maintains a Placement Department to give employment service free to both students and employers.

7 SAVING IN TIME: It has been abundantly demonstrated that nowhere else can you develop such practical and quick application of your abilities to insure your greater business success as through the LaSalle Problem Method of training and service. Training for junior and senior positions in Accountancy consumes less than two-thirds the time required by any other practical and thorough advanced Accountancy training.

8 GUARANTEED RESULTS: LaSalle guarantees to train you to pass the C. P. A. examination in any state. Failing to pass, LaSalle will continue coaching you without cost until you do succeed in passing.

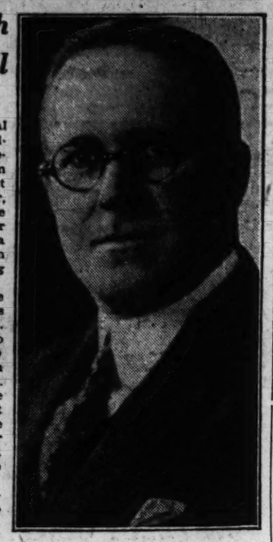
NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

N. England Church Issues Rally Call

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.



THE REV. CLARK WALKER CUMMINGS.

THE New England Congregational church, Dearborn street and Delaware place, which recently received a legacy of $300,000 from the late Victor F. Lawson, its most prominent member and chief supporter, is preparing for a program of advance and is issuing a call to all former members and attendants to rally at a loyalty and home coming celebration beginning next Sunday and continuing over Oct. 4.

The Rev. John R. Heyworth is the pastor, and an assistant pastor has been chosen in the person of the Rev. Christian education before coming to Chicago was so marked as to lead to his choice. A reception will be given at the church on Friday evening, Oct. 2. A memorial service for the late Mr. Lawson will be held Oct. 4. Next Sunday evening a pageant will be given entitled "Paul, the Prisoner of the Lord." On the evening of Oct. 4 will be given another pageant, "The Legend of the Holy Grail."

The New England church is the oldest Congregational church in Chicago with the exception of the New First, which resulted from the merger of the First with the Union Park church. It has several valuable historic treasures, a spacious auditorium, and looks upon the rapid growth of the north side in its vicinity as an opportunity for an increasing service.

Jewish holy week services will be held from tomorrow to Friday inclusive at the Garrick theater, 64 West Randolph street, beginning at 12:15. Dr. G. George Fox, rabbi of the South Shore temple, is chairman of the Rabbincal association, and Julius Selter is chairman of the Jewish Brotherhoods committee having the services in charge.

The First Hungarian Congregational [Agudath Achim] which formerly met at South Marshfield avenue and Polk street, will hold services this morning beginning at 7 at the Albany Park auditorium, 4825 North Kedzie avenue. The Rev. A. Turner of Vienna, Austria, will speak and a choir of fourteen will sing. Rabbi I. Kaplan will be in charge.

The parish house of the Trinity Lutheran church, Barry avenue and Osgood street, costing more than $100,000, will be dedicated today at 3 o'clock. The Rev. Gottfred Nelson has been pastor of the church twenty-two years. The congregation numbers more than 1,000, and the Sunday school enrollment is 800. Anton W. Nelson is chairman of the finance and dedication committees, and J. M. Westerlin is chairman of the building committee.

Dr. Frederick F. Shannon will begin today at 11 o'clock services in Orchestra hall. Central church, of which he is pastor, was organized fifty years ago, and a celebration of the event will be held in December.

Bishop E. F. Hoban will be given a home coming reception today at 3 o'clock at St. Vincent's hall, Webster and Sheffield avenues. He will make the principal address and bring a message from Pope Pius XI., whom he visited while in his recent pilgrimage to Rome. He will distrbute autographed photographs of the pope to those present. Other leaders of the Holy Name society will speak.

Tomorrow will mark the sixteenth anniversary of the consecration of the episcopacy of his eminence, Cardinal Mundelein. The event will be celebrated by solemn high mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Name at 10:30 by the Rev. James Horsburgh, assisted by the Rev. Samuel Lucey and the Rev. Joseph P. Morrison. The Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. FitzSimmons, V. G., rector of the cathedral, and other priests will assist. Cardinal Mundelein was consecrated auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn on Sept. 21, 1909; made archbishop of Chicago on Dec. 9, 1915; cardinal, March 24, 1924.

The ninth annual pilgrimage to Our Lady of Lourdes at Annunciation church, Big Woods, Aurora, Ill., will be held today. The Rev. A. J. Neidert, the pastor, announces there will be solemn high mass at 11:30, standard time. Several special trains have been arranged by the railroad.

The following Episcopal clergymen will resume their pulpits today following the summer vacations: The Rev. Duncan H. Browne, St. James; the Rev. F. S. Fleming, Atonement; the Rev. George Craig Stuart, St. Luke's, Evanston; the Rev. H. L. Bowen, St. Peter's; the Rev. J. F. Plummer, Epiphany; the Rev. John Henry Hopkins, Redeemer, and the Rev. G. G. Moore, Advent. The Rev. George H. Thomas, St. Paul's, is expected to return from Europe this week.

Grace Evangelical church, Kimball and Wrightwood avenues, will lay the corner stone of its new community house at 4 p. m. today. The Rev. J. Alfred Nansen is the pastor. The new building will provide a gymnasium as well as facilities for religious education.

The Rt. Rev. W. T. Sumner, Episcopal bishop of Oregon, and formerly dean of the Chicago cathedral, will celebrate the holy communion this morning at 7:30 at the Cathedral Shelter, 117 North Peoria street, the Rev. David E. Gibson, priest in charge.

The Rev. Ivan Prokhanoff, president of the All Russian Evangelical union and president of the first Protestant theological school in Russia, will speak today at 3 o'clock in the Russian Christian church, 2127 Crystal street. He will also address the Christian ministers of Chicago and vicinity at their meeting place in the Chicago temple tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. and in the evening at the Englewood Christian church, 66th place and Stewart avenue.

Word comes that American preachers are holding religious services in Jerusalem and Nazareth, Palestine, where orphans of the Near East Relief are being cared for. Dr. O. W. Fifer, Indianapolis, has just returned with an appreciative account of the service. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick will preach there this fall. At Dr. Fifer's service the children sang Armenian words to the tune of "Home Sweet Home."

The woman's auxiliary of Chicago of the Episcopal church will hold a day of prayer at Trinity church, South Michigan avenue and Twenty-sixth street, next Thursday. The Rev. Garth Gibbald of Trinity church, Rockford, Ill., will speak.

Relieves Catarrh In 3 Minutes!

Newly discovered treatment kills the germs, heals the tissues and works wonders in ridding catarrh victims of their suffering

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a famous French scientist. This drugless method, called Lavex, gives decided relief in three minutes' time, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate membranes and tissues.

Results in a Single Night

Lavex clears the head and lungs like magic. The germ laden mucus that causes all the trouble is quickly eliminated, and the sore, inflamed tissues respond almost instantly to the wonderful healing powers of Lavex. Sufferers have been relieved in a single night, and thousands of former catarrh victims report almost miraculous relief with this remarkable treatment. To prove it, and to introduce Lavex to a thousand more sufferers, in one week I am making this startling offer.

FREE TREATMENT

I offer to send a treatment free by postpaid to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. It is absolutely FREE. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, please send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and let me prove that you can get rid of catarrh. Be sure to write at once.

A bath that makes you feel like conquering!

Healthy skin, beautiful skin, with JAP ROSE — Try it!

SATINY skin, tingling and glowing . . . rested nerves . . . lively muscles . . . The whole body pulsing with energy.

That's the way you feel after a bath with JAP ROSE. Lovely women all over the world tell us so.

Try it yourself and see.

It's easy to understand why JAP ROSE makes you feel so good; it removes dirt and cleanses pores to their very roots—instead of clogging them, as coarse soaps do.

Then the tonic ingredients that compose JAP ROSE stimulate the pores and the nerves about them. That is why your skin tingles—new health is there.

Buy several bars. Use it for the daily bath and for extra "dips"

And then give yourself an extra treat—use it as a shampoo.

You'll be amazed at the lightness, the fluffiness, the cleanliness of your hair.

Would these Men Stand By and Watch Their Homes Burn?

At the first sight of flames in his home, any man would call the fire department.

No delay—not a minute—when the house is burning.

But—there are thousands and thousands of men suffering a damage so much more serious than the burning of a house that comparison would be futile—and they are doing nothing effective to stop its ruinous course.

These are the men—and there are women also—who have become infected with "social" diseases and are delaying the treatment in which lies their only hope of escape from shattered health and, very likely, premature death.

Some of them hesitate to consult a doctor through false modesty; some because they think that venereal infections cannot be cured; others because they have been told that the form they have is not serious. They keep on giving themselves excuses and meanwhile the infection is doing its pernicious work.

Sooner or later these people will be forced to take treatment. Their condition will come to a point when they can no longer conceal it. Then they will realize how much better it would have been to visit a doctor early.

Human wrecks, thrown onto the care of their families, the pathetic cases of advanced venereal infection to be seen in hospitals everywhere, the records of insane asylums and the experience of doctors all bear witness to the folly of delay in obtaining effective treatment and continuing it until cured.

When the symptoms of a "social" disease appear, a doctor should be consulted as soon as possible, and his instructions should be followed until a cure has been effected. Even if the victim has delayed and finds that the disease has already caused permanent damage, proper treatment will usually stop its course.

To those who realize that they have contracted one of these infections, the Public Health Institute offers the service of trained physicians who make a thorough examination of every patient and give the treatment best adapted to each case. It has already restored health to thousands of infected men, women and children and is now giving about 1000 treatments daily.

If you have a venereal infection, a visit to the Institute for an examination may save you years of suffering, broken health or permanent disability. It may even save you years of life, for "social" diseases allowed to have their way cause many early deaths. They kill fully 300,000 people in the United States every year.

The Institute was organized not for profit, and all of its income is used in giving treatments, doing research work and providing proper facilities for serving its patients. The fees are small and the same to all. No patient pays more than another for the same service, and no one is turned away for lack of immediate means.

Have You a Puzzling Ailment?

Venereal infections often produce forms of disease which make it difficult for any but a doctor to discover the real cause. This is often the case when treatment has banished the first and easily recognizable symptoms but has not actually cured the patient—or in cases of inherited "social" disease. If you have an ailment that is puzzling and persistent, either constant or periodic, you should have an examination and tests made to discover its source. If a "social" disease is responsible for the trouble, proper treatment should be taken without further delay.

Women and Children

A special department for women and children, with women as physicians and assisting as nurses and attendants, is located at 72 East Randolph Street. Every facility is provided here for effective treatment, and the utmost privacy with the highest degree of comfort is assured.

With such service as this available, no one who needs treatment should delay. "Social" diseases can be cured.

WANTED—MALE HELP.
Executives and Managers.
DISTRICT SALES MANAGERS.
One of the leading business service organizations in the country, with headquarters in New York, is seeking two District Sales Managers—one for the Detroit district, and one for the Cleveland district.
The work involves selling to executives of manufacturing companies a specialized industrial service designed to improve teamwork, increase production, and cut down costs.
The service has been used with unusually successful results by hundreds of the leading companies in the country, and has their unqualified indorsement. The average contract amounts to about $3,500; in many cases much larger amounts are involved.
The men we want are between 30 and 50, and earning $10,000 a year. They must be primarily able and resourceful salesmen; they must be real thinkers, not glib talkers; knowledge of production activities is helpful,
but not essential; the ability to interview first-rank executives and to "close business" is essential.
Present industrial conditions are unusually favorable for this work, and excellent cooperation will be provided. Compensation is on a liberal commission basis with a reasonable guaranty against expenses.
If you wish to be considered for one of these openings, write fully and frankly regarding your qualifications, experience, income, and business connections; your letter will be held in strict confidence. Give your telephone number, as an officer of our organization will be in Chicago next week to interview personally eligible applicants. Address C E 10, Tribune.

SALES MANAGERS.
I have openings for 2 sales managers with crews—one for a foreign department. Both must be able to bring 8 produring salesmen each.
The man I want are men who are dissatisfied with both the properties
they are selling and with their present connections. If they can show me absolute proof of their ability we will finance them until organized. Give phone number and full particulars.

A CHALLENGE
If you claim to be a salesman, here is a chance at big money, to make from $150 to $250 weekly. Real proposition that busy people will listen to; not books, insurance, stock, or real estate. Chair warmers keep away. Hustlers get in while this is hot. Room 907, 11 S. La Salle-st., at once.

"ACTION" SALESMAN.
Every directing Executive of business today has one aim—that is, the highest possible degree of PIVOT MAN development in his own organization. By PIVOT MEN we mean department heads, branch managers, superintendents, and foremen, in fact, any one who supervises the work of others.
Every day in his business Mr. President is constantly trying to get over to his Pivot men at a tremendous cost of his time and money a few simple "HOW'S"—such as to control temper, not to play favorites, quit making false promises, to always issue clear instructions, to co-operate with the heads of other departments and the management, to develop understudies, stop guess work, buck passing, grouchiness, and to be alert for new ideas on the principles of supervision and management. Besides, getting these same Pivot Men to sell their workers to want to stop Waste, Mistakes, Carelessness, and the reason why they should improve the quality of the product to meet competition. Isn't that true?
Every President will admit that his Pivot Men are directly responsible for these losses, and until they are given the "HOWS" to analyze and stop them, he cannot expect to reduce his overhead to a minimum.
We have a simple, practical, proven Plan which, for the first time in the history of American Business, gives these Pivot Men this much desired and needed help. This Plan today is past the stage of experiment because 11,000 practical executives who have used it for two years state over their signatures in black and white, that they have made a TREMENDOUS PROFIT on their small investment in this Plan.
Our RENEWAL PLAN is just completed, and we are ready to call back on every one of these clients and thousands of others who are eagerly awaiting to adopt this Plan. We give full credit on all renewal business secured in the territory, thereby putting the Salesman immediately into an earning capacity of from $10,000 to $20,000 per year. This is the money which our average man is earning in this business. We even pay you while being trained in the particular selling knacks and methods of our business.
Are Executives willing and anxious to adopt this Plan? We'll let you answer that question when you see it.
Due to our growth, three salesmen have just been advanced to executive positions, giving us three Central West territories for men who can qualify to carry on the good work of their predecessors.
These men must be between the ages of 30 and 40 years; must be able to interview Chief Executives—must be able to dominate and sell them on the first showing of the Plan. These men must have a background showing an earning capacity of $5,000 per year or more. They must have the ability to convince Mr. Executive of the big profits which can be secured through the use of our Plan, and they carry unquestioned PROOF to back up every statement or claim they will make.
To conserve your and our time, don't answer this ad unless your Sales experience qualifies you. WE WANT ACTION. Can you give it to us?
Address P G 114, Tribune.

CONNECT WITH

KRENN & DATO, INC.

Our extensive operations require more and better salespeople.

Are you looking for an opportunity which would mean money to you?

Are you willing to admit that money is power and that good properties bought for cash by a responsible company sell easier?

Our increase in the volume of sales has been tremendous and nationally recognized as the most phenomenal development in the history of sound real estate selling. This is history, which no one can doubt.

We are now building an organization that shall increase manyfold the production which we have established as a record in the subdivision business. This we shall do with:

FIRST

Capital resources which we command.

SECOND

The best properties cash money can secure.

THIRD

Salesmen and saleswomen with character and ability to represent us in the field of selling.

Our advertising fall campaign with its tremendous weight of influence is now on.

New and better properties will be placed on the market and will keep a large sales force busy and satisfied throughout the winter.

The earnings of even the average salesman with us are big and substantial. Experienced or inexperienced, we are in a position to help you through the instructions given you in our business training school.

If you are interested to make money this fall and winter in a big way come and see us in Room 203, 1009 N. STATE STREET, between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. You will receive every courtesy and consideration.

WANTED--MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

SALESMAN—IF YOU HAVE CLOSED BIG BUSINESS on first interview, if you have sales ability above the average and can prove it, if you have earned upwards of $5,000 a year, and are in earnest about a GENUINE opportunity where you would be limited only by your own ability, then get in touch with us.

Ours is a rather small organization, young, but RESPONSIBLE and composed of "real livewires." Our sales this year are three times ahead of last year's.

We're going to expand a little more. We're going to add one or two more men to our present sales force.

We are the originators of an advertising service the merit of which is evidenced by our rapid growth, indorsements, and the big renewal business.

The work is of a nature that appeals to the better salesman. Constant traveling is necessary. Compensation commission basis.

To receive attention your letter must tell us enough about yourself so that we can gauge the caliber man you are, what you have sold, houses you have represented, earnings in the past, age, nationality, etc. You can give us this information with the assurance that your letter will be held in the very strictest confidence. SALESMEN,

ATTENTION!

You have been looking for the opportunity to sell something that the demand for has been already created. We can truthfully say that you can make more money with us than any position you have previously held. We are a growing concern who want men who will work and grow with us. If you will do this we will guarantee your success. Call Monday morning between 9 and 11 for an interview with MR. GERITY,
Room 455,
Peoples Gas Bldg.

SALESMEN.

A large manufacturing company established twenty-eight years and rated AAA-1 is desirous of interviewing a few high powered specialty salesmen.

Our line consists of three distinct, high class profit makers for merchants.

Sept 1 our sales policy was entirely changed for the benefit of our salesmen, with the idea of building a permanent sales force.

Come in and let us convince you by putting all our cards on the table that this is the line and company you want to hook up with for your life work.

Service bonus gives a man a chance to make approximately ten thousand dollars in five years in addition to his regular income on a commission basis, such income being from five thousand as a minimum up as high as your efforts and sales ability will take you.

If you are interested in a real proposition call MR. T. G. McCROSSEN, Monday, Brevoort Hotel, Franklin 2363, for appointment.

SALESMEN, ATTENTION!

The Ford Motor Co. has made it possible for you to make big money in selling their products.

BUT
the earning power of those who graduate will depend entirely upon the thoroughness of their training.
Short, cheap courses will not qualify you. Under the Illinois law, you cannot secure a license to shampoo, marcel, or practice any branch of beauty culture unless you have had a full course of 625 hours' training.
Graduates of this school earning highest salaries are qualified to pass every state examination.

AQUITANIA ON THE LAKE SHORE
AT 5000 NORTH.

After you have visited the Aquitania Apartments you will readily understand why they seldom fail to satisfy the refined tastes of those who realize that the time spent in their home is so large a portion of their existence that it should contribute largely to their physical comfort and their mental contentment.

You will enjoy the quiet and restful atmosphere of the Aquitania. Its location is a delightful contrast to the noise and congestion of usual city neighborhoods.

This fifteen story building is of modern, fireproof construction and contains exceptionally spacious apartments of from three to six rooms, with one and two baths.

CHANNEL LAKE.

Channel Lake is the prettiest lake in the state of Illinois and affords the sportiest fishing. It is being resto-ked with bass and pickerel this fall and will continue to hold its reputation as a wonderful fishing ground. Channel Lake is only 2¼ hours from Chicago by auto over concrete roads, which makes it an ideal location for a summer home. One of the most desirable and exclusive subdivisions in Illinois is located on this ideal lake and lots 50x100 can be purchased for as low as $400 on easy terms. The time to buy is now, for improvements almost completed will mean an advance of from 25 to 50% in prices next spring. Woodcrest offers all that can be found at any other summer home subdivision. In addition to many features not found at other resorts; boating, bathing, fishing, golf, tennis, dancing, riding, and hiking, together with a splendid 3½ acre playground for the kiddies. THE FURNITURE WHICH I AM OFFERing for sale is of an entirely different character than that usually presented at a home sale. The unusual outlet for furnishings of this quality is the exclusive resale shop. My six room apartment was completely equipped 18 months ago with the highest quality furnishings obtainable and selected under the advice and guidance of competent interior decorators.

$10,000 worth of perfectly conditioned furniture, rugs, and draperies will be offered, either as a unit or separately, at my apartment at 1420 Farragut, from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m., Sept. 17, 18, 19, and 20. (Corner of Farragut and Glenwood-av., which is 3200 north, one block north of Foster-av., and ½ block east of Clark-st.)

Regardless of where you live, you will be amply repaid by attending this sale.

WHY

IT PAYS to Buy a Reconditioned STUTZ
as against a Cheap New Car.

READ THIS LETTER FROM
W. C. HAPP, ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS.

"Three years ago I bought a Stutz 1915 model for $800.50. My total repair bill for the three years' service has been less than $25, plus gasoline, oil, and tires. This car has been in service TEN YEARS and is in first class condition today.

"I am only an average workingman, a janitor at the local high school, at a salary of $140 per month, and have a family to support. When I bought the Stutz my friends said to me: 'How can you afford to buy a Stutz?' At the same time one of the other janitors bought a brand new $800 car. Now, after three years, his car is JUNK. He paid about the same as I paid for my old Stutz, but his upkeep has been more than mine, and I have been riding in comfort and he has not. But the one thing that gives me the most satisfaction is this: the road hogs with their sixties don't crowd me into the ditch. They always give me half the road.

"The Stutz car is always ten years ahead of the times. My car, being ten years old, is consecutively up to date in all mechanical points and good as it is bright and clean, and when I park along the street people stop and look at it. They are not on the sidewalk and look at the plate on the radiator. I do not think that I could afford to own any car but a Stutz."

We have some wonderful values in late model reconditioned Stutz open and enclosed cars, ranging in price from $500 up.

All prices reduced $200 to $500 for clearance sale.

Country-wide prosperity mounts to new levels with the highest peak in The Chicago Territory

"IT is safe to say," declares The National City Bank of New York, in their August bulletin on business conditions, "that the country has not had so good a basis for sound and general prosperity heretofore since the war."

Facts, definite and irrefutable, back this opinion, leaving not a whisper to challenge it even from the most lugubrious blue or the most radical red.

Measure the future by whatever business barometer you will, the forecast remains equally bright.

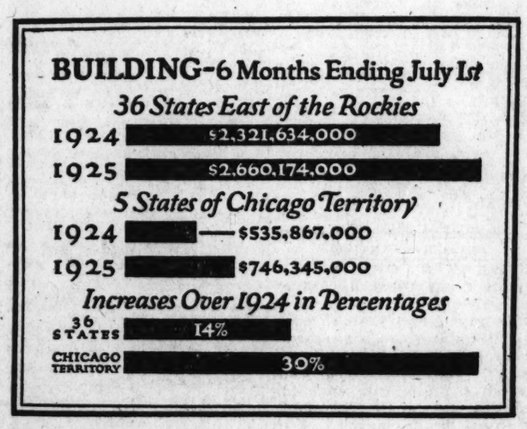
Consider car loadings, the truest indication of commodities shipped: On August 8th, continuing on the upgrade, they reached 30,280,136 cars for the year; 1,781,946 over the same period in 1924 and above both 1923 and 1922. The week ending August 15th broke all records for the year and set a new high point over every previous year.

Study building activity: For the first six months of the year Dodge Corporation reports that contracts let total $2,660,174,000 in the 36 states east of the Rockies, an increase of more than $300,000,000 over the corresponding months last year and $600,000,000 over 1923.

Look at the business most highly responsive to the prosperity and optimism of the public—mail order selling: The sales total for the leading mail order house on July 1st was 14% greater than during the first six months in 1924. The month of July showed a 27% gain.

Or automobiles: A new high point has been scaled by the automotive industry. During the first half of the year sales were 5.8% over 1924. But this is even more significant: 1924 started with 324,546 motor vehicles sold in January, rose slightly higher, then dropped to 254,075 for June. Sales in January, 1925, started at 241,068 for the month, rose to a new high level in March, still higher in April, and maintained the level at 402,696 cars in June.

On the farms, what there? There isn't a single menacing cloud on the agricultural sun. Moreover, farmers last year largely liquidated their debts. This year they will have a reserve to spend.



Thumb the books of our financial institutions: Bank debits, the total payments by check, for the United States are 15.9% over last year for the six weeks ending August 5th.

This is prosperity, a prosperity not fostered by war needs, calamity or a buying orgy; but created by a sound, substantial, healthy condition throughout the entire nation.

This is prosperity on which merchandising men may well look covetously. And, as they analyze the United States looking for the strategic zones upon which to center their selling and advertising activity, they will not have to look long to find the most prosperous market of them all.

Fortune has smiled most bountifully on The Chicago Territory—that rich area concentrated in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan.

When you think of the car loading records, remember Chicago is the railroad center of the country.

While the 36 states reporting gained 14% in building, the increase in these five states was 30%.

Here 21% of the nation's motor vehicles are owned.

Here is the corn belt, and corn is the most promising of all the grains and cereals this year. Here the percentage of increase in bank debits shows a substantial lead over the high national average.

How other manufacturers and selling organizations are cashing in on The Chicago Territory prosperity forms a story of value to any executive before he formulates his next selling campaign.

It is a story of an intensive, economical method of selling without a parallel, in our knowledge, for producing results.

Will you hear it? Ask a Chicago Tribune man to call.

MISS AMERICA, 1925—This girl of the golden west is the queen of all American bathing beauties of this season, according to the judges in the annual pageant at Atlantic City. The new queen of pulchritude is Miss Fay Lamphier of Oakland, Cal. She was sent to the national competition as Miss California, the fairest of California's fair women. Miss Fay is a peaches-and-cream blonde, 19 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height, and weighing 138 pounds. Except for a slight difference in the ankle, her measurements conform exactly with those of the perfect woman. At the left Miss Lamphier is shown in the bathing costume she wore when she won her new title; centered is a picture of the new queen with the cup emblematic of her triumph; at the right she is shown in street attire.
(All photographs from Pacific and Atlantic.)

THESE ARE THE FAIREST OF THE FAIR, the prize bathing beauties from many cities of the United States who entered the lists at Atlantic City in quest of that title of titles, Miss America. At the left, indicated by an arrow, is Chicago's entry in the tournament, Miss Margarita Gonzales. She failed to break into the finals, the circle of fifteen from whom the first prize winner was chosen. The arrow at the right points out the second prize winner, Miss Los Angeles. She is Miss Adrienne Dore, a slip of a girl only 17 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing only 114 pounds, with reddish brown curls adorning her pretty face. Miss Dore won three of the fifteen votes by which the first prize was awarded; the other twelve went to Miss Lamphier. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

Gold Medal Kitchen — where all Gold Medal Flour is daily "Kitchen-tested"—by trial bakes

This "Kitchen-tested" flour cuts baking failures in half

Now a flour that actually always acts the same perfect way in your oven...we guarantee it...so try a sack at our risk and see

Here is a flour that relieves you of costly guesswork in all your baking. It makes the most difficult recipe delightfully easy.

Because it is "Kitchen-tested" daily. By trial bakes in the Gold Medal model kitchen. The one sure method of proving that a flour will always act the same way.

If you have never tried Gold Medal Flour—we suggest you do so now—for the new joy it brings you in baking.

How the "Kitchen-test" prevents baking failures

More than half of all baking failures is due to the way flour acts. Because a brand of flour may not always act the same way in your oven. Not because it is bad. But simply because flour may often be "contrary."

So the only way a miller can tell how any one batch of his flour will act, is to bake with it first himself.

And that is the Gold Medal "Kitchen-test." Each day the Gold Medal Kitchen bakes with samples from each batch of flour milled the day before.

Each sample must bake the same perfect way as all the others—else that batch is not allowed to leave the mill.

Our direct guarantee—Test at our risk

If at any time Gold Medal Flour does not give you the most uniform good results of any flour you have ever tried—you may return the unused portion of your sack of flour to your grocer.

He will pay you back your full purchase price. We will repay him.

So make this trial. Order a sack from your grocer today.

Why Women read The Tribune

FOR years The Tribune has sought to serve its women readers with sound and reliable feature departments of particular interest to them. Thousands of women regard The Tribune not only as a bulletin of world events and local news, but as a means of learning the latest fashion notes, the safest and best methods of beauty culture and the wisest course to pursue in training children. Every day its women's pages contain a myriad of intensely interesting articles which women read.

To assure its women readers the feminine viewpoint throughout these departments, The Tribune has secured the best authorities, all women, to conduct this work, and the thousands of letters received by them every month testify to its success.

Antoinette Donnelly

THE TRIBUNE'S noted beauty expert has been a newspaper woman for many years. Her first experience in giving advice to those who would be beautiful and those who would retain their beauty came when she served as assistant to Lillian Russell, then in charge of the how-to-be-beautiful section of The Tribune.

In 1915 Miss Donnelly took complete charge of this important feature for women. Her advice on health and beauty, and on the extremely important subject of weight reducing, is sane, practical and helpful.

She has become recognized as an authority on ways and means to avoid the much dreaded evil of superfluous flesh.

In 1924 Miss Donnelly received nearly 20,000 letters from women readers of The Tribune who sought advice on how to improve their personal appearance. She does not limit her writings to beauty hints alone. A careful study of women's dress enables her to advise on the style of apparel most suited to each individual type. Miss Donnelly has just recently returned from Paris, where she took careful note of the modes and manners of madam and mademoiselle.

Her writings are always interesting and are flavored with a whimsical humor that has won her lots of friends. Our own Beauty Doctor is the author of a booklet containing health and beauty hints of value to every woman. She is conceded to be one of the best known of all women feature writers in America.

ANOTHER Tribune feature for women that has attained unusual popularity is the sewing and needlework department.

Here the latest styles are pictured and explained in order that the woman who sews can keep herself and her daughters garbed in the latest creations from New York and Paris. As an additional service, The Tribune prints Clotilde patterns, which are sold at a nominal price.

More than 140,000 women bought Clotilde patterns in 1924, which throws a revealing light on the number of women who make their own clothes.

Clotilde

Clotilde suggests, to those who sew, pleasing materials, color combinations, and many novel ideas which will give their handiwork a finished appearance. Clotilde also conducts the "Practical Needlework" feature which appears each Sunday in The Sunday Tribune.

A great part of her time is occupied in helping her many correspondents solve their individual sewing problem. All Tribune readers are welcome to write to Clotilde. Her experience with the needle and the machine is at their service.

MOST of us are interested in the movies—and nearly every movie fan who reads The Chicago Tribune is a close follower of Mae Tinee's discussions on the plays and players of the silver screen.

The thousands of letters which Mae receives each year reveal that the great majority of readers are women.

Mae Tinee reviews seven pictures a week and tells frankly why she does or does not like each production seen. She gives interesting sidelights on the stars of the day and enables the fans to know their favorites off the screen as well as on.

Few movie critics are better equipped to write of the screen luminaries. Mae is personally acquainted with scores of the popular stars and keeps in constant touch with their activities.

Every day in The Tribune Mae Tinee answers queries from fans as to the height, color of hair and eyes, education, personality, etc., of their favorites.

The Tribune sent its well known movie editor to Hollywood and to New York to see just how movies are made.

Mae Tinee is a favorite among women readers of The Tribune. They like her easy, chatty style of writing and they know that she has something of interest to tell them every day.

Mae Tinee

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is read by millions of people every day. Our readers come from every walk of life. Some have more than enough of this world's goods. Others are in actual want. In order to help this latter group, a department called "The Friend in Need" was established many years ago.

Sally Joy Brown is in charge of this department. She is in touch with more than 50,000 who write to her offering or asking for help.

Sally Joy Brown

Furniture, clothing, books, wheel chairs, etc., are given to readers who need them, by other readers in more fortunate circumstances.

Sally Joy Brown's job is a happy one, since she is constantly doing good work. She does not limit her activities to individuals or women. Through her ability to appeal to the great audience of Tribune readers she has been instrumental in equipping hospitals, institutions, libraries.

Sally Joy Brown simply makes known the needs of others through The Tribune. In many cases people are reminded of articles long discarded which will be much appreciated by Sally Joy Brown's friends.

Naturally, "The Friend in Need" has a two-fold interest among women readers of The Tribune. It gives to some an opportunity to perform a worth while charitable work, for others it provides a confidential way to obtain the things they need and cannot buy.

IN THIS day of never-ending social activity, a trustworthy guide to etiquette becomes indispensable. The Tribune prints such a guide every day under the heading, "WHAT'S WRONG HERE?"

By means of this feature, Tribune readers are given a daily lesson in good manners. Women readers, for whom the niceties of social contact take on an added importance, have been quick to take advantage of this new but valuable Tribune department.

Enormous demand for Squibb's Dental Cream makes this reduction possible . . . .

Through its sheer merit, in a little more than three years the demand for Squibb's Dental Cream has increased from a few thousand to many millions of tubes a year.

This demand has necessitated the building of a new manufacturing laboratory for the preparation of Squibb's Dental Cream, and with the erection of this plant with its improved facilities and the advantages of larger production, certain economies were effected.

These savings are now being passed on to the millions of people who have learned of the advantages of Squibb's Dental Cream, made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia.

Squibb's Dental Cream affords the best means of protecting your teeth from Acid Decay, because it is made with Milk of Magnesia, an effective antacid used for generations as the one sure, safe means of counteracting the acids in the mouth which attack the teeth and gums.

Examine your teeth closely. Notice the tiny ledges or V-shaped crevices formed by the joining of the teeth and gums—the real Danger Line in the mouth.

Food collects in these tiny crevices, where it ferments and forms acids which destroy the tooth enamel, causing Acid Decay.

Squibb's Dental Cream, made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, penetrates into these crevices, neutralizing the acids as they are formed, protecting your teeth against Acid Decay and your gums against disease.

Get several tubes at your drug store today at the new 40-cent price, and begin a real fiight against the enemies of your teeth and your health.

Squibb Educational Contest

Each advertisement of E. R. Squibb & Sons has an educational purpose. It gives information which, if followed, will lead to better health. To help accomplish this purpose, we will distribute $25,000.00 in cash awards among 508 contestants who give the best answers to eleven questions.

Ten of these eleven questions appear in this column. The eleventh and last question will be announced on Saturday, October 24, 1925.

The Questions

Notice that none of the contest questions is difficult to answer, nor does the answering of them require professional or technical knowledge. You can get the information you need to answer these questions from Squibb advertisements—follow them regularly.

1. What is "The Danger Line" in the mouth? Why is it so called?
2. How can you best guard your teeth against Acid Decay and your gums against Pyorrhea and thus maintain your general health?
3. What is the important constituent of Squibb's Dental Cream? Why is it so important?
4. Why should a dental cream be free from grit or similar abrasives?
5. Of what value are antiseptics, germ-destroying chemicals or astringents in a dental cream?
6. Why should a dental cream be free from substances that would be harmful when continually used in the mouth?
7. Why is a correct dentifrice of the utmost importance in the care of children's mouths?
8. Why should you have in the family medicine cabinet only such products as are approved by your physician?
9. State one or more points of superiority in each of the following products: Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, Squibb's Castor Oil, Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil, Squibb's Epsom Salt, Squibb's Bicarbonate of Soda.
10. Why is it important to consider the "Priceless Ingredient" before you buy?

LUSITANIA'S NEMESIS BLOWN TO ATOMS by the Danish government. The German submarine U-20, which sank the Lusitania, was grounded in shallow water off the west coast of Denmark in 1916 and rested there for years, a menace to shipping. Recently Denmark blew the rusting sub to bits with mines, and the ever-present camera was there to picture the fate of the shark. The sinking of the great liner Lusitania on May 7, 1915, did much to turn the world's sympathy against Germany. Allied powers rated the U-20 commander and crew as criminals and put a price on their heads.

Provoking LIPS

Your lips; what tell-tales they are! If dry and dull, they fairly shout one's age. When moistly red, discreetly rouged, they will bespeak health—pep—youth.

So, don't use a hard lipstick that always leaves its mark. Women who do, haven't learned of JARNAC! A true blood-red of essential oils. It places the art of perfect makeup at your fingerstip, for it spreads and blends so beautifully, no one ever needs anything else for either cheeks or lips!

A bit of this new, moist color makes lips alluring; a natural and becoming red; a life-like texture. If you JARNAC your lips they will never have that painted look. They will not take on a weird shade in certain lights. Nor will their color ever belie that of cheeks. And the oil base of JARNAC makes it truly waterproof; applied in a moment, the effect is yours undisturbed for hours!

Do you wonder that nearly every drug store you enter today displays JARNAC on the red counter card? Fifty cents! Your druggist has it by this time—or order direct from JARNAC, 540 West Randolph St., Chicago.

"I HAVE EATEN Fleischmann's Yeast for the last three years, one to three cakes daily. The remarkable improvement in my health is a matter of record based on a competent physician's examination. I first began to eat Fleischmann's Yeast to overcome constipation. I had headaches and pimples, my appetite was poor, my staying powers below par. I took Yeast with a dash of salt and a cracker—the flavor being not unlike that of fine cheese. My improvement was steady and permanent. To make a long story short, I am fighting fit in every way. Overwork does not bother me. My endurance is there. I eat and sleep like a he-man. My nervous system is in excellent condition. Constipation? Banished forever. Fresh air, exercise and a few cakes of yeast a day did it." Walt Marsh, Belleville, Ill.

RIGHT

"ABOUT THREE YEARS AGO I was very run-down and didn't have enough energy to do anything. The doctor said my system lacked vitamins. Finally, I discovered I was getting boils. I was bedridden just thirty days, when my physician insisted on my taking Fleischmann's Yeast, putting it on a cracker as one would cheese. This I took three times a day. After a time the doctor noticed a change: the boils stopped appearing, my appetite was better, I became more cheerful, and was able to get about. I have never had a recurrence of the boils, my intestinal tract functions properly, and I am in excellent health. I still keep on taking Fleischmann's Yeast." Mrs. Mildred Moeller, Bellerose, L. I.

A Story Told by Thousands

How they corrected their ills — regained the vitality of youth — through one simple food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers —in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 698, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

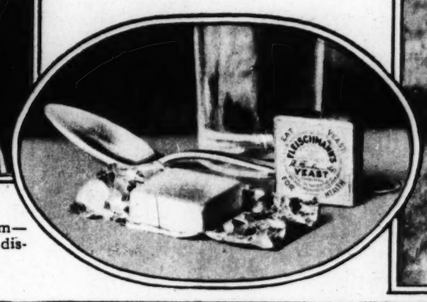
"ON SEPTEMBER 12, 1924, I responded to the call of the War Department and found I was one of the many unfit, physically. At dinner I nibbled at my food, was nervous and irritated. When in other cities officiating at football games I was ashamed to take a shower in the same room with other officials because my back was broken out. My skin was sallow, I was not well; besides, I lacked optimism. Then I started using Fleischmann's Yeast. The results were remarkable. My appetite became normal, all traces of eruptions on my back disappeared, and I felt like a new man. It is a pleasure now to associate with other men in the locker room or club."

Coach William B. Morgan, Senior High School, Sauk Centre, Minn.

RIGHT

"ABOUT EIGHTEEN MONTHS AGO I was a complete wreck. Could not eat or sleep, was anemic, and my color had faded to a sickly green. My friends began to exchange pitying glances and one day an old lady insisted on giving me her seat. That was the crowning humiliation . . . I decided to give yeast a trial. I started eating three cakes daily. In about six weeks found I could eat a real meal once more; in two months my natural color began to return. I kept on and now, thanks to Fleischmann's Yeast, I am a well woman."

Mrs. F. R. Conner, Florence, Ky.



THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—banishes constipation, skin troubles, stomach disorders. Start eating Fleischmann's Yeast today!

The Prince of Drinks and the Drink of Princes

THERE is something about "Canada Dry" that appeals instantly to everyone who has an inborn appreciation of the finer things of life.

For years upon years this fine old ginger ale has been served in the Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, in the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, in the residence of the Governor-General and at affairs of state throughout the Dominion. Woven into its history is the priceless heritage of an honored past.

Because of this, it was but natural that "Canada Dry" should have been selected as a royal drink when H. R. H. The Prince of Wales visited the United States last fall.

The following item is from a press report of the polo game at Meadowbrook, September 15, 1924:

"No pains were spared to make the royal visitor comfortable during his stay at the game. In the fourth chukker an attendant appeared in the royal box carrying a tray, with glasses of 'Canada Dry'."

Good old "Canada Dry." The prince of drinks and the drink of princes! Truly you have no idea how good a ginger ale can be until you try this. You will never forget the magic of its delicate, alluring flavor.

Saturday At The Office

By W. E. HILL

Irving, the hard working office boy, is not working so hard this morning. Saturday morning to Irving is like the spring feeling to most people. Irving is off girls for good. Never going to fall again. Once he fell in love for a whole week and couldn't do anything, not even come to work!

"Aw, so's your old man! A joke's a joke," etc., etc. The office joker dislikes having the tables turned.

Even the boss lets down as the noon hour approaches. "I'd like to know," Mr. Pratt is monologuing, "whatever became of her. She was a cute little blonde. She certainly did think I was the berries!"

Won't noon ever come? All the week Miss Purdue has been licking things that had to be mailed, and Saturday finds her digestion badly impaired. Miss Purdue is a stuffer.

Saturday morning is an awfully draggy time in the outer office, especially on those days when the boss leaves early for the links. The girls are deep in the latest murder. It's one of those nice, gory murders, in which a beautiful young girl (see photo) is found by the roadside in a stupor, grasping a bloody ax. Near by is a hacked body and a roadster, covered from top to mud guard with blood. When is a young girl to blame? — that is the question. "Always," says Miss Steinblock, "unless she's been drugged."

Miss Sadko, the private secretary de luxe, is off early today — she's going to look at a fur coat.

Bessie, the stenog, going down in the elevator en route for lunch with her best boy friend.

"Honest, Mr. Sheer, if you knew the dream I had about Mr. Cavanaugh last night you wouldn't ask me to take this report down to him!" Somehow, rebellion will creep in on Saturday morning.

Meet Mrs. Oleson, the lovely charlady, who, with her friend Mrs. Petersen, comes to clean up on Saturday. Mrs. Oleson and Mrs. Petersen often discuss at great length that burning issue, whether or no a young lady gets more out of life by going wrong. Or whether it's all the same in the end.

You don't hurry home from shopping because it has turned cold. Nor leave a festive party to "fix the furnace." A sudden drop from twenty above to ten below may mean a chilly drive home, but you'll find it 70° or 72° inside . . . or whatever temperature you have set.

When the man of the house is away—it shouldn't mean that the children will shiver with the cold—or that hands not meant for shovels must stoke and shake the furnace! Coal heat in homes is crude; why not have oilomatic?

White curtains are still white when you think it's time to wash them—when you have oilomatic heat!

Three things every woman desires

yet with coal heat you can have none of them

YOU ARE NOT a modern housekeeper if you are still burning coal. Why continue the deception—even with yourself? Coal and comfort don't mix!

MAYBE your family is content in a home that is coal heated. Contentment is a state of mind. But Winter is a cold reality—of which we shall soon be reminded!

FIRST will come those chilly days "too early to start the furnace." Then nights when all must bake before bedtime, lest morning find them freezing. Dressing in a temperature of 50°—nearly noon before it's sixty. Who is "comfortable" under such conditions?

"COAL doesn't inconvenience us," women say who have a man to 'tend the furnace. Some maids will even take a hand at stoking. But that doesn't make coal a convenience! It doesn't dispose of a basement full of ashes. Nor cold floors where children might otherwise play. A coal bin where might be tidy shelves of jams and jellies. Be honest and admit that coal is a nuisance!

OIL HEAT is convenient. No more care than electric light. Have as much heat—or as little—as you like. The temperature of the house will automatically conform to your habits. Oilomatic can never vary two degrees from the figure you have determined. How long would you stay at a "first class" hotel where remaining out too late meant returning to a cold room? Welcome warmth will greet you at midnight—or three a. m.—in your home that's oilomatically heated. The fuel for home is oil—even factories are fast abandoning coal. While few architects will recommend any system but the oilomatic, almost any oil burner is better than coal—even those oil burners that require watching.

IF YOU BELIEVE your coal heated home is clean, you have grown accustomed to grime. Examine the walls back of pictures! Compare draperies with a piece of the same material that has been put away! Pull down a window shade until the part that's always rolled-up comes in view! Leave off dusting for three days! (Many meticulous homes where oil is burned, dust but twice a week in Winter.) No, madam, you can't burn coal and keep clean.

HOMES HEATED oilomatically are comfortable, convenient, and clean. If they once burned coal, the change to oilomatic took part of one day. The cost of burning oil correctly is usually less than coal. Often it's an important annual saving. And ways a blessing! For oilomatic is entirely automatic. No attention, anytime, from anybody. After the novelty of showing to friends, you'll ignore it. People who have oilomatic heat know how it works, or why. Many have probably never raised the hood to look inside. But a man mechanically inclined can see the reasons for all but two or three other no-coal devices having been abandoned.

THERE'S A MAN in your town who can install oilomatic equipment in your furnace. He may not be able to do the job tomorrow, or next week. But there is plenty of time if you do something about it now. All you need do now is investigate—see how much less this luxurious oil heating service costs—and if there is any excuse for another season of spasmodic heat in your home! Payments may be deferred over a whole year, and you need not make your first payment until November 1.

FREE of all charge, you may have a set of basement plans which will give you new ideas of what basements can be used for. Also, we have printed five thousand more of a library edition on OIL HEATED HOMES, and a copy of this beautiful book is free for the prompt return of the coupon:

Quelques Fleurs Skin Lotion keeps your face soft and unburned—$1.00. Mon Boudoir Toilet Water—$3.50. Le Temps des Lilas Cream—$1.00. Houbigant Face Powder—$1.50. Houbigant Rouge—$1.50, and Houbigant Lipstick—$1.25—are the secrets of a rose-leaf complexion.

More precious than a casket of jewels

BOTTLES? BOXES? . . . . Yes, and of the loveliest. But crystal and cardboard and gay labels by themselves mean nothing—the world is full of them.

Inside each of these smart little containers is something more precious than jewels—a secret handed down—an authentic gift of loveliness—the key to some woman's future. These are the offerings of France, old in wisdom, to America, eager and young. These are the toilet preparations of Houbigant, the world's master-wizard in fragrances. Each does its own work, perfectly. Each adds to the aura of faint perfume in which its user moves.

Quelques Fleurs Skin Lotion—honey-sweet and creamy-smooth—the wise woman's protection against sun and wind and dust, giving and keeping a velvet skin. Le Temps des Lilas Cream—fresh and sweet as new-cut lilacs—the ideal cleansing and night cream to purify and smoothe the skin.

Then Houbigant Face Powder, fine, soft, marvelously blended, pleasingly fragrant—Houbigant Rouge, in four flower-tones to accord with the five powders—Houbigant Lipstick in its fat little gold case—these three, each in the vetsion Houbigant decrees for you, together form a magic palette from which blooms beauty such as your mirror never showed you before!

But you must send, too, for the Houbigant booklet, "Things Perfumes Whisper". It will tell you more about all these things, and introduce you to many others; it will teach you how to use them; and then—who knows what may happen after that!

Houbigant Nail Crayons give just the right blush to delicate finger tips. Convenient, impart an easy, lasting brilliance—50c.

STARS OF TWO FIRMAMENTS shine jointly now as Mr. and Mrs. Ted Coy. The smiling bride is Jeanne Eagles, who made the play "Rain" a Broadway hit of tremendous financial returns, and who is billed to appear in the show when it comes to Chicago next month. Ted Coy is the famous Yale football star of some years back, but now a business man and reputed to be worth a million or so. His first wife, Mrs. Edward Harris Coy, divorced him recently in Paris.

AQUAPLANING AT LAKE TAHOE, a California resort that is growing in favor. It's a gay sport if one doesn't tip—and even if one does, what's a little spill, provided one is able to swim out of it without damage? Still, this business of gymnastics aboard an aquaplane is hardly to be recommended to persons with weak hearts.

NOW floors can be as pretty as the rest of your home!

It's a simple matter to turn your old worn floors into beautiful new linoleum floors. How it can be done quickly and economically—why Armstrong's is the best you can buy.

PRETTIER rooms. Rooms of cheerful color. A happy thought for the home with worn, shabby wood floors!

The very next time you are shopping, stop at a good furniture or department store. Look at the new designs in floors of Armstrong's Linoleum. When you see the beauty of these new patterns you will not be prepared for their low prices. The cost is moderate, especially since these floors never need refinishing.

For floors of permanent beauty

If you want new floors of color and design that should last as long as your house itself, be sure to ask for Armstrong's Inlaid Linoleum.

In Armstrong's Inlaid Linoleum the deep, rich colors go all the way through to the heavy burlap back. And remember, all Armstrong's Inlaid Linoleum Floors will ever need is a waxing once or twice a year and the usual going over with a dust mop.

Many pretty printed patterns

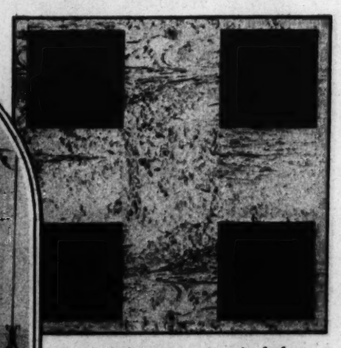
And Armstrong's Printed Linoleum! Never before have there been available so many interesting patterns in printed linoleum! The colorful designs are printed in extremely durable oil paints on a genuine cork linoleum base. Many floors of this same high-grade printed linoleum have been in use for more than a dozen years — and even longer — without signs of wear. All the attention these floors require is a coat of good varnish once or twice a year. A damp mopping keeps them clean, bright, and new-looking.

To get genuine Armstrong's Linoleum look for the Circle A trade-mark on the burlap back.

In the lamplit combination living-room and dining-room above, a brown Jaspé linoleum floor softens and warms the whole decorative scheme.

The charm of this marble tile floor of Armstrong's Linoleum (No. 70) in a New Castle, Pa., home is enhanced by a mitred border of plain black linoleum. Such a floor serves as a foundation for the decorative scheme, adding vigor and interest to the whole room.

Moulded Inlaid No. 3531



A cozy living-room corner in the home of Mr. Cox, Ferguson, Mo. The floor is Armstrong's Inlaid Linoleum, No. 76.

TWINS DO RUN IN FAMILIES, at least in this Omaha family. In the center are Alton Avery and Mrs. Alton Avery Vorhees, twin brother and sister, the eldest of these three generations. The younger women are twin daughters of Mr. Avery, Mrs. Jennie Avery Robb and Mrs. Josie Avery Hanson. And the pretty youngsters are twin daughters of Mrs. Robb, Jean Avery and Bonnie Avery Robb. And, curiously enough, all three pairs of twins celebrate their birthday anniversaries within ten days. (Photograph from International)

Protect your gums and save your teeth

Just as a ship needs the closest attention under the water-line, so do the teeth under the gum-line. If the gums shrink, serious dangers result.

The teeth are loosened. They are exposed to tooth-base decay. The gums themselves become tender and bleed easily. They form sacs which become the doorways of organic disease for the whole system. They often disfigure the mouth as they recede.

Prevent Pyorrhea with Forhan's

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's will prevent or check Pyorrhea's progress. Forhan's is safe, efficient and pleasant-tasting. It preserves gum health and corrects tender gum spots, hardens gum tissues so they will offer proper support to the teeth, and keeps your mouth fresh and healthy.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's twice a day and consult your dentist immediately for special treatment.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for Forhan's For the Gums. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Generations of Wear Woven into Every Orienta Seamless Wilton

Generations of Wear

PUT an Orienta Seamless Wilton where the wear is heaviest—between doorways, across a hallway or in the living room. Its dark, brushy pile is woven with a third more yarn-ply than in other Wiltons, to resist wear for generations. There are no seams in an Orienta to become threadbare; its back of long staple cotton holds every edge straight and flat.

The exquisite patterns and soft colors retain their charm and luster in a beauty that is permanent. The passing years bring no regrets when you possess

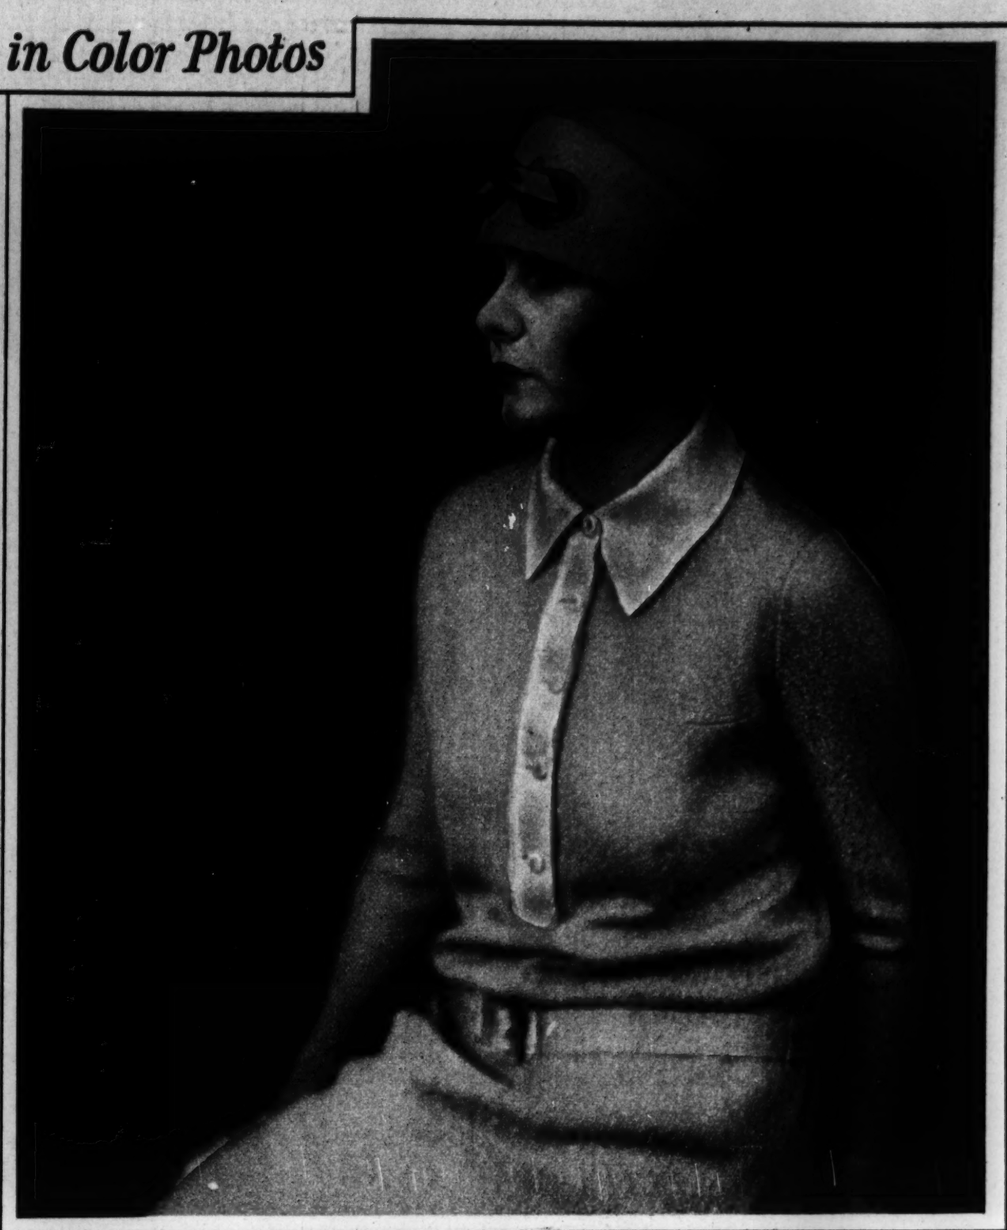
Film Beauties in Color Photos

BETTY COMPSON as revealed by natural color photography isn't Betty as you've imagined her, is she? Who'd have thought her topknot was red!



"A LADY OF QUALITY" they call Miss Norma Talmadge around the movie lots, because no matter what her story is, she can be depended on to give her best to a characterization, and that best is generally mighty good. Also, she is usually beautiful in her roles and is always charming to work with.

A FEMALE SHEIK travels under the name of "Cobra" in Hollywood these days. The appellation was suggested, report has it, by the work of Nita Naldi in "Cobra," the picture in which she has been working with Rudolph Valentino. That's the fillum they made her contract to reduce for—"sign on the dotted line."

"GET MISS NILSSON FOR THE PART" are familiar words these days on the lips of casting directors. There was a time when Anna Q. Nilsson was only a name among a lot of names—but no MO'.

These photographs were taken in Hollywood by Godfrey Lundberg, who was sent to California by The Tribune to take photographs of moving picture celebrities by a new natural-color photography process. Next week four more beautiful pictures in color will be presented—Ronald Colman, Lois Wilson, Belle Bennett and William S. Hart.

Conn's new plan enables every organization to have a Band or Orchestra

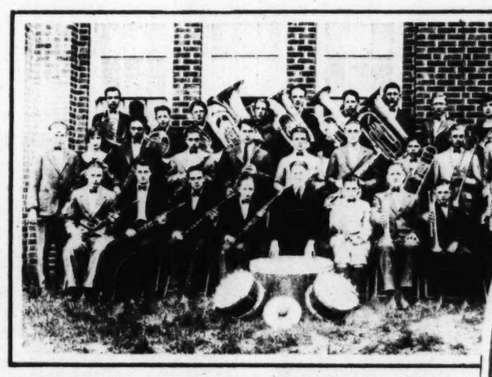
MOST every boy and girl wants to play a musical instrument. In every school, scout council, lodge, legion post or community is a nucleus of interested prospective band or orchestra players.

Pictured here are some of the prize winning school bands which have grown from just such interested groups.

Now it is possible for every such group to obtain a complete set of high grade instruments at no cost to the school or institution.

Conn's Liberal New Rental Plan Makes This Possible

Conn provides a complete set of instruments, requiring only small monthly rental payments which are credited in full toward the purchase of these instruments if you decide to buy. Thus you can be sure of the success of your band before investing, and have the use of good instruments to encourage the players.



ABOVE—Ida Gove, Ia., High School band, Gerald R. Prescott, director, winer of first prize in Class A Iowa state school band contest, 1925. At right is the trophy held this year by this band by virtue of this victory, typical of the trophies awarded other state champion bands.

An Easier Way to Earn a College Education

Just off the press, this book gives the actual experiences of many who have played their way to success with Conn instruments. You can do the same—send for your copy of this new book, Free.

World Famous Conn Instruments on Easy Purchase Plan

Our amazingly liberal purchase plan enables organizations to easily obtain complete set of genuine Conn instruments such as used by Sousa, Conway, Creatore, Kryl and the other leaders in concert bands, symphony, opera and popular orchestras. This is an entirely new plan, with terms so exceedingly low that everyone may take advantage of it.

Conns are chosen not only for their beautiful tone, but their easier playing qualities, light reliable action, due to Conn's exclusive processes and features.

In the school bands pictured here as well as hundreds of others throughout the country Conn instruments are an inspiration to youthful players.

Free Trial; Easy Payments

See your local dealer, listed below, or write to the factory now for details of the exceptional offers mentioned above, also for price and free literature on any instrument. Remember Conn is the only maker of every instrument used in the band. With all their exclusive features, Conns cost no more than others. Highest honors at all world expositions since 1892. Conn violins are acknowledge superior by famous artists.

INSTALLMENT I.

Where West and East Meet.

THE gypsy string quartet subsided suddenly on a high, quavering note.

At once, as if obeying a signal, everybody threw down crumpled napkins, rose, pushed back chairs, and moved out to the glass roofed veranda of the Megatherium-Palace hotel. It overlooked the Rue Tepe Bashi, with a far view, etched purple against the flaming evening sky, of Stamboul rising beyond the Sultana Valideh bridge in tiers of bulbous domes topped by the lance sharp spires of the Suleimanieh, a zigzagging of narrow, fanatical streets climbing and descending Constantinople's seven hills, and along the quays of the Golden Horn a knotted forest of masts from which, beneath the rhythmic paddles of Turkish and Armenian boatmen, caiques glided out toward the Bosphorus and the Sweet Waters of Asia.

Doors opened, letting out an opalescent whirl of smoke. The Greek majordomo stammered directions and imprecations. White aproned Levantine waiters and scarlet fezzed Negro bus boys hurried to arrange the small, round veranda tables. Came a confused reek of alcohol and overspiced food, a sting of perspiring perfumes, a cloud of rice powder, a clashing motley of silk and lace, and pompous, black broadcloth, a stumble of tinny, insolent laughter, a froth of jests and greetings as parties split, rearranged, and split again.

Between careless handshake and hooded wink, between naked shoulder brushing and smudging dinner jacket and visiting card with rapidly scribbled address slipped into narrow hand, between jovial "How are you, old trout?" and gliding "Au revoir, principessa mia!" a half dozen love affairs were finished, another half dozen begun.

Consciously cosmopolitan, as consciously smart, these people belonged to twenty nations and were loyal to none. They spoke all languages, pronouncing them all, including their native tongues, with a foreign accent.

There were here bankers and business men of international repute and adventurers of international disrepute—and it was hard to tell the difference in outer looks or inner ethics; diplomats and spies—and no difference at all, not even in splendor of ribbons and jeweled decorations, except that the spies were perhaps the less venal of the two; a number of Turkish officials and officers, mostly of the young Turk school of political and social thought, modern enough as to London clothes, American shoes, Paris underwear, Berlin monocles and mustaches, Viennese cravats, and Russian thirst, but not modern enough to bring along their wives and daughters; a sprinkling of gaping, slightly homesick tourists, drawing comparisons, audible or inaudible, with Liverpool, Hamburg, and Kansas City, and not sure if they should envy or slander, ape or ridicule.

There were, of course, the women after their kind: women of the world and women of the half-world, the former trying to look like the latter, the latter reversing the process, both in consequence succeeding as well as failing, since they looked alike, acted and—doubtless—reacted alike. There were women of the Levant, native Christians, Greeks and Syrians and Armenians; the mothers still beautiful, though immensely fat, immensely decollete, making a last assault upon the desire and imagination of man with a swing of huge, lithe hips, and the compounded aroma of bare flesh and French scents, while their slim, opaque eyed daughters, rigidly guarded as to chemical virtue, yet managed to make even an archangel conscious of his sex.

Everybody here was on the make. Everybody was trying to squeeze something, in cash or sensation, from everybody else—man from woman and woman from man, man from man and woman from woman. It was typical that the roses in the vases were beautiful, but of silk and paper crepe.

It was all in baroque, grotesque contrast—with itself and with facts. It was all strident and garish and diamond hard. It was all stucco and tinsel and spangles.

Yet beneath its gaudy, tawdry, blotched surfeit—surfeit of all the five senses and real satisfaction of not a single one of them—it was, somehow, romantic and picturesque.

THE waiters sifted through the veranda, balancing trays laden with colored glasses and bottles and tiny cups. The people sat down, and began to sip their after dinner coffee and liqueurs and to say things they hoped would be thought brilliant and quoted, or be thought profound and meditated over.

An English duchess adjusted her gold rimmed monocle and looked out upon the Rue Tepe Bashi, toward Stamboul's purple silhouette.

"Extraordinary place, this Constantinople," she said. All during dessert she had been coining this epigram. Now she was ready to give it to the world: "Exactly the sort of place which the world sees nightly in its films!"

"Quite so, bien cherie," agreed her companion, who

SWORDS EAST!

Blue Ribbon Fiction

By Achmed Abdullah.

TO Constantinople, glamorous capital of the Near East, comes Ellen McIntyre seeking color and romance. In this hotbed of intrigue and counter-intrigue, she meets Marquis O'Malley Pasha, Irish, expert swordsman, and soldier-of-fortune, serving the Sultan of Turkey. Their romance forms the principal theme of this swiftly-moving, new, Blue Ribbon serial story. Here is the first chapter.

Begin it Now!

was not the duke. The latter was at the other end of the veranda, "makin' the runnin'," as he put it, with the twice divorced Argentinian wife of a Swedish attache of legation.

At a neighboring table a famous French journalist, as he was meant to, had overheard 'the duchess' remark. He picked it up, embroidered it, and tossed it wide:

"You know—Constantinople reminds me of my mistress. Both are so charmingly genuine and spontaneous in life's two essentials."

"You mean beauty and brain?"

"Not at all. I mean immorality and stupidity."

A ripple of light laughter. Others chiming in, eager for applause:

"Such a gorgeously unlikely town—what?"

"Yes. Persian rugs overlaid by linoleum!"

"Carved marble baths outraged by open plumbing!"

"The Koran by Bradstreet!"

"The Prophet Mohammed," smiled a Turkish officer, "by Charlie Chaplin!"

An ingenue considered it time to live up to her ingenuousness:

"O! But such lovely gardens! Such lovely flowers!"

"Flowers choked by the bindweed of greed!" commented a Russian banker.

"Rather! Even the revels here are cash transactions."

"While most of the cash transactions are revels."

"And everybody trying to extract a thrill a minute!"

"Thrill—ah—spinal or financial?"

"Is there a difference?" asked the French journalist.

Laughter again: another shimmering avalanche of repartee; a wasp waisted, red bearded Spaniard suggesting that Constantinople reminded him of a Paris cocotte married to a Saharan eunuch; until at last the duchess, seeing that the table to table conversation was getting beyond her direct control and thus, vicariously, injuring her own reputation for intellectual brilliancy, decided to wind it up with a final twist:

"Look!" She pointed at the horizon where slowly, beneath the sweep of coming night, Constantinople was changing from a purple, jagged, sardonic outline to an indefinite, wiped over blur. "A mixture of platinum and pinchbeck, steel and whalebone, absinthe and holy water, essence of rose and quintessence of gutter—and everything for sale!"

"Including yourself, old fruit!" came the duke's audible whisper from the other end of the veranda.

THE duchess was witty. It was both her stock in trade and her chief reason for existence.

But her remarks were unjust, as witty remarks usually are.

For when she spoke of Constantinople she meant Pera, that ribald and strident suburb separated from Stamboul, the home of the real Turk, the Moslem, the Osmanli, less by the waters of the Golden Horn than by a welter of racial, religious, and ethical traditions and prejudices. Besides, those were the antediluvian days immediately preceding the Young Turk revolution, the Balkan war, and its gigantic aftermath, the world war. Pera had not yet been cleansed by blood and fire and suffering; was still nothing but a particularly gaudy and mephitic cesspool of European greed, though it paraded under a spurious, hypocritical cloak of business enterprise, social and financial reform, railway development, and protection for native Christian minorities—with Turkey, the Sick Man, surviving, thanks partly to its tough racial constitution, partly to Sultan Abdul Hamid's wicked and ironic wisdom.

It housed Europe's ambassadors and Europe's cocottes, Europe's churches and dives, teachers and usurers, counting houses and cabarets, reformers and spies, financiers and crooks, missionaries and drug peddlers. It was, to the few observers who had no axes to grind, an extraordinary mingling of shopworn virtues and slightly less shopworn vices, with the latter predominating and giving the leit motif.

So it had become the Mecca of the occidental, the Gehenna of the old fashioned, simple living oriental, and the Megatherium Palace was its holiest of holies.

Quite properly, the hotel stood within the protecting shadow of the British embassy. Quite improperly, its wide veranda squinted down at the Rue Tepe Bashi and at the motley throng that, tonight as every night, wended its way in the direction of the Sultana Valideh bridge, some to cross to Stamboul on the southern side, others—mostly Jews, Greeks, and Armenians—to remain on the northern side in the narrow lanes between the Tower of Galata and the Rue Yeni Kapu; but all eager for the lean comforts of their homes after a hard day's work.

This crowd was the real Turkey, a vivid panorama of races and faiths.

One did not have to look at their faces nor to search their souls to know whence each had sprung. A glance at footgear and headwear sufficed to solve the ethnological riddle. Down on the pavement the shuffle of yellow Osmanli babouche slippers, of red Armenian shoes, of sober Jewish side elastics, of Maltese alporgatos, of rawhide Arab and wood and straw Kurd sandals, of huge, untanned leather boots from Turkestan and broidered Albanian gaiters, while topping shoulders broad and narrow were fezzes of many colors and shapes, each telling a national Balkan tale, turbans large and small, green and white and red and gold threaded, enormous, rakishly tilted Circassian and Turkoman fur caps, low kalpaks, comical dervish hats, twisted shawls, and coverings of wool, of camel's hair, of string, of rags, of dirt.

An unfathomable sea of human forms that represented every last strain of the Mediterranean littoral, the Balkans, Arabia, the Caucasus, the Anatolian mainland, and central Asia.

All the races of the near east, all hating, cursing, suspecting each other. Nor because of their own dark passions—for the orient is patient and tolerant at heart—but driven to fraternal strife by the greed and intrigues of foreigners: the same foreigners who, on the veranda of the Megatherium-Palace hotel, smiled patronizingly at the passing crowd and coined gliding, slurring metaphors about Constantinople, Turkey, Islam.

The west. The east.

The hotel. The street.

Comedy up there: social comedy, glittering, shimmering, laughing; depending on the twist of a word, the inflection of a voice, the gay flirting of a fan.

Tragedy down below: tragedy of the gutters, stark, grim, ominous, enigmatic.

Soon comedy and tragedy would meet, would clash: and then . . . ?

A young Anatolian cavalry officer, smart in a black, fur trimmed uniform, understood vaguely. He sat, not far from the duchess, between a Viennese soubrette, the toast of the hour, who nightly caused hearts to skip a beat when she danced across the boards of the Pavilion theater in the Petits Champs Assembly Gardens, and a russet bearded, hook nosed major of Albanian irregulars.

He turned to the latter, speaking in Turkish.

"Vultures!" he said, sweeping a hand about the veranda. "Carrion crows!"

"Their day will come, little brother." The other smiled with a sort of calm ferocity. "Allah! Even the fleetest horse cannot escape its tail."

"Sultan Abdul Hamid is old and weary."

"But Enver Pasha is young and eager—like a newborn flea."

"What are you talking about?" pouted the soubrette. "You know—the only Turkish word I understand is bakshish."

"Sorry, darling," the Albanian replied in fluent French. "We were just gossiping."

"About whom?"

"Mme. de Lubersac's new lover," he invented glibly.

"Who is he?"

"Her divorced husband."

The duchess had overheard.

"Delightful!" she commented. "Mme. de Lubersac is orthodox even in her infidelities."

So once more rippled the exchange of repartee from table to table, twinkling, vivacious, malicious, growing more dangerously personal as the array of empty bottles increased and, on the horizon, the stars melted gold and green against the misty silver softness of the moon.

IN a corner of the veranda Ellen McIntyre was amused and thrilled.

"No, no!" she said, as the elderly, white bearded man in the uniform of a Turkish admiral, who sat by her side, asked her a question, "please don't interrupt."

"But——"

"I want to listen, Watson Pasha. I think it's perfectly gorgeous."

"I've listened to their poisonous prattle for I don't know how many years—and I'm tired of it."

"Don't be so selfish. It's all new to me."

"Enthusiasm of youth!" He smiled; added: "Extreme youth!"

But she did not rise to the bait. She listened breathlessly while, with always that faint foundation of truth which is the real danger of gossip, reputations were torn to shreds, while voices rose to a feverish crescendo and hands gesticulated to accentuate spiced, degrading slander.

"O!" she whispered softly, as names and titles flew about, in each case accompanied by salty anecdote or malign, scurrile comment. "I had no idea so many titles existed—or so much scandal." She leaned toward Watson Pasha. "You know, if I should write home to Spokane and tell my cousin Mary Jane what company I'm in, the poor old dear would turn pea green with envy."

Again she listened intently to the gliding, slurring gossip:

"Heard about Grand Duchess Sonya's latest escapade in the fields of erotic clover?"

"You mean—ah—with that handsome Saharan chauffeur of hers?"

"Yes."

"Well—love is blind."

"Evidently color blind in the case of her imperial highness, principessa mia!"

"At times," grumbled Watson Pasha, "I feel ashamed of my own race. At times I think that these ardent young Turkish nationalists, who deliberately turn their faces away from Europe and look toward Asia, are right. Why—when it comes to moral decency——"

"You talk just like my uncle, the Methodist bishop," the girl interrupted with a disarming smile. "You're both—O—sort of topheavy with self-righteousness and—hush!" she warned suddenly as she heard her own name mentioned.

"Who——? The little girl with old Watson Pasha? McIntosh—or McIntyre—some such name. Arrived here yesterday morning."

"Alone, I understand."

"Yes."

"American?"

"Doubtless."

"How do you know?"

"Because her clothes are so supra-Parisian. Besides, I heard her talk to the desk clerk and the headwaiter. Insisted on room with private bath—and iced orange juice with her breakfast."

"Quaint race—these trans-Atlantics!"

"Very!"

THE conversation drifted on, mostly in French, and Ellen McIntyre was glad that her mother had been a Frenchwoman and that she spoke both languages with equal ease; glad furthermore that, with the ill bred brutality of well bred people who are socially too sure of themselves, the men and women on the veranda did not trouble to modulate their voices.

"Who is she? Adventuress or spy?"

"Perhaps only a tourist."

"Young girl—Constantinople—tourist—alone? My word—no!"

"Doesn't look ingenuous enough for an adventuress."

"Well—if spy, for whom?"

"United States, I suppose."

"Heavens!" exclaimed an attache of the British embassy. "Isn't there enough of a mess in Turkey without those nosey Yankees puttin' in their bally oar?"

"I hardly think she's a spy," drawled the duchess.

"Why not?"

"Not pretty enough."

"Ach Gott!" protested a young German in the braided green of a Turkish rifle regiment. "I think she is beautiful."

"My poor little Hans, I'm afraid you're still in the glorious salad days when all you need to grow lyrical is a brace of neat, silken ankles." The duchess turned to the French journalist. "I appeal to you, Armand."

The latter had a double reputation to uphold: as a connoisseur of women and a writer of elegant prose. He proceeded to do so. He spoke quite loudly. He really rather wanted Ellen to hear. It was one way of getting to know her—by apologizing afterward.

"You are both right—and both wrong," he said pretentiously.

"You're hedging, old dear," laughed the duchess. "Either Hans is right or I. Either she's beautiful or not."

"Not at all. You are both right and both wrong, I repeat."

"Carry on!"

"Draw a chart!"

"You see," the Frenchman continued, "her features are irregular, her nose a trifle too large, her complexion a bit freckled, her hair—O—nondescript——"

"Her eyes," interrupted the German stolidly, loyally, "are pansy blue!"

"Granted, my sentimental Prussian saber rattler! Still, the ensemble is not perfect. On the other hand"—Armand gestured with an eloquent, high veined hand—"she is that rare and delicious creation: a perfect racial type. She is American—a native of that so delightful country of cowboys and gold—from head to toes. Put her in a Kanaka grass kilt, an Arab burnoose, or a Roman toga—and she would still be American. Yes—the perfect racial, national type—the rarest thing in the world—and therefore beautiful!"

"AND that," whispered Watson Pasha to Ellen McIntyre, "is the first true word that little Parisian shrimp has spoken since they kicked him out of the Jockey club for playing cards too well. The moment I saw you yesterday morning I knew that—what's that high brow word? O, yes—psychologically speaking, I knew that you have been brought up on pies and ice water and stuffed turkey with cranberry sauce."

"And the moment I saw you," smiled the girl, "I knew that you've been raised—nor quite so psychologically speaking—on mint juleps and corn pone, in spite of your exotic Turkish uniform. Otherwise, when you addressed me in the hotel lobby, I would have replied, 'How dare you, sir?' and turned on my heels. You see"—she winked demurely—"I'm a well brought up little girl."

"Then," he laughed, "how do you happen to be here, in this hotbed of intrigues and lies and seven seven times seventy-seven vices?"

"Because I've been too well brought up."

"Hm——?" he puzzled.

"My dear father was Scotch—O—so excessively Scotch."

"Say no more. I understand."

"And my mother was French. Nor one of your gay Parisiennes, the sort whose pictures you see in the Sunday supplements, but a bourgeoise. And compared to the French middle classes—why—even a Mayflower conscience is positively ribald. Straight laced? I'll say they were. Father and mother by instinct, and I by compulsion. Then, a little over a year ago, both my parents passed away. They left me quite well off—I was an only child—and then——"

"Rebound? Repercussion? The spring released?"

"Call it that! Please don't misunderstand me!" Her blue eyes darkened. "I loved them—O—so dearly. But—" she shrugged her shoulders.

"Tired of home cooking and home prayers, eh?"

"I guess so. At all events, one day, back home in Spokane, I saw a steamship advertisement: Constantinople—the Golden Horn—camels, mosques, turbans—all that, you know. So I made up my mind, bought me a ticket, and here I am!"

"Here you are at a most inopportune moment, child," he said gravely.

"Why?"

He lowered his voice:

"How thrillingly exciting!"

Gradually the veranda of the Megatherium-Palace hotel cleared of people. The night life claimed them. Around the corner in the Grande Rue de Pera and the Rue de Kabristan a make believe Paris charged gold instead of silver for inferior German champagne, Oregon salmon roe masquerading as genuine Astrakhan caviare, Bourbon whisky that had never even heard of Kentucky's blue grass, and French food martyrized by Greek cooks still odorous with the classic but goatish smell of their ancestral hills. Down there the Russian ballet came from the Odessa ghetto, the gypsy music from the Liverpool slums, the cocottes from all the world, and only the prowling, whining beggars, the crippled and blind and lepers, were native born. Down there baroque, electric signs, first introduced into the orient by a nostalgic Chicago drummer longing for the glare of the loop, hiccoughed through the sooty dusk with luminous, colored flames, purple and crimson and mandarin blue and saffron as sharp as the thrust of a knife, throwing off shavings of nervous, quivering light.

THE men and women paid their bills; picked up wraps, hats, sticks.

"Coming, principessa mia?"

"Rather!"

"Going to the Baltazzis?"

"After a while. First to the Odeon."

"Righto! The night is young!"

They fluttered hectically, in a self-immolating frenzy of pleasure, like moths to the spurt of the gas jet.

The trouble with them was that they were seldom happy unless their amusement took tangible shape. They had to have blatantly outward proof of the fact that they were enjoying themselves: a high powered automobile, a front seat in the orchestra stalls, a bottle of wine, a chair in a card game, a woman's painted smile. They could not be happy doing nothing. They were typically occidental, thoroughly Nordic.

There was tonight, as every night, a table of baccarat at the Jockey club, and the latest Roumanian oil millionaire waiting to be fleeced; a famous Brussels dancer giving a private, very private, performance at the Odeon in the Grande Rue de Pera; a notoriously lewd Armenian theatrical company playing to packed houses across the bridge at the Shehzadi Bashi; a peacock fight, with the gaudy birds wearing golden, razor sharp spurs and driven to madness by secret drugs, organized by a Russian prince with a historical name; a supper dance at the Baltazzis; an unsavory entertainment arranged by a German woman spy for the undoing of a French artillery instructor in the Turkish army; a similar entertainment with the one difference that the woman spy was French and the military instructor German; a late reception, with a flood of champagne to loosen diplomatic tongues at the Austrian embassy; and half a dozen other parties.

It was their life at home, in Berlin, Paris, Vienna, London, Moscow.

They demanded it here, on Asia's patient, slightly sardonic threshold.

So they drifted away with laughter and high pitched voices, with rattling sabers and hooting motor horns, a symphony of sounds that clashed ludicrously with the chant of the turbaned Moslem priest calling the faithful to evening prayer from the minaret of Sultan Mahmoud's mosque.

Even the Levantine waiters left.

Their places were taken by four or five night waiters, big, frizzy, plum colored Saharan and Soudanese negroes, more or less recent converts to Islam, still showing signs of heathenish, jungly savagery in filed teeth and blue tattoo marks, decorating low foreheads and flat noses.

There was chiefly one—Ellen had noticed him before—who was rather striking looking, elderly, very large, very black, with kinky, white hair, a vivid, crooked scar running from his left eye, blotting it out, in a crimson, ragged smear to the right corner of his mouth, which was twisted and awry as with the memory of terrible, unforgettable pain.

"Different from our colored brethren back home," commented Ellen McIntyre to Watson Pasha. "All he needs is a sheaf of spears and a lion's pelt to make him seem like an Ethiopian emperor."

"Maybe," came the dry reply. "But, emperor or not, I want a match." He called to the Negro in Turkish: "Hey, there—what's-your-name!"

"I am Hassan, effendi!" The man approached and salaamed.

"A match, Hassan."

"Listen is obey, effendi!"

Hassan lit the other's cigar, then hovered unobtrusively in the background.

The two Americans were now alone on the hotel veranda, except for the waiters and a man, a few tables away, who was sipping a glass of iced coffee and smoking a cigaret in a six inch holder of emerald green, transparent jade.

A singularly attractive man, Ellen thought him, in a lawless way. His lean, clean shaven, hawkish face was shadowed by an immense busby of white fur. His broad shouldered, slim hipped body was in a gorgeous, high waisted Circassian coat of cherry red silk with long, flaring, plaited skirts hanging down to the black patent leather riding boots. He wore a hiltless, gold sheathed falchion sword suspended from a jeweled shoulder strap, and across his chest a double row of ivory cartridge boxes.

The man was unmistakably Asiatic. The only European touch was his monocle. For the last hour—he had been alone, had taken hardly any part in the table to table conversation, and seemed to be waiting for somebody—he had used his eyeglass freely and frequently, staring at Ellen in a sort of naive, open, shameless manner which amused while it angered her.

He was staring at her this very moment, calmly adjusting his monocle to get a better focus.

Rather impatiently she turned away toward Watson Pasha, who was oblivious to the by-play.

"If you were a regular F. F. V.," she smiled, "you would ask me out somewhere—perhaps to the theater."

"Sorry!" he replied. "But I have some very important government business to attend to later on, and I don't happen to be an F. F. V."

"Why—I thought you were a Virginian?"

"Guilty! But all Virginians are not F. F. V.'s, and all southerners did not own a million slaves 'befoh de wah.' I'm the other kind."

HE told her how many years ago he had been the son of a poor mountain farmer in Albemarle county and how, at the outbreak of the civil war—"I was only a kid, but I'd never seen the ocean, and here was my chance"—he had enlisted in the confederate navy, rising to the rank of gunner's mate. Lee's surrender had found him bitter and irreconcilable. So he had left America and had gone to Constantinople during the days of Sultan Abdul Aziz, and today he was admiral in chief of the Turkish navy and a close personal friend of the reigning sultan, Abdul Hamid—"and still a good hard shell Baptist!" he added.

"A Baptist—and in the service of the Unspeakable Turk?" teased the girl.

"Call a dog a bad name," he exclaimed. He was as excited and as sincere as if somebody had denied in his presence that Stonewall Jackson was the most dashing trooper who ever forked a saddle. "In the past Turkey has committed grave faults, has oppressed racial and religious minorities. Doubtless. But so has England oppressed the Irish Catholics, France the Huguenots, Germany the Poles and Alsatians, Austria the Bohemians and Hungarians, and Russia the Jews. On the other hand, throughout the centuries, the Turks gave asylum to those persecuted by other lands: to the Spanish Jews driven out by King Ferdinand; to hundreds of thousands of dissenting Christians hounded by the Hapsburgs; to the tribes of the Caucasus after Russia stole their hills and commenced to civilize them with steel and graft and vodka, that immortal Slav trinity. Not only persecuted races—individuals, too, without a friend, without a home, without a chance, have been made welcome by the Osmanli sultans time and again. Turkey is the port of missing men, the haven of broken gentlemen."

"Bravo, bravo!" laughed the girl. "I'll say you are convincing!"

"Old age is garrulous. I didn't mean to bore you, child, to talk you to death. But I am grateful to Turkey. Heavens—when I think back! 'Shiftless Cal Watson,' they called my dad. And—" with an almost boyish smile, half self-conscious, half proud—"look at me today!"

"Watson Pasha! Perfectly bully!" Ellen was enjoying herself. This was romance indeed, she thought, vivid, fantastic, alive, and she said so: "The steamship ads didn't lie after all. Turkey is romantic."

"I guess so," he admitted.

"Tell me—more! And show me—some!"

"By 'some' you mean somebody younger than I?"

"O——"

"No harm done! All right. I'll introduce young O'Malley to you. He is romance with a fat capital R."

"O'Malley?" She made a little grimace. "Sounds like a traffic cop. I wouldn't call him romantic."

"Wouldn't you?"

"Well—he's Irish, isn't he?"

"Is a duck a bird? But, as to his being a traffic cop, you've got another guess coming. The particular O'Malley of whom I am speaking has a French title in front of his name and a Turkish title in back. 'Jean-Marie Marquis O'Malley Pasha'—there you have the whole of him."

"Good enough. Still—I never cared much for the Irish."

"Don't you dare tell him so when you meet him. He is touchy and hot headed. His ancestors left Limerick several centuries ago. But to this day he speaks of Ireland—which he has never seen except, maybe, in his dreams—as the 'old country,' and he pronounces English, not to mention Turkish, Arabic, and French, with

The ARBITER

By Henry C. Rowland

In the Mind of the Suspected Man, James Hughes Read the True Story of the Killing of Jules Roux; and His Powers Put the Psychic Detective in a Strange Predicament

AS I slammed out of the taxi in a rage at the conclusion of Jacques Hughes' part in the Bogoroff case, there was at least the consolation that my relations with Jacques were no longer ambiguous.

In the beginning of my description of this case I've made some mention of the false position existing between us. It is not only difficult but trying to be good friends with a man while at the same time making every effort to catch him up and prove him a fraud. The fact that I had frankly declared such an objective did not help much because, for one thing, I doubted that Jacques believed I would really go so far as that when it came to the scratch, and, for another, I doubted it myself.

It had been impossible to resist that same sneaking fondness that I had felt for this sui generis personality even when we were little boys together in the district schoolhouse near Wiscasset, and now as a grown man the power of Jacques' curious fascination was far greater because he had gained in force and magnetism. Moreover, he had been a timid boy, or at least passed for such by our crude standards, but he now proved himself to have developed into anything but a timid man. The very nature of his service to the police and the broadcast exploitation of it had reached a point where he lived and moved and had his being in constant danger of assassination. But so far as one could see, this sinister peril left him entirely unmoved.

My anger on leaving him as I did was not unnatural. For one thing, it was humiliating enough to have him refer to the case that I had been so sure was bound to trap him as "child's play," that did not require the assistance of a clairvoyant, and on that account to cut short his seance and leave the cleaning up of it to the police.

But what stung me more was his bland revealing of the part that I had played in it to be fiasco so far as concerned the saving of the lives of Dr. Goransko and himself. Jacques had not said this in so many words, but I had sense enough to get it. It had been this that had led me to put our relations on a distinct basis and one on which our friendship was to play no further part.

You can, therefore, imagine how I felt when, on getting back to my hotel a little later, I found his note asking if I were too angry to assist in the unraveling of another case, "assist" to be taken in the French sense which does not mean to aid, but merely to be an intelligent (if possible) spectator.

At first I was inclined to send him to the devil. I now despaired of catching him up. He was too subtle, had too many exits to his burrow. It was like trying to tie a knot in an eel. Then, as I grew calmer, it occurred to me that he had not claimed any clairvoyance in this Bogoroff case, this "child's play." After all, I was over there for my paper and owed it to those who paid me to turn up something worth while.

The girl struggled through to come, not on the body of the dead boar, but that of her beloved father.

SO, when in the morning I got another note to say that Pervier was coming to the studio at eleven, I threw my "peeve" into the discard, and went over to Jacques' studio at a little after ten and was greeted as if there had been no rupture at all in our relations. Jacques appeared to have forgot my bad words and the affair that had provoked them. He seemed thoughtful and a little distrait.

"This new thing is going to tax my powers, Johnny. It's an old case reopened. Happened last December. The police have a quiet little way of dropping a thing cold when they feel they haven't got enough to warrant an arrest, much less a conviction, then keeping a close but unostentatious watch on the parties concerned to see what may develop when all hands are lulled into a false sense of security. That's all right for them, but it makes it hard for me. The mental impressions for the time get blurred by subsequent interests and events, like a multiple exposure on a photographic plate."

Another way out, I thought, but I merely asked what the case might be about.

"Better wait for Pervier," Jacques said. "I was in Italy at the time and saw no more than the briefest of accounts in the Paris Herald. That was before I'd started my meteoric flight as a mind reader."

Pervier arrived as usual on the dot, made his perfunctory salutations with no mention at all of the events of the day before, and began his narration of facts precisely as one turns the page of a police dossier.

Monsieur Jules Roux had been before the war a prosperous industriel whose hardware factories were in the province of the Yonne. He had inherited the business from his uncle, and as a young man he had, for the sake of experience, served an apprenticeship in one of the big plants in Sheffield, England, where he was promoted to assistant shop superintendent. At the age of twenty-four he had married the young and beautiful daughter of his chief.

A year later, on the death of his uncle, he had returned to France fully equipped to manage his inheritance, bringing with him his wife and two months old baby, a girl who was christened Edith Anne Louise.

Roux's English wife, as the French say of plants, "did not please herself" in this foreign soil. She lost her bloom and died when her daughter was ten years old, two years before the war. During the stormy epoch her father sent Edith to a convent boarding school in England, where she remained until after the armistice.

As was to be expected, Roux added enormously and in an entirely creditable manner to a fortune already considerable, and shortly after his daughter's return he married a beautiful young French woman of the gay set, waiving a dot that in any case would not have been forthcoming, as the father of his bride, a man of title, Vicomte de Tournai, died of a stroke not long after the marriage. Roux was at this time a man of fifty, but vigorous. Rather more than that, his neighbors described him "un bel homme, fort comme un boef." This didn't precisely describe him, as, though strong and handsome, his animal type was rather that of a wild boar than an ox. He was a great sportsman and an ardent hunter of the "sanglier" or wild boar that he somewhat resembled and in the season pursued with friends in the forest of Nitry hard by.

EDITH had been delighted with her father's marriage. She had expected him to marry, and may have dreaded lest he choose badly some commonplace, tiresome person or one of inferior station. The girl was, therefore, overjoyed with a stepmother whose family was of the old nobility, gay, charming, and only a few years older than herself.

For a year or two things went smoothly. Roux in remarrying had the sense to make a new deal all round and to see that all in close contact with him shared in the renaissance. He shifted his commercial burdens to the shoulders of a worthy and competent young man, bought an old and handsome estate near Auxerre, a chateau that was such more in the local sense than in the touring one, and modernized and renovated it without the sacrifice of any picturesque features. His young wife seemed to be entirely content with country life, because Paris was only a short four hours in the big Peugeot car, and her husband always ready to run up for shopping on the rue de la Paix and the latest piece de theatre.

Edith invariably went with them. She got on all the better with her stepmother because they were so entirely dissimilar, Edith more English than most English girls, not only temperamentally but in her British swing and swagger and love of rough tweeds and cold air and colder baths, knocking about the property at all hours with a trail of Airedales and police dogs in attendance. She should really have been named Diana, because she looked and acted the part of that sylvan goddess.

As a matter of fact, the new chatelaine and Edith should have changed names, that of Madame Roux being Diane, though Proserpine would better have fitted her. She was herself the last cry of the new chic, which is not, as some suppose, the garçonne sort. In a word, she was intensely feminine, soignee to the point of miracle, so that no exercise or emotion or even a romp with her camarade stepdaughter could put a boucle amiss in her close heavy ondulé coiffure. Edith had a good word for her, which was 'trig.' Her Parisian friends called her bébé incassable, though she was more of a rubber doll than of a bisque or papier maché one. She was the sort to make men want to try to rumple, if only to discover if she were rumpleable.

So here was a perfectly splendid state of affairs and everybody having a good time without getting cross. Country life of the real kind. Intense interest in all the fascinating things that the house and outbuildings contained, some saddle horses, cows, poultry, the garage with its details, a little stream that spun a turbine so that it didn't matter whether the local beer, ice and electric factory marched or not. A big fireplace with logs that came to the root, dogs on the rug, Roux examining his guns and fishing tackle or stopping to look at one of the girls, wife or daughter, and thinking how blest he was to have them both, the flare from the fire reflecting that of ardent possession in his eyes.

Then in the spring, apricots, peaches, and pears in the season ripening against the walls where the trees that bore them were straddled out with the geometrical precision of some art object displayed in the window of Lalique on the Place Vendome.

Roux, standing with his muscular legs apart regarding them, ruthlessly plucking off the more chetive to demonstrate the perfection of what he left. Edith and Diane laughing at him, he gathering one under either arm and husbanding them to the garage, throwing them into a car with an armful of rugs after them and starting off to the junction at Laroche to meet some city guest, run down for a fishing party.

He collected one too many of these friends, a suave and polished man who was morally rotten to the core. His name was good enough, perhaps the only one left, de Courcey, which in some curious way became Churchill in England, defying all laws of nomenclature. He had been born in Algiers, his father a colonel in the French army; and, like all Creoles, he was possessed of that amazing suppleness that is almost an endowment of the devil gods of Africa and enables one to sift in between the molecular structure of material fabrics.

At any rate, he walked into that household, looked over Edith and Diane, tried Edith first as a sort of experiment, perhaps; then, finding her wave length not quite adjustable, transferred his attack to Diane, meantime having built himself a sort of emplacement in the esteem of M. Roux.

There can be no question that de Courcey fascinated Roux. He could talk tractors or chickens to his host without changing his gait. He could talk guns to him, then go out to the trap and break clay pigeons in endless succession before they were half way to the limit line. As for chickens, he went so far as to institute a little cocking main, a sanguinary sport forgotten except in the south of France. And not content with the gaffe, he brought down from Paris some slashers that he had managed to get somewhere, and showed Roux how to throw the figure eight hitches that held them securely.

He showed Diane how to use her buffer without reddening her finger tips, and he showed Edith how to cure her Basset of the demangeaison rouge, by touching each mangey ulcer with creosote.

He showed the cook how to make a ham souffle properly by macerating the raw meat fiber with a round cobblestone before whipping it into the mousse of cream and eggs. He managed to show everybody some new trick about what they thought they knew most. And all the time he was trying to make up his mind which one of Roux's girls to take. Edith offered more difficulties, because her mind was so English that he seemed to mushroom against it. That made her more interesting, but at the same time more fatiguing. So he finally picked on Diane.

Aaron Burr, walking into the house of Blennerhasset down there on his island in the river, could have sat at his feet and learned the rudiments of the game. To compare the two is rather like comparing the assault of a Don Juan with a dose of Chagres fever. Obi, the African devil god, was backing this Algerian with a noble name.

Now all of this is my own elaboration of Pervier's bald statement of facts—as if somebody set up props for a mise-en-scene and then somebody else came along and draped them. It rather carries me away, because I got the whole picture so convincingly.

ROUX was actionnaire of a circle of a dozen who had the shooting privileges of the forest of Nitry. They were all men of his type, a wholesome crowd, mostly wine growers with the juge de la paix and the notaire and a doctor or two, and sometimes the Prefet honored them with his presence. They shot the preserve once every two weeks through the season, the game mostly sanglier, wild boar having become even more plentiful since the war, when so many were driven down from the Argonne and the Ardennes, even from the Vosges. There were also chevreuils, though these pretty little roebuck were so much beloved that many of the local chasseurs let them pass by rather than slay. Then there were a lot of foxes and hare and a good many partridges in the edge of the wood, the French partridge being more like our quail than grouse.

The battue, or drive, was not popular. The French, unlike the English, are real sportsmen and do not like the slaughter of driven game. But there is something about a sanglier that seems to invite killing. A big old solitaire is such a wicked brute with the enormous grizzled head that is about a third of him with its curved, whetted defenses, tusks that can disembowel a dog as neatly as a butcher opens the pig himself, and his glinting, reddened, little eyes with their projection of hatred scarcely equalled except in the human species.

The chase à sanglier at Nitry was a jolly event, all hands meeting at the little cabane in the woods, Roux sometimes lugging his chef for the ten-thirty déjeuner, or, if that functionary was in demand, stopping to pick up the patron of the hotel, whose name befittingly was Paillard. Each hunter brought a dog or two and a little bon-bon, a tiny wooden barrel holding about two litres of his best vintage, reserved for family functions, christenings, weddings, funerals.

The huntsman had already "done the woods," discovered about what game was there and where it lay. With his picquér he went off towing a string of dogs and with his cors de chasse slung over his shoulder, this French horn later to announce in sweet bass mystic notes the character of game afoot. He did not go off thirsty.

Then the actionnaires ate an enormous déjeuner cooked partly on the charcoal brazier outside and partly on a tin American stove in the cabane. Everybody brought something good. The luncheon started with hors d'œuvres, worked its way through omelet aux fines herbes, leg of lamb with beans, sausage from the grill, salade, cheeses of the region or out of it, jam, huge blocks of bread, and wine, wine, wine. Wine that could not be bought in any market of the world, never mind where. Wine that was not for sale, thank you, there still being two commodities that are not always for sale, wine and women. Song was given away.

Then afterwards, flushed and jovial, the party trooped out to take stations in the lanes cut through forest, "belly to the bush," to shoot into the woods or whip about and shoot into it on the other side, never up and down the allée. Seeing them troop out, one could appreciate the sense of the gun strap that held the piece muzzle in air.

IN such a circle as this, ladies were not included. Women would have cramped their style. No man present could have told a risqué story in the presence of their womankind. As a matter of fact, while some of their expressions were raw, their stories were not. There was wit and laughter, but no vice. Hardy, healthy, wholesome parties, and often a surprisingly serious trend to the conversation. At the risk of being banal, one may say that here was represented the backbone of French with the best part of its brain attached, the putrid parts of it not there, confined to the great centers for the entertainment of foreigners.

But in the case of feminine assistance, while wives or daughters never came to the déjeuner, they often drove over in the afternoon to skirt the chasse. A communal road ran through the middle of it, and they sometimes went there to stop and listen. From far over in some swale would come the drifting notes of the horn, then the clamor of the dogs, coming, going, sometimes silenced for a brief interval when at a loss, to be started by the ill-bred yapping of the mutt of the pack that happened to be longer on sense if short in technique, and the whole riot in full cry again.

Then from somewhere a bang. If successful, this would be followed by a triumphant "A la lie! A la lie!" resonantly echoing through the arcades. More often it merely excited the vociferous pack of rough coated near hounds, which would impress the foreign dog lover as some sort of triangle at the apices of which stood rough coated terrier, retriever and hound, but of which the brown sympathetic eyes had that deep honest lointaine student look, thoughtful, painstaking, modest and sincere. And when one of them fell afoul of the tusk of a sanglier, eyes were dimmed and tears were shed.

To get back to a chase just as old and far more cruel—the woman hunt—de Courcey had become a sort of institution as a week-end guest. He was on the bourse, stockbroker, speculator, something of that sort, trading in values instead of supplying commodities to be valued, like Roux. Betting on what other men's products might or might not be worth. Apparently he was a good guesser, as he ran down always in his chic two seated roadster. He was still making love to both of the young women, but discreetly, so far as Pervier was able to report.

At any rate, there had been no scandal, no quarrel reported, and little gossip, which for a provincial coterie is saying a great deal. De Courcey had become one of those family friends less intimate than frequent. The ladies found him everything that was entertaining, while Roux liked him because he was so ardent a sportsman and so good a shot. De Courcey's war record was creditable if not brilliant, and had won him a decoration or two, general staff work that had to do with figures.

About three times a year Roux made the rounds of some of his agencies as the sort of super-commercial traveler. He went en auto, and the two young women usually accompanied him. But this December the weather became so villainous that Diane and Edith decided not to go, saying if it improved they might meet him at some point in his itinerary.

Then two days after he had left, de Courcey came down. In such a family it was stretching the conventions a little for him to remain under the same roof in the absence of the master, but as the man had by this time become a sort of habitué and also because there were at that moment a good many tramps going over the road, though most of these chemineaux were decent enough workmen looking for jobs somewhere, the two young women were justified in wanting a protector.

THEN something untoward happened. Either the servants would not or could not tell Pervier what it was about, but there was a violent quarrel between Edith and Diane. It occurred behind Diane's locked door, but the altercation was stormy enough to wake everybody up, this disturbance from Diane's screams. It would look as if the imperious, athletic, and distinctly British Edith had knocked her stepmother about a little, though Diane showed no physical traces of having been brutalizée. De Courcey professed to have heard nothing at all, to be in ignorance of any quarrel then or later. The room he occupied was at the far end of the building in a wing, so his statement may have been true.

At any rate, a subsequent hostility was observable between Edith and Diane. Then Roux cut short his tournee and returned, giving the bad weather as excuse. He may have been informed by telegram of trouble at home. Pervier did not know, but he said that an examination of telegraphic records showed that Roux had received one in Amiens that read: "Ils sont dans les vignes les moineaux" (the sparrows are in the vines), sent from the town where he had his factories, and signed Durand. In the Bureau de Poste, where it was sent, the operator said it had been presented, to the best of his memory, by a man who looked like a tramp or laborer out of work.

A number of theories might be built on this message, "the sparrows are in the vineyards." Of course, there were no vines for the sparrows to empest in December. This line is the first verse of a rough old doggerel song that goes to a sort of French hunting horn lyric:

Ils sont dans les vignes, les moineaux
Ils sont dans les vign-es (bis)
Ils mangeant les raisins, ils laissent les pepins
Dans les vign-es.

It is not an elegant song, as it proceeds. Not at all the sort of thing a well bred young girl would be apt to send her father, whatever the significance.

At this moment there was dissatisfaction with a threatened strike in the Roux plant, but its manager, Paul Gailliardin, disclaimed all knowledge of the telegram. Roux was liked by his employes—rather over indulgent, many said—and some workmen might have sent it. The signature "Durand" was rather like signing "Smith" in America. There were several Durands in the plant, but all denied sending the dispatch, and could prove alibis at the hour it had been sent, being at their jobs.

Whatever the source, it appeared to have brought Roux home that same day. He had run in his powerful car from Amiens through Paris, where he stopped for a hasty luncheon chez Lavenue, then on via Fontainebleau. He had not sent word of his coming, nor did he mention his receipt of the dispatch.

The butler Anatole, long in the family service, reported to Pervier that his master arrived a little preoccupied perhaps, but in good enough spirits. M. de Courcey was still at the château and greeted him with his usual bluff friendliness. "Ca va, mon vieux?" Roux told his wife at table that he had got a little inquiet about affairs at the plant.

TWO days later there was a boar hunt in the forest. It was a clear day, but cold, with dark heavy clouds that promised snow. De Courcey had stopped on for the hunt. Diane and Edith appeared to have patched up their quarrel, so that later in the afternoon when Edith proposed that they take her two seated runabout and drive over the road through the forest, Diane's plea that it was too cold seemed a natural excuse. She lacked the hardiness of her stepdaughter, who was used to the harsh north of England climate.

Edith, therefore, went alone. She liked to hear the pack and the excitement of the chase even when detached. Once or twice she had seen boar killed from the side of the road where the chasseurs sometimes stationed themselves, and often she had viewed the animals as they broke cover. This day she carried a heavy steamer rug to keep warm while waiting.

On this occasion the sport proved better than usual. Three boar were killed before three o'clock. One of them as a big old solitaire, near the record size and so tough that he was shot at by four members of the party before brought down by a ball from the gun of De Courcey. Shot guns are used, a big ball set in a wad so as not to burst the choke of the right barrel, and a cartridge of chevrotine, buck shot, in the left. Owing to thick underbrush, the range is usually point blank, and rifles are barred because of dangerous long range. Also one might see fit to fire at a fox, in that region a bête nuisible, vermin that is the worst of poachers. One cannot ride to hounds because of the rough cover and vineyard stakes in the open.

Then, as it was getting dark, another boar was started. In its doublings and zig-zags the animal twice crossed the road, once seen by Edith. It was a big tusker. Presently, not far from the road, two shots rang out. Edith slipped from her car and entered a lane hard by, hoping to be in at the death. About five minutes later she heard a fusillade of shots in quick succession as if from several guns near together, then some seconds later the cry, "A la lie," sounding "ah-lah-leeeee."

But a moment later there came a wilder, a frantic, terrified shout for help. "Secours—secours—venez vite—vite—vite——"

EDITH dashed back into the bush, a tangle of vines and brambled creepers woven amongst a growth of acacia saplings with their fearful thorns. The ground right here was sunk a little, marshy and boggy. With the presage of some fearful disaster, the girl struggled through to come presently, not on the body of the dead boar, but that of her beloved father. Beside it, frantic with horror and dismay, stood De Courcey.

Others of the party were crashing up from various directions, and at Edith's wild scream of anguish they plunged on, regardless of stabs and scratches from the locust thorns. It seemed evident enough that in the gathering gloom De Courcey had mistaken his host for the wounded boar, fired into him, then plunged into the sousbois, reloading his piece to keep the quarry in sight and bring it down.

But De Courcey's protestations that he had done nothing of the sort were almost immediately proved by the discovery of the dead boar, its carcass showing seven buckshot holes. It lay about fifty yards ahead of the course that must have been followed by poor Roux. Then a pallid and shaken chasseur who had been De Courcey's neighbor on the right, the side away from the road, admitted to having fired the last of the fusillade of shots, but, as he protested, weepingly, at the boar. He was an experienced hunter, and could not be mistaken.

Nobody denied this, though heads were shaken. It was really pretty dark, too dark to have continued the chase. And the place was thick. In the anguish of the moment and that of Edith's terrible grief, for all knew how she adored her father, nobody tried to tally up the number of shots fired. It was just another of those tragic shooting accidents that make men forswear cruel sport.

With bowed heads the body of Roux was carried out to the roadside, when a doctor of the party went quickly to fetch his car. The bleached De Courcey tried to persuade Edith to let him drive her home, but suddenly she thrust him away, sprang into her runabout, and dashed off so blindly that those present feared another casualty. She reached home and, without meeting Diane or even reporting what had happened, stumbled to her room and locked herself in. Shortly afterward the doctor arrived with the corpse, and the house rang to the lamentations of Diane.

There arose then among the stricken members of the shooting party a hot debate as to the number of shots actually fired, not that any considered that this had much importance. Some claimed to have heard seven shots, others eight. But as seven only could be accounted for, the minority of three who maintained there had been eight admitted possible error; more than that, unquestionable error. The unfortunate who stated frankly that he had fired the last shot said also that he had fired the first two, then reloaded, shoved into the underbrush, and fired again on catching a later glimpse of the boar at about seventy-five meters, a long shot.

Both barrels of Roux's and De Courcey's guns had been fired. Roux, according to De Courcey, had fired before himself, "pan-pan," almost together. The boar had turned then sharply, dashed toward De Courcey, who fired more widely spaced, when the animal had rushed back past Roux again, or struggled past, already mortally hit. De Courcey had caught a glimpse a moment later of what he thought to be the dead body of the boar, when he had cried "A la lie." Then on drawing near he had discovered to his horror that it was the body of his genial host, shot through both heart and brain.

So there the case stood. There was more pity than blame for M. Sermizelles, the innocent slayer, especially as Roux, a robust man, had, on discovering about an hour earlier that De Courcey seemed to be chilled, insisted on changing his padded old shooting coat for De Courcey's thin, stylish one that was a light shade of khaki, and would make a good target in the dimming light. And Roux, thick bodied, would be proceeding in low, stooping fashion. He and De Courcey were of approximate dimensions, but De Courcey fattish where Roux was of burly muscular physique.

Being a decent lot, nobody ventured to express what may have been in the minds of all, that De Courcey was a good deal at the Roux chateau, even there in the absence of Roux, who might have found it wise to cut short his business trip and return unannounced on that account. Nobody ventured to suggest that Roux was very rich, getting on to sixty, a rough old chap at times, and his beautiful wife more than thirty years younger, only about four years younger than De Courcey. None even hinted that De Courcey's affairs were in precarious condition; that he was pretty deeply in debt.

BUT the police considered all of that. They were polite enough to ask no injurious questions, possibly because there was not much need. In the end, M. Sermizelles came forward and made a statement to the effect that on due deliberation there could be no further doubt that he had shot and killed by accident, or at least by error, his beloved friend and neighbor, Jules Roux.

This did not fool anybody, not even the insurance company that covers the risks contre les tiers, against other parties that he may wound or kill in precisely such a way, invariably taken out by the French sportsman as by the automobilist. A man is expected to recover against his most intimate friend if shot by him, or if tilted out of his car, even though said friend and owner has lent it to him, and is not in it at the time. Curious, but not a bad plan, all things considered.

Nobody having any other charges to prefer, the case was dropped, for the time being. But the prefecture waited and watched. It lifted one eye when Edith, deep in melancholia almost to the point of stupor, went en retraite to a sort of convent sanitarium, or nursing home. It lifted the other as De Courcey's encouraging efforts to console the beautiful young widow became more pronounced.

And now the prefecture suddenly opened both eyes, and sat up at the unofficial announcement, only six months after the tragedy, that Madame Diane Roux was soon to marry Louis Maurice Jeanne-Marie de Courcey, and that the chateau was being offered for sale. Such impatience, and in such bad taste! There was nothing more to be got out of M. Sermizelles, however disgusted he might be at this coldbloodedness of the widow of his dear lifelong friend, fallen through error by his hand. Sermizelle's parti pris was final when he had made his deposition. No sense in laying himself open to attack from the insurance company that had been obliged to pay.

But the case was quietly reopened when a sister at the religious retreat, on rummaging Edith's trunk for a piece of old lace mislaid, came on a note folded into the bosom of a blouse. It was an impassioned love letter of a sort no man would dare to write unless a successful lover, and it contained this significant passage:

"One can only hope and wait. As the English say: 'Accidents will happen in the best regulated of families.' Recklessness in sports, in riding and driving over the road, and other ways. Perhaps if we both focus the power of our minds—but I am indiscreet, and to you unjust, my adorée. Your kind heart would not permit. Sometimes I think that I am a little insane from too much longing—the unrest of the days and nights between."

The good sister sent a copy of this note to the prefecture, which immediately demanded, with all due politeness, the original. It was in De Courcey's affected English square hand. Its date was the day before De Courcey's arrival at the chateau, the date of Edith's quarrel with Diane.

De Courcey was politely invited to come to the prefecture and talk things over. He was not warned that his mind might be required to talk them over with that of Monsieur Jacques Ugh-es. So there we were.

FOR the first time in my observation of his case Jacques did not immediately consent to the séance in his usual nonchalant way.

Another departure was that he seemed dissatisfied with the facts that Pervier had laid before him, so that instead of remaining silent so far as concerned any further information he asked, as if irrelevantly: "What is the present condition of Edith Roux?"

Roux was very rich, getting onto sixty; his beautiful wife [illegible]ears younger, and about

e was that he seemed dissatisfied
Pervier had laid before him, so he asked, as if irrelevantly: "What tion of Edith Roux?"

"Most lamentable, monsieur. I have talked to the Mère Supérieure, who tells me her state of melancholia persists. The young lady has from the first declined all efforts at consolation, even of a religious sort. She is still in what the supérieure describes as unreconciled, unsubmissive. Ma'mselle declares that God has abandoned her, and that she has no longer faith."

"In that case," Jacques murmured, "I wonder that they consent to keep her there."

"They ascribe it to mental derangement, and say that she is not responsible; that she remains distraught from grief. Of course, I did not attempt to see her. Perhaps I have not sufficiently emphasized the intensity of Ma'mselle Edith's devotion to her father. Evidently it was stronger than her religious feeling, though she was a good Catholic. But it offers her no solace in her grief."

Jacques drummed on the table with his long and sensitive finger tips.

"You say that De Courcey will be there at two o'clock?"

"Unless his courage fails him, monsieur."

"Very well, I'll be there," Jacques said briefly.

Pervier rose, bowed, and withdrew. Jacques sat drumming on the table with his fingers, his face expressing nothing but gloom. I could discover in his rather mobile features no doubt, uncertainty, nervousness, nothing but a heavy dejection. Feeling my eyes on him, he roused.

"I hate this, Johnny. Looks as if De Courcey had also for temptation, doesn't it? If his mind tells me he did, then it's the guillotine, as a man of his sort is certain to confess when you check up every item on him. Don't know why they should, but they do."

"Well, in that case he's got it coming," I said.

"Yes, I suppose so, even if it was no more than one of those swift, mad, insistent impulses. The devil in an unguarded moment. He would never have written what he did in that billet doux if he'd made up his mind at that time. The fault of letting one's mind harbor such a thought, even for a second. O, the shrieking necessity for mental discipline! But, there, I'm in danger of relaxing my own. Thinking about the case and, what's worse, talking about it. Let's take a walk, then go to some noisy place for luncheon. Paillard's or the Ritz."

We did that thing. Later the same old dreary room, that mental inquisition chamber that was getting on my nerves. I wondered that Jacques had any left.

He made brief. De Courcey was ushered in. He was the sort of youngish homme de monde I had expected, rather fat, but chic and soigne. At sight of Jacques he raised his eyebrows, but aside from a not unnatural pallor seemed composed and unafraid. Jacques seated himself opposite, laid his hands lightly on either side of his well groomed head, looked a moment into his blue eyes, then said simply:

"The mind of Monsieur de Courcey assures me he did not commit this crime. He was overwhelmed with astonishment and horror to come upon the dead body of Monsieur Roux, where he had expected to find the boar. The mentality of this man depicts itself to me as that of an individual who, though an egoist and opportunist, has nothing of the murderer, and is, where his selfish interests are not opposed, of rather kindly nature. That is all, messieurs."

He rose. All of those present looked surprised, with the exception of De Courcey. He nodded slightly to himself, but with no expression of triumph or complacency. In fact, his face was sad.

AS Jacques invariably declined further questioning, we took our leave. Of course, his findings had no direct legal value, but by this time they had come to carry tremendous weight. All things considered in the present instance, I think everybody was relieved. The case had not come to trial—would not I thought—and since there was no Procureur de la Republique striving to secure a conviction, it was more gratifying to accept the catastrophe as accidental than as criminal.

I said as much to Jacques when we got back to the studio. He nodded in a moody, abstracted way.

sixty; his beautiful wife mor[illegible]rs younger, and about four years younger than De Courcey.

"Why, yes, Johnny—if only we could accept that."

"What do you mean?" I asked sharply.

"Just that. Now that I know that De Courcey did not kill Roux, there is only one person that could have done it."

"Of course. Sermizelles, after hanging in the wind a little, came forward like a man and admitted it."

"'Like a man' is right, Johnny. He lied about it according to the best traditions of a gentleman and sportsman. To save the real guilty one. That was Edith, of course."

"Edith—what's this?"

"O, it's easy enough to reconstruct, now that De Courcey's out of it. He was carrying on an affair with Diane, and flirting a little with Edith to mask it. Edith may or may not have cared for him, or was beginning to take notice. But she could never have cared for his whole fat carcass as she adored one bristle of her father's eyebrow. So when she discovered by that note that her daddy was being let down shamefully and even the focus of two infamous people who desired his death, by accident since he was such a robust man, Edith went off her chump a little. She sent him that telegram: "Ils sont dans les vignes, les moineaux."

"Why that?" I demanded.

"I should say it might have been one of his tough little songs—at the chasse. He probably got the double entendre—that there was some sort of pest at work. Anyhow, it fetched him. Edith would have been known at the Postes, so she probably gave a passing tramp a five franc piece to send it. Then when Roux got home her heart failed her. She could not bring herself to break his heart, or she may have been afraid of what he would do. But not on De Courcey's account. She would have liked to slaughter him and that's what she tried to do. Not premeditated, I imagine, but in a sudden gust of perfectly righteous wrath when the opportunity suddenly and unexpectedly presented itself. The trouble was that Roux and De Courcey had changed hunting coats about an hour before. That fat 'city feller' had a thin one, and got chilled."

"Good Lord, Jacques. Does De Courcey suspect?"

"More than that. He knows. But I don't think he guesses I got it. So here's a point in ethics. What ought I do?"

"Just what you have done," I answered promptly.

"Not good enough, Johnny. That is to say, it's not enough for me to do. Naturally, I don't intend to have that poor girl tried for murder, if I can help it, but I want to relieve her stress of mind. She never meant actually to kill De Courcey. She up and blazed away on impulse, thinking, no doubt, to wing him a bit, shoot a fright and a warning into him, and break up the affair that threatened her father's honor and his happiness. But, as fatal destiny had it, the supposed De Courcey got only two buckshot, or chevrotine, that are a little smaller, one in the brain and the other in the heart."

I LEANED back utterly aghast. "But the gun?"

"She must have slipped a gun from the rack into that heavy steamer rug Pervier mentioned. Mind you, I don't believe for a moment she went out deliberately after De Courcey. She meant merely to hover on the edge of the hunt and bag a pig if one came her way. Pervier said she was a keen sportswoman. And her English training led her to do what a French girl would never have thought of doing."

"Did the mind of De Courcey tell you all this?" I asked.

"All this and more," Jacques answered calmly. "But some of it is just beginning to react to the developer. De Courcey did not know that his love letter had fallen into Edith's hands, and that she was trying to make up her mind what to do about it. Diane had not told him. He may have thought that Edith was getting jealous. He would not have thought anything about seeing her slip a gun from a fold of the steamer rug and go to the edge of the wood. To shoot a boar was quite in character with such a girl.

"De Courcey knew when Edith fired, from the direction of the report which came from between him and the road. Hers was the eighth shot in debate. With such a fusillade at an exciting moment of the chase it would seem improbable that anybody would keep track of the shots, but the old timers do. At any rate they try to, and can often tell you just who fired and at what interval when they come to "lever le coup," hold a sort of inquest to determine who killed the game. A boar will stand a lot of peppering, especially through a thick acacia growth where much of the charge is deflected or stopped.

"But when De Courcey, following his own two shots, came on the body of Roux, he immediately guessed at what had happened, but I think he guessed a little wrong. It did not occur to him that Edith thought herself to be firing a chance shot at himself when she caught a glimpse of his yellow coat. He thought she had mistaken her father for the boar, and De Courcey's first and decent impulse was to shield her. Sermizelles, De Courcey's neighbor to the left, was so placed and had fired at such moments that he might have shot Roux by mistake. But an elderly French provincial who has been shooting such coverts all his life does not make that sort of a mistake.

"Sermizelles first indignantly denied the possibility of such a tenderfoot blunder, then suddenly admitted it must be so. That he was getting old and his eyes playing him tricks, or some such stuff. De Courcey had shown him that he, De Courcey, had fired too soon for Roux's body to have been found at such a distance, so that it must have been either Sermizelles or—Edith. The moment Sermizelles seized that idea he did not hesitate a moment to take the blame, even though it made him party to a crime."

"A crime?" I interrupted. "But you have just said that De Courcey did not suspect that Edith thought she was shooting at him."

"I refer to the crime of defrauding the insurance company," Jacques said dryly. "Sermizelles was insured against accidentally shooting a comrade of the hunt. But he was an old family friend and as such desired at all cost to save Edith the lifelong grief of believing she had shot her father. This seems now to have been a futile effort. Edith believes she shot, as she supposed, at De Courcey and killed her father. If she were to confess, it might go very hard with her. According to the law of most well legislated countries, if you shoot to kill one man, but miss him and kill another, you are as guilty as if you had slain the one that was the object of your lethal intent."

I REFLECTED for a moment on this, then asked: "Why are you so sure Edith did not believe she was shooting at the boar?"

"Because we are told she has refused all religious offices, although a good Catholic. To do so she would have to confess, and she does not dare confess. Besides, if she had believed herself to have shot at the boar, she would have run to the spot with her gun on hearing De Courcey cry 'A la lie.' But she arrived on the spot without her gun. Either she ran back and hid it in the car, or else flung it into the bog in some thick place. Of course, I cannot be sure, because I have not read her mind, but her subsequent behavior indicates a soul tormented by conscience as well as grief, as if she believed that God had punished her for wicked attempt."

It looked that way to me. I thought then of Jacques' gloomy face when Pervier had finished his statement and requested him to examine De Courcey. It struck me also that Jacques had not needed to do this to arrive at his decision; that this was already formed. Deduction again, versus the function of the faculty that he professed.

But his thought now was evidently concentrated on the distracted girl and how he might be able to save her from herself and from the law.

Presently he said: "I must talk to Sermizelles."

"Why Sermizelles?" I asked.

"To persuade him to be party to another fraud. I want him to see Edith, talk to her privately, and convince her it was actually his shot and no other that killed Roux. Otherwise she is apt either to go into a decline and die, or else to confess and give herself up to the police. I think I see a way for him to accomplish it."

"How, Jacques?"

"He must tell Edith he has come to clear her mind of any suspicion it might harbor that De Courcey was the actual and intentional slayer of her father. Sermizelles will confess to her that he entertained such doubts himself, having been unable to believe that as a hunter of such long experience he could possibly have committed such a fatal error.

"But he will tell Edith that since he has now the proof that the two balls, buckshot, were not from De Courcey's gun, one of her father's many, but from his own, he has stated that fact to De Courcey, and feels he should now state it to her.

"Edith will immediately reason that if these shots were not from her father's gun in De Courcey's hand, then likewise they could not have been from one of her father's guns that was in her own hands. She will demand to know on what he bases this assurance.

"Sermizelles will tell her then that he has procured the buckshot and had them expertly examined, and compared with those loaded in her father's cartridges. The result will have proved a slight but absolutely distinguishable difference. Those of Sermizelles are the product of a different manufacturer who uses a slightly different lead."

"Do you think you can get away with that, Jacques?"

"Well, I'm not up enough in the matter to say positively. But it seems to me it ought to be possible. There must be more than one concern in France that supplies buckshot, and wherever an article of any sort is manufactured at a different plant there's pretty sure to be some difference detectable by close analysis, if only in the matter of weight. That would hold true of anything, one of Roux's knife blades for instance, or a safety pin, or a tenpenny nail. At any rate, I'll look into it, and whatever mark is different from the chevrotine used by Roux will be the sort used by Sermizelles on this occasion."

I CONSIDERED this for a few moments, during which it struck me that here was Jacques' slippery old stuff again, this time serving a most worthy cause. I found myself at the same time admiring and deploring him. But that could wait. The immediate necessity was to save this poor girl from herself.

"Look here, Jacques," I said, wheeling on him suddenly. "You're shirking the issue. You're a moldy slacker."

Jacques smiled. "I was just waiting to hear you say that, Johnny."

"Well, I've said it. This is your job, not Sermizelles'. He's probably the sort of kind and simple old campagnard that with the best of intentions would bungle it. See him, of course, and make him a party to it, then do the rest yourself. Go down there, and get in touch with Edith and tell her who you are and just what you've said you'll get Sermizelles to tell her."

"But she'd know all about me, of course," Jacques objected, "and my coming might frighten her to death."

"That sort of girl doesn't frighten to death. You'd be a relief to her. Put an end to the suspense. It would be up to you to show her first crack that you'd come to clear and not to denounce her. You do that and I'll get busy and turn up the dope that you're to go on. That's more in my line, and what's even better, more in character as the Yankee reporter. You don't risk to lose any caste by trying to gumshoe details that in your quality of mind-reader you should be far above."

Jacques' brown eyes glowed. "Good for you, Johnny. I hated to suggest it, but after all I've done no more than I profess."

"Well, then, keep on doing it," I said. "Ask the girl to let you read her mind. In private, of course, if the mother superior will let you, which she's bound to do if you'll show your plumes. Then tell Edith what you've just told me, that you know what she thought she did but really didn't."

In my excitement I got a little incoherent. "Tell her anything that comes into your head, and back it up with the proof that it was actually Sermizelles who accidentally shot her father and that she's to let it go at that. Tell her you've squared De Courcey with the police, and that the incident may now be a closed incident."

"All right, Johnny," Jacques said. "I'll do that thing and then I quit."

"Quit what?" I asked.

"This mind reading stuff."

"Why?"

"Because I told myself some time ago that so long as I could do it on a perfectly straight basis, all right and good. But when it comes to a point where I make myself the arbiter of human destinies, it gets too thick. I've been willing to serve the ends of public peace, but I decline to juggle with results. It's not for me to say that this person is guilty but ought to be let off, any more than it is for me to say that this person is actually innocent but ought to be soaked. In the present case, to be a consistent crime detector I should be obliged to report to the police what I might read from Edith's mind."

"Not unless the police had asked you to read her mind," I said.

"O, that's quibbling, Johnny. There's no getting round the fact that I'm in danger of messing in and fixing things up, not according to the way they are and that the law finds them, but the way I think they ought to be. When it reaches that point I had better quit."

"Perhaps you're right, Jacques. All the same, it seems a pity. Why can't you be frank with me and come across? I'll keep it to myself."

Jacques laughed in a tantalizing way. "Don't you wish you really knew, Johnny?"

"I do," I answered.

And I may say in closing that I still do.

a decidedly Hibernian brogue—on purpose, I've an idea. Besides, he is a handsome lad and the best swordsman in the Turkish army."

"You do make him out to be gorgeously attractive. Perhaps I shall like him after all."

"Musn't like him too much, my dear. He has no use for women."

"Why not?"

"A mystery. I never asked him."

"No mystery at all," said a deep voice in perfect English, with the merest suggestion of a Slav purr.

The speaker was the monocled man in the Circassian costume. With dramatic suddenness he loomed up in the ring of faint, yellow light shed by a silk shaded table lamp. He had walked softly, like some great cat. The other two had not noticed his approach.

"No mystery at all," he repeated. "A good many years ago his mother eloped with another man. And now O'Malley—who is a sentimentalist at heart, I am afraid—hates, fears, and suspects all women."

"You seem to know a great deal about his private affairs, Prince," growled Watson.

"Hardly about all his private affairs, but most certainly about this one. I ought to. You see, the chap whom his mother eloped with happened to be my older brother. That's why O'Malley dislikes me so. I suppose I am a continuous reminder to him of his mother's—ah—peccadillo."

"O!"—exclaimed Ellen—"how cruel!"

"So is life cruel, Mademoiselle! Pasha," he turned nonchalantly to Watson, "mind introducing me? Or, if you do mind, mind doing it anyway?"

Ellen was amused in spite of herself. No doubt of it: the man was attractive for all his evident hardness, and his calm impudence was amazing.

"Watson Pasha," she said, "I guess you had better introduce the gentleman—or he is going to do it himself."

"Mind reader!" laughed the stranger, while the older man mumbled something that sounded suspiciously like "damn his cheek!" then made the presentation, not very graciously:

"Miss McIntyre, this is His Serene Highness Shamyl Mehmet Prince Tcherkessky."

THE latter clicked his heels, Ellen inclined her head, and Watson added, in slow, slurring accents that held, somehow, the thud of a hidden insult:

"Here's more romance for you. Prince Tcherkessky is a Russian, you see. Yet he is in the service of the sultan, the tsar's worst enemy."

Ellen was startled, even a little frightened, at the sudden, savage gleam that eddied up in the other's hooded, purple black eyes.

He spoke vehemently, his Slav purr growing more noticeable as his excitement increased:

"You are doing me an injustice, Pasha. I am Russian only by birth. The Russians conquered the Caucasus, my father's land. But I am still a Circassian."

"At least," mocked the American, "your outer is decidedly nationalistic."

Tcherkessky's eyes glistened like mica discs. His voice rose a hectic octave:

"I am an Asian by race and a Moslem by faith. That is why I have sworn fealty to the sultan."

"Quite sure of it?" drawled Watson; and Ellen at the time was less frightened than thrilled as she saw hate surging over Tcherkessky's hawkish, predatory features in a deadly wave, as she saw his lean, brown hand move nervously with the smooth grip of his falchion sword.

But he snapped it back into the scabbard with a jarring ring. He controled himself. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Miss McIntyre," he said, turning to her, "we must forgive our seafaring friend. He is like a Catholic convert—more orthodox than the pope. He has an obsession that he is the only man who is loyal to the sultan."

"Not the only one," said Watson very gravely, "but one of the few—the very few."

"And," countered the other, equally gravely, "I cannot persuade you to include me amongst the honored few?"

"I have been told," came the slow reply, "that you are a frequent caller at the Russian embassy—last night."

For sheer exasperating caprice that path deserves honorable mention. It put one in the proper frame mind for assaulting its perpetrator. He went down other perpendicular bank and found another river waded round in circles, then came out and climbed other perpendicular bank.

There was one solid river wall of yellow mud about rty-five feet high whose only break was a sort of e where the elephants had come down. To the older men, accustomed as youngsters to the jolly orgies of the village after the successful raid, these must have seemed lean years indeed! A dull, incomprehensible, materialistic world, dead to the old thrill of war and triumph, and with no answer to their bodies' hunger but ghoulish grave robbing and sly, ceremonial repasts on dead relations!

At two o'clock that day we were ten minutes behind the elephant, judging from the warmth of the track, and I began to wonder why we wanted to catch up with him. In that forest gloom we couldn't have seen him until we were on top of him or he on us, and there literally wasn't space enough to get a gun to the shoulder. Our hope was that we would find him in a glade.

That hope was never realized. In his circlings he got wind of us and took alarm, making off at a speed that gave no hope of overtaking him. We kept on for half an hour, then had to give it up and turn back to make camp by dark. We just managed it.

We were greatly cheered on the return trip by running into an army of safari ants. These ants wind in long streams all over Africa, devouring every living thing that falls into their power. A rat flung living into their path will be killed and picked to its bones in two minutes. When a stream of them comes through a village the natives decamp, giving them the complete right of way. They are not dangerous if seen in time to avoid, for they stay in their own borders, an army on the march, and generally they cross the road, so we never had any trouble in jumping across them.

But on this occasion the ants had elected to pour down the path between high rising sides. It was dusk and Herbert, on ahead, ploughed into them, then rushed hastily on till beyond them, stamping and scraping off the startled ones that had clung to him.

He left them nicely stirred up for the rest of us. There must have been twenty feet of seething ants between those high sides that we had to race through. At first I thought that I had got off lightly and that it was our barefoot boys and carriers who were suffering, but they speedily rid themselves of their attackers, while after a moment I found that the demons were writhing through every secret crevice of me, puttees and shirt and collar, and the rest of that homeward way was frantic with sudden raids. Their pincer jaws make even a native leap.

THAT night we fed our remaining beans to the porters and decided to hurry on. Our hopes for an elephant in the Ituri forest were what might be called prone.

At best we could see that there was going to be a lot of exercise to it!

The food situation grew acute. Sending word ahead to the villages to have bananas in readiness had no effect on the returns, for preparedness was not the watchword of the native. The best method was for two of us to go an hour ahead of the caravan each day and collect everything we could from every hut we passed. We paid liberally, and we knew that with the money the people could buy from the more prosperous villages farther back or could go for fresh supplies to their old shambas in the sickness area where they were in the habit of going themselves, but in spite of all our liberality we certainly felt like the Assyrians coming down like the wolf on the fold.

We went through that forest a devastating army. We took every ear of corn and bunch of bananas that we could get them to give us. Our sympathies were with the easy going folk who didn't want to bestir themselves, but our responsibilities were heavy. We had one hundred and eighty hungry men who looked to us for their food after a hard day's march—moreover, our sympathies for the easy going villagers suffered a slight change after we opened the packages they had first prepared for us, which was all they had wanted to supply, and found the bananas within so hard with age and green with mould that even the village goats must have rejected them and left them to be gathered up for us. We had to throw away the half of them.

There was a little song that people had been singing for a year before we left America that was entitled, " Yes, We Have No Bananas." I used to think it was a funny song, and in those heedless days I laughed at it. Until life taught me I never knew what those words meant.

Now I shall never hear the word banana without seeing a little village clearing, the forest ringing it in, and ourselves in muddy khaki pleading desperately for bananas in our most strenuous Swahili with a reluctant chief, while naked women dragged their goats and children and chickens into the huts and peered fearfully from doorways at the strangers.

These people were most casual about clothes. The general mode for both men and women was a strip of barkcloth tucked up through a belt of grass fiber with a hangover in the back like a flaunting bustle.

Lacking the barkcloth, some of the women merely tucked up a few greens into their belts, letting the leaves dangle. Now early in the dewy morn this greenery might have had a certain floral freshness to recommend it, but after hours of wilting sun those dead and dangling leaves looked like something the janitor should have taken away yesterday.

A woman encircled with this former salad, daubed with white ash, scratched with little scar patterns, her neck weighted with iron collars and her arms and legs bound with brass, her lips studded with wood and spikes of projecting brass, was an image of utter savagery.

I saw one emerge from the forest shadows, ghostlike in white ash, and walk through the sunlight to her hut, naked but for those flopping greens, smeared and scarred, with four gleaming, whiskery spikes of brass jutting out through her lips like terrifying antennae. She was a grim, daunting looking creature, like nothing human or natural, and I had a thrill of horror when she swooped suddenly on a fat baby playing in the sun. I half expected to see her bite it—but there she stood, cooing away in tenderest gutturals. . . . But how the baby kept from sticking its round little head on those brass pins I don't know!

Many of the people had the sleeping sickness—that is, they had the infection, though the second stage had not set in. The first attack is a flareup of fever, with swollen neck glands. Sometimes the second stage is years in declaring itself, and cases have been known of from three to seven years' wait. We saw one poor old chief in what was evidently the beginning of the end; dull eyed, head drooping, walking in his sleep, he was supported out from the hut to us and back.

But the sickness is no longer a death sentence. It can be cured through what is known to science as Bayers 205. At the Church of England mission at Fort Portal Dr. Scholfield had shown us the actual results of this treatment. It has been said that to succeed the remedy must be injected in the first stages, but we saw one young native who had actually begun to sleep before he was brought to Dr. Scholfield, and now, after treatment, he was recovering. He walked out and talked to us with animation.

Very few whites have ever had the sickness. I did worry about Alice at first, but the new path that we took was free from the tse-tse fly of the man biting species, which is the sickness carrier. I saw only two that I could swear to, sinister, long things with crossed wings. There were plenty of the kind that infect animals, however, and our poor Muley took the sickness, as we found out later through a blood test. We did not discover it at the time, for her original endowment of lethargy was so ample that the increase of sleeping sickness defied detection.

I hasten to add that the Muley has since recovered, and we gave her to the White Fathers of the mission at the foot of the Gorilla mountains. We hope they still think of us with kindness.

WE hurried on through the Ituri, feverishly counting bananas, but our anxieties were over when at the village of Kartushi we met our old friend of the Ruindi plains, Monsieur Flamand, with food for our two hundred men. Because of ill health he was leaving Africa, starting the long journey to Europe by way of Irumu, Stanleyville, and the Congo river.

From him we learned all that we could of the wild country west of Lake Edward and the best way to get through it. What he said in substance was this: that the thing was possible if we used care. (Flamand was a man of daring to whom all things were possible, so our judgment told us to lean heavily upon his advice to use care!)

We would have trouble with porters, for they were afraid of the natives there, and the natives were too wild to carry loads. Carriers would probably run away. We were not apt to have any trouble with the natives; that is, they would not meet us with force, but they would certainly take advantage of any stragglers and rain lances from the thickets.

We must be careful going through wooded places. We must always march in close formation, man touching man, the guns ready. (We murmured to each other that days of this sort were going to be delightful.)

Flamand himself, when going north from his old post of Luofu, in May, 1922, with Capt. Brasseur and Lieut. Abseil, taking with him four hundred porters, two hundred and fifty native soldiers, and one hundred wives of soldiers to found a post at Lubango, since abandoned, had lost ten or twelve soldiers and twenty porters. These were mostly stragglers, speared stealthily from bushes and carried clandestinely away for home consumption.

Of course, that was nearly two and a half years ago, and the people were now a great deal more afraid of the government. Also, we reflected they were probably two and a half years hungrier and a great deal warier.

We talked the matter over in the following days, but there was never a reasonable amount of doubt as to our decision. This was the possible adventure we had come so far to find. This was the unknown country where no travelers had been. As one of us said, "All we know about this country is that we are going to have trouble getting porters, and no help from the natives, and the stragglers get speared—let's go!"

Put in that way, it didn't sound wholly fortified by reason. But actually nothing was likely to happen. There was simply the incalculable element of chance. And by now Lake Edward was so infested with the sleeping sickness fly that we felt that travel there would be more dangerous than the cannibals, besides involving endless delays in getting enough canoes for our stuff, as the bargelike boat which the Belgian government had kept on the lake was now disabled.

WE were so full of the future cannibals that we completely overlooked the character of those we were among, and we thought that old Moera, in whose village we sojourned before leaving the forest, was a most genial old chap. Because he wore a coat we looked upon him as almost effetely civilized. Later we learned that he was a degraded old cannibal, and that Pere Lens, one of the missionary fathers, had for years refused to shake hands with him because of his secret practices.

However, there wasn't an element of danger, at least for us, in that situation. Because a man is a cannibal and will eat human meat when he can get it does not mean that he will dash at you with a butcher knife when he knows he is under a government that will hang him for his pains. It does mean that he will get his meat when and how he can, thinking it no more wrong to indulge in it and frustrate an unsympathetic government than citizens with a misunderstood thirst think it wrong to alleviate it without legal sanction.

At Moera's we were able to photograph the Wambutte, or forest pygmies, for he is chief over four clans of them, and he sent out into the forest and had some brought in, and we also collected some of the okapi skin belts that the pygmies and the Wanandi, the natives of the place, were wearing.

The Belgians have forbidden the wearing of these belts, for they are trying to preserve the okapi, that rarest and shyest of forest animals, but what is forbidden in the outpost has small effect in the forest. The okapi is the mysterious "big donkey" Stanley heard about, a distant cousin of the giraffe, a dark maroon colored creature, with brilliantly striped shoulders and hindquarters.

We knew that an okapi had been killed recently, for there were large pieces of hide, yet undivided. Only the pygmies are wary enough to creep up on an okapi. Few white men have ever seen one, and I believe that our friend, Flamand, is the only white man that has ever seen them in a herd. The pygmies guided him to a herd one morning, and his forest craft enabled him to steal up close enough to see them together, mother and young.

From Moera we made our last forest march to the new post of Bungulu, established only three months before. It was open, rolling, grassy country that looked delightful at the first glimpse after the somber forest, but proved hot and wind swept and fly infested.

Two young Belgian officers, left in charge there by Monsieur Flamand's departure, made us welcome and gathered another army of porters for us to replace those now going back to their villages near Mboga. Bananas were plentiful here, and they could carry enough with them for the journey.

THERE were two other Europeans at Bungulu, Monsieur and Madame Calais, who occupied a grass hut some distance down the road. For ten years Monsieur Calais had bought ivory in the Congo, and through him we suddenly changed all our plans, abandoned the idea of going for big tuskers a week's journey to the Ituri river in the Ituri forest, which had been our intention, and headed for the territory of a chief that was on the line of march we would take on the way south.

That was an untouched game country, Monsieur Calais told us. There were more elephants than natives. And the mountains beyond were full of game, too, for some fine big tusks had been brought out there and sold to him through this first chief, Malunga, with whom he had very amicable trade relations. Calais had hunted in Malunga's territory and he was kindlily anxious for our success that he came with a day's journey to introduce us to the chief and to help a day or two of hunting with us.

Malunga had a blue shirt, short khaki trousers, filed teeth; he had a buffalo tail brush with which he constantly switched flies from his bare legs; he had more territory than you could comfortably travel in a day's journey, some scattered little settlements and shambas, and a main village high on a hill that was nearly perpendicular.

Here we ensconced ourselves, one bright October day, tucking the tents in the only possible cleared space between the huts and the big palaver house. We did not like our location, for the five big huts ringed us in and the banana groves crowded them, but we did have a magnificent view of the Ruwenzori mountains and the nearer hills.

We could see the entire range, fifty miles long, peaks towering nearly to seventeen thousand feet, the snow on them lay softly as a cloud against the bright sky. Night and morning those high peaks stood out in crystal clearness, and the sunsets that burned behind us threw magic color over the serrated sides and the still glaciers and drifting snows.

It was a marvelous country. East and north Ruwenzori and below us a dark sea of equatorial stretching on and on, unbroken but for vivid flashes of meadow. Nearer mountains rose above grassy shouldered, the forest clinging to their flanks. Not a hut in sight but the handful behind us. It was where the elephant ruled.

The elephants were everywhere, the natives said. Every night they came and ravaged some of the plantations. They were anxious to have us kill one of them, or else some buffaloes, for they were famished for meat and for fat.

They had no cattle nor goats, no milk nor butter, nothing in the world with fat in it except when Wind Driven Moths.

O'HARA looked out of the cab window. He knew where they were to the fraction of an inch. Two blocks south and three east and around the corner . . . Sleet had changed to a steady rain, more miserable and dangerous than the first, turning the sidewalks and street into a sheet of ice. On a night like this the police would be full. What would they do with her, that fine soft creature whose perfume filled the musty cab like a bunch of little spring flowers? And nothing could ever put her back again. She was right about that. For there was a lot he hadn't told her. . . . There were the other women——

As if his thought had called into action one of the evil epochs of such a night, at this moment from the street on the right arose a hubbub of confusing sounds; the uproar of a motor pushed beyond its will; the scream of brakes jammed at a dangerous angle, and two headlights streaming in the rain.

The two cars veered dangerously together. A huge black bulk beside the smaller taxi elbowed it violently and for a second the man and woman were given a view of the etchings of hell . . . the inside of a patrol wagon jammed to its doors with women.

Where had they been found and why had God made them? Faces without age and without soul; bodies wrapped in sordid finery, evil as the flesh it concealed. Desperate eyes; sodden eyes—eyes that laughed wildly and eyes that did not care. They huddled in the long black box with its iron screened sides—flung there anyhow, from God knows what beginning, and Jimmy O'Hara saw with the chills down his back and the sweat under his collar what it was going to mean to the woman beside him when she was locked in a cell that night. He had time to think "all of them in there together" and to get a vision of slim white hands trying to hold the filth away——

The two cars careened together, almost touching, the taxi driver swearing loud and plaintively; it was impossible to put on the brakes with the street a skating rink. The clank of slipping chains, the ceaseless vibration of his wheel confused him, and the ugly Black Maria clung there like a beetle! No night for racing. The taxi driver glanced almost pleadingly at the rushes trying to crowd him into the curb, and then he tried to turn for it. Two ghastly cargoes bound for the same port; never to reach there.

SIRENS! No time to turn. Nowhere to go. Hurtling through emptiness, the long, red, shining truck spotted with the clinging figures of men was upon them. The moment the terrible truck wheels were against the opposite curb, and then the front ones plowed their way through a splinter of wood and glass and bodies that tumbled like rag dolls here and there upon the glistening pavement.

Two wrecked cars and a hook and ladder equipment slowly righting itself under the impatient guidance of men anxious to be on their way to the work of saving the few floors and walls from a threatened blaze.

A policeman taking charge nodded the permission to go on. Nobody's fault, of course. Hysterical women were crying; some of them cursing bitterly between their sobs. A curious crowd retrieved from poolhalls and third class restaurants pressed eagerly forward. The accident was bad enough to draw them from their warm holes.

The patrol wagon rested grotesquely on two wheels and a bent axle, but the taxi was a complete disaster. Somebody was wiping blood from the driver's head and declaring over and over again that he wasn't dead, that he was the only one that mattered.

"What's this!" The policeman bent down to look at two figures that lay side by side. The man's coat hung open, displayed a badge shining on his breast. The discoverer was impelled to a more vital interest. "A man from central office!" he cried, aghast.

Detective Jimmy O'Hara opened his eyes slowly. His mind was perfectly clear, because his head had not been injured at all. The rest of him was dead, quite dead, and he had seen enough of death to know this for himself.

He knew what had happened, too. The crash of impact still lingered in his mentality. His brain was clear and as resonant as a bell which has just been rung, but his numb body was conscious of a heavy weight pulling against one shoulder. He managed to turn his eyes downward and saw a face there—a dead face with dead yellow hair and spots of red paint on the cheek bones. A horrible thing to be dragging a man down.

"Who was with you, officer?" demanded the policeman, with his notebook under his nose. "Did you have a prisoner?"

Jimmy O'Hara remembered. He remembered perfume, white hands and soft slenderness, fine as silk, lying against his shoulder for a second as the crash came. He remembered duty. He lifted his heavy eyes again and saw her like a dream standing over him, staring, like a person too horrified to move. And he remembered duty again. But what is a man's duty? Is it the thing he has promised other men to do, or the prompt of that intimate stranger who sits in judgment when the body sleeps?

Jimmy O'Hara, who all his life had done the right thing as right is accepted, beheld now in a sort of white light a highway opening beside his narrow path. Nearly everything was dead—as the world calls dead—about him, but this was the clearest vision he had ever known.

"Here she is," he said, with a weak motion toward the heavy thing upon his arm, and shut his eyes for good and all.

BRIAN ANSTEY, making his way through the long rooms, evaded successfully the inveigling efforts of people he knew. A good looking chap with the right sponsors may not, at such a time, reach a given point in a given time without encountering all the opposition that soft eyes, softer smiles, detaining murmurs may throw in his way. Beyond a bulwark of black shoulders Daisy Fentress sent a wistful glance. She alone might have called to him, but she would not. He saw Simon, spare and taut; less than other men in stature, yet towering above them—a personality on stilts. He saw a dozen men whose names and words were making history, and saw them for the first time as individuals who annoyed him by getting in his way. And then at last he got a glimpse of the man he was looking for.

Converse was paying ponderous compliments to a Brazilian lady. He seemed to admire her olive shoulders, frankly pasted with snowy shellac, more than anything in the world. His high color was undimmed; his small eyes were bland and avid as ever, yet Brian spoke to him without hesitation.

"Come with me," he said in a low voice.

Converse looked around in surprise. He was amazed to be spoken to in that manner. But when he saw Brian's face he excused himself to his companion and followed.

They went to the room that Brian had left a few minutes before. The atmosphere of Linda Roth still lingered there in some strange fashion, as if over the thousand perfumes of the crowded rooms beyond her own clung intangibly to the drooping fern fronds or trembled somewhere in the golden haze of shaded lamps. It forced them to admit her presence.

But they were alone there, and Brian could endure to see the great bulk of Converse sprawled upon the frail settee where she had rested. The faint shattering of one of the imitation pearls as it perished did not move him as it might have done, so far was he removed from the sentiment of little things.

"What do you want of me?" Converse asked curiously. He saw at once that a change had come over the younger man; that he had to do with something new and strange in him. He was on guard instantly. So far as he could surmise he had nothing to fear from this youngster, whom he could crush as easily as he had crushed a bit of shell underfoot without knowing how it came there. But he was prepared to be cautious, for he had learned to be wary of unexpected blows. He felt in his pocket and produced a single cigar. It was not a place for smoking, nor a time, yet Converse could not have carried on without this weapon. Behind its shelter he could think impassively; prepare his defense; strike.

"You are excited," he said.

But Brian was not excited, and knew it. He asked evenly:

"What have you done to Mrs. Roth?"

Converse could not believe that he had heard aright. "Done to her?" he repeated. He was a little hurt. Here was a young man whom he had recommended in a world where tact is the most desirable of all qualities, and yet he was being approached by this protégé and a woman's name, most subtle of weapons, used as a bludgeon. He took refuge in the time honored "I don't know what you mean."

"Then I will explain," said Brian. He was perfectly cool, knowing that he had already ruined himself and content to be ruined if this would bring him nearer his objective. "Something has happened to Mrs. Roth and I believe you know what it is. I am asking you to tell me."

THE emphasis was so slight that an ear less keen than his hearer's might have missed it. Converse reflected behind his cigar. It was plain that the youngster was a little mad—through love for Linda, doubtless. He was the sort that love could play the deuce with. Duels. And after a man is forty his veins do not respond to thrills of unripened adventure. He was divided between two instincts—that of the primitive—to fight for what he still held of her, or to give her over as useless to himself, knowing that all was past between them forever. Her bruised wings had carried her too far from him, after all.

Brian was astonished to read sadness in the other man's eyes.

"You are asking for my honor," Converse said slowly.

"Not yours. Her honor."

Converse drawled: "Then it is a woman's honor I am to give into your hands. Why?"

A vein sprang out on Brian's forehead. He was not as calm now as the older man, who had the advantages of experience and sluggish blood.

"I am glad that you added a question to that," he said, "because I will tell you why. Because I love her. Because I love her as she is. Because I must follow her wherever she has gone."

Converse was tiring. Their few words had covered limitless emotion. He felt it surging past him with the dauntless wings of youth. Triumph. Love. All that he had lost in his success.

"There is nothing," he heard himself saying. "She was a little girl I helped, and then she was a woman I wanted. My way of getting what I want is not your way, because Nature gave me this." He glanced obliquely at his obese body with a sort of sick contempt—so he must have looked upon himself in aloneness. His laughter rumbled. "I had to snare my birds. But sometimes I failed. And this was such a time."

He stopped, astonished at his own lack of interest in what had happened. He discovered that he did not desire Linda Roth any longer. He had wanted her for years; had schemed to win her favor or to buy it at any price, and now he could let her go wearily. It was difficult to remember what he had felt for her even yesterday.

He got up, dropping the end of his cigar in a brass bowl, wishing now that he had not smoked, for it was bitter in his mouth.

"She took money from me for years, you know. Then suddenly she decided that she would not have any more. What happens to women when they begin to split hairs? Usually the thing they are trying to avoid. She was the worst kind of cheat—she cheated herself. Probably she needs money now."

Brian stepped back, sick and appalled. He could not kill a man for giving him the truth he had asked for. Shame surged over him in a wave, and when it receded he was alone.

The girl in the coat room gave him his belongings. She was an old young thing and forgave the tip he forgot. He discovered as readily that Linda was not in her room, and was told at the same time that she had left the hotel by the service elevator. But from the starter at the taxi stand he learned more. A lady had gone from the hotel fifteen minutes before. She was not alone. The man watched Brian's face carefully as he chose his words. Her companion looked like a dick, he said, plain clothes. The starter was almost sure of that. Perhaps the next chauffeur in line knew something.

Brian found himself in a taxi moving carefully over icy streets. These fellows seemed to guess a lot. He understood from their silence that they knew more than he dared think. He had told the driver to follow the other cab in the suspected direction and, knowing that the moment of overtaking it meant everything to her and to himself, he found himself thinking less of that and merely wondering if she wore a warm cloak and if the icy sleet that beat against the window pane could find its way to her soft cheek.

THE cab careened, shivered, and stood still, helpless in its chains. The chauffeur spoke doubtfully through his tube.

"Shall I go on, sir?"

"Go on."

Where? The night was a maze of gray streets, gray people, gas lamps flaring against icy veils of rain. Where would he find her in that phantasmagoria? But he knew that he must and would, with the certainty that love and wanting gives. Presently she would be in his arms and that impossible parting would be no more.

Strange thoughts rioted through his mind, opening and shutting doors of little cells where dwelt all the infinite life of his past and the indefinable nebulae of the future that was to have been and the future that would be. He had followed will o' the wisps. Yesterday he had been a boy worshiping ideals clothed fantastically in such bodies as that of Converse. But today he was something else—not man as he knew men, but a sort of power which, because he loved a woman enough, could sweep a path for her through the waste places where she was lost.

All that he had wanted existed no longer except wherein it concerned her. It was like the play of children forgotten before a greater scene. Her renunciation filled him with shame. He saw himself in her eyes, incomplete. She could put him aside because she believed him too weak to defend her or because she would not accept a defense that had been blind to her need, but, now that he knew, her control was over. Her decisions became the plaintive cries of a woman left alone in the wilderness.

He was brought from this by the swift flight of the car as it whirled half around and came groaning to a stop beside the curb. It was impossible to distinguish anything but lights and a moving mass beyond the blurred windows, but he heard the reproachful voice of his driver calling to him.

"You see that, sir? A bad accident. It ain't a night for a dawg to be out in. They've got the streets roped off. I'll have to go around the block, sir."

mind registered his intention. His instincts were all awake, carrying him upon a fierce tide. He sprang out of the car, telling the man to wait.

The street was a jumble of broken things. A thin line of onlookers shivering in the rain, but, kept warm by their avidity, pressed against one another in a strange brotherhood, silently forcing their way inch by inch upon the forbidden ground. Police in gleaming rubber coats ordered them back, threatening with clubs what words failed to effect. The front tires of an automobile, ludicrously elevated, were the pivot of this street war, and Brian, pushing his way through the line, saw a grotesque wreck of machinery that seemed to be sitting down at last after thousands of weary miles.

He did not know why he was there except that his body, no longer subjugated by mind, brought him without volition into a poor tragic comedy of the dreadful night.

People had been killed. Robes and blankets brought from somewhere covered the still things with a spurious decency. Ambulances were coming; their distant clamor, dulled by the heaviness of the air, beat upon the shrinking silence.

A poor creature, once woman, gasped at Brian's elbow. "Three of 'em dead—three! Something ought to be done about it. Three of 'em—just like that!" She snapped her fingers.

HE saw that there were three women beneath the blanket on the ground. Their feet in high heeled slippers protruded from the shallow covering—the edges of their dresses showed and their thin stockings drawn over slender, terrible limbs.

The black bulk of the patrol wagon told about them. And then he saw close to his feet a larger mound that must have been a man.

"He was runnin' a poor girl in," slithered the voice. "Served him right, too, but he let her in for it same as himself——"

A helmet advanced upon them.

"None o' that, now, or up you go. Clear out, you—an' you!" Monotonous with the duty of a hundred such nights.

The woman's voice faded whining away. "Three o' 'em—all at once!" As if that were a matter of mourning.

Then he heard another sound—too faint to be a sigh, but breathed against his ear like the echo of a lost summer. He turned his face and saw her standing where she had been all this time, close beside him so that he could have touched her if he had known.

"Linda," he said—and she put out her hand to him like a lost child, as he had known she would do.

They took the few steps to the pavement side by side, as if they belonged to one another and had come there together. The line of questioners closed in behind them.

It was a dark street of closed shop windows and little businesses where women did not belong. A wide open poolroom was flooded with yellow light. A fruit stand open to the world offered public shelter. They walked on a little way, wordlessly.

Then all at once there was a door opened to them. A broad, white coated arm drew them without contact into the warm fragrance of a narrow place, where one must walk in single file or be enwrapped in the steamy vapors of huge coffee urns and frank griddles.

"There'll be a little corner back beyond," explained Coffee John, signaling over his shoulder with a massive curled thumb.

They went as he told them.

COFFEE JOHN had been there so many years that no one remembered when he came. His shop was large enough to turn a window and a door to the world and deep enough to shelter his philosophy. From his narrow counter he had fed the great ones of the city and offered the cup of charity to the lost children of God. He had not moved from this place, so he had grown wide and heavy and his face was livid with the moisture of his sustenance. But he had seen the world go by and he knew all of its faces, even the false ones, and what was hidden behind the papier maché. His broad back, turned upon Brian and Linda, shut them into a narrow crevice of their own and stranded them upon a shallow wooden bench wedged behind a little table spread with pale slipping oilcloth and pewter spoons.

But he was there and she was there, and that was enough.

"Why didn't you tell me, Linda? Linda! What do you know of love if you could throw it away for such a little reason?" he said.

She drooped in her corner, fragile and bending from the outrift of the storm. Her face was a small white triangle against the blackness of her furs. Somehow he got hold of her hands and held them, warming them until the thread of life came back.

"Tell me, Linda."

And she told him; meaningless things that were freighted with the tragedy of the world; dark, noisome things like paths through a fever swamp. She told of her shame that was weakness and her pride that was without honor. She abased herself with words so cruel that he was abased with her, and in the narrow cell they clung together like wind driven moths, not enduring the blue white light. But through it all he believed in her and warmed her hands, and through her hands her heart.

"I could not let you be hurt through me, Brian."

She wanted to go, in spite of his arms. She struggled to be free, knowing that freedom meant the end of all things for her.

"You could not leave me . . . you never will, sweet, my sweet! There is nothing else but this. There is no other life than ours! Listen, Linda, we will find our own. It will be small and fine and secure, and it will belong to just ourselves. There will be no grandeur and there will be no lies. There will be houses in the snow that night—don't you remember?"

A reporter finished his coffee in the lighted shop and slammed down the cup.

"Not much news even in a smashup like that," he complained. "No news after all the boys get the cop an' a couple of frails. Huh. Did you see it, John?"

Coffee John nodded, polishing a cup.

"Yas. I was lookin'. He was a fine man, though, O'Hara."

"Would have been. He'd have made the grade. Been down at the bottom for keeps. Wooden sort of a guy, wasn't he?"

"Yas. Like wood. Hard."

THE door slammed. The reporter's face, lowered sourly in his turned up collar, showed pale for a moment at the window. He glanced sardonically at the broad man in his narrow groove, and vanished.

Coffee John finished glossing the cup. It shone old ivory. Then he glanced at the dark shadows behind the little partition. The two figures blurred.

He handled the cup lovingly, yet with delicacy filled it with a stream of dark golden liquid, touched it with yellow cream from a private bottle, and laid three cubes of sugar upon the thick saucer edge. One could have been no better served.

With a light step he went back to them and put the cup before her.

"A lady might need war-r-min' up on such a night," he said in a distant rumbling voice, and returned to his place.

She was spent and exhausted. She had said all she could say, and he had listened to nothing. Her hand, moving, touched the handle of the cup; wavering, but with a sudden, poignant longing for life, she lifted it and drank.

The door opened from the night. A voice made inquiries. Coffee John came again.

"Your taxi's a-waitin' out front, sir. He's gettin' a bite o' lunch."

They lifted new faces.

"The taxi! By George! Tell him we're coming," cried Brian.

CARAVANS AND CANNIBALS - - - - - By Mary Hastings Bradley

threw them a bit of meat—four legged or two legged. Whatever cannibalism was practiced here must have been of a most furtive and occasional kind, for the village was within the radius of the old post of Mbeni, and Malunga realized something of white power. He had been a sort of buffer state between the sphere of white influence and the black kingdoms behind the mountains.

We could see that we were in a great game country, for every grass land was crossed and criss-crossed with fresh trails of elephant and buffalo. There was no antelope. The buffalo here was not the East African species, closely allied to the Cape buffalo; this was the Nile or Abyssinian, as big in body as the Cape, but with a smaller horn spread, without the downward curvature. They were said to be very touchy tempered, even when they were unprovoked.

The natives here did no hunting, for they had nothing but their spears, and their only recourse was to dig elephant pits along the trails and arrange weighted spears between trees in such a way that an animal, walking between the trees, would snap the tether and bring the spear down on his head or back.

As the spear was generally poisoned, the animal ultimately died of the wound. They said they ate the poisoned meat if they got it in time, as the pygmies ate the game they shot with poisoned arrows. I doubted it then—but that doubt died very soon.

In this way Malunga got perhaps one elephant or two a year. But meat had been lacking for a long time now, and our arrival, while not exactly welcomed by the village, was tolerated in the hope of benefits to come. Malunga sent us a few eggs every day, some green corn and potatoes, and food for the porters. In return we distinctly committed ourselves to getting meat for him, if his men would lead us to game.

For two days we tried hard for elephant, but it was the hunt in the Ituri forest all over again. We got sick to death of doing eight hours a day on those forest trails and then coming back to camp and saying, "Nyama hapana—no meat," to the expectant populace.

Something speedier had to be attempted. Three of us, Monsieur Calais, H. Bigelow and I, started out one afternoon after buffalo. Herbert had been on an elephant trail all day and was not interested in buffalo except to have us get them. The only game he wanted for himself was a big tusker.

We left at four and an hour brought us to a little cluster of huts on a high ridge overlooking the wide reaches of grass, where the buffaloes came out and grazed in the early morning and late afternoon. We scanned the horizon with our glasses. No buffalo in sight. We were just starting down the trail into the high grass when a gun boy caught something on a far away ridge to the right—a little spattering of red and black dots.

Through the glasses we could see distinctly a herd of buffalo, and counted forty or fifty grazing in the bush. It was five now, and the light would be gone in an hour. We called for guides from the huts and met with unanimous refusal, desirable as meat was, but Monsieur Calais had no time for objectors and propelled one evading youth down the grassy slope ahead of us. Once started, he led unerringly.

WE had a long reach of high grass to cross, grass that met over our heads, and as there was no direct trail we had to zigzag on crossing trails to keep the direction. Twenty-five minutes of this and then into a thicket of woods, across a jungle choked river, then up through the bush.

We came out just below the slope where they had been grazing, and worked our way cautiously from thicket to thicket. I shall never forget the feeling I had when a buffalo cleared his throat in a bush after we had just passed. He wasn't annoyed at all, he hadn't suspected us, but the very casualness and at-homeness of the sound was upsetting to one with a distaste for cattle. The guide peered carefully and reported it a large black bull.

Monsieur Calais led on, anxious for each of us to get one, so we stole after. And then we saw them, big backs deep in the grass, tails switching, horns curving. . . .

There was a tense moment of picking out the big ones, of hurried under-the-breath conference with gun boys as to whether this was a little or a big bull, of Calais whispering to shoot. We fired, and the noise of our guns was overtaken and overwhelmed by the sudden thunder of that herd in flight. The very ground shook under them.

Those we had seen and fired upon were ahead of us at an angle to the right, but now the place simply boiled buffalo. It was pandemonium. Some went streaming farther to the right, but the body of the herd came tearing past us on the left. I shall never forget the wild thrill of them. . . . The great leaping bodies, the massive shoulders, the horned heads.

We stood almost shoulder to shoulder, firing hurriedly as they swung in too near. The whole thing could not have occupied more than two minutes. They were mad minutes, with a cold, tingling elation to their [illegible] I didn't think, even at that instant, that it was a [illegible] but I had the very definite feeling that any [illegible] might be anything. The confusion was appal[illegible]

Our gun boys stood by us, deftly slapping [illegible] in as we used them, so that we should not be [illegible] with an empty gun in a charge. The buffalo [illegible] had first tried to mark were down as far as we [illegible] tell, the seething rush had whirled past, and my [illegible] were beginning to unclinch when Omari, my [illegible] said quietly, "Quick—in bush," and I turned [illegible] horned head jutting through a bush behind me [illegible] eighteen feet away. It was presumably the [illegible] we had passed, tearing up to see what the [illegible] about. I remember that as I fired my Spring[illegible] B.'s big gun sounded almost with mine. We [illegible] turned him, for he whirled off, still in the bush [illegible] was the nearest thing to a charge we had, but [illegible] proach was so bush obscured that all I got of it [illegible] nightmarish horn and black forehead in the [illegible]

My feeling, when it was all over, was sheer [illegible] that we were still alive and that I hadn't run [illegible] into a rabbit hole or done anything to disgrace [illegible] in trousers. As for H. B., it was his first Africa[illegible] falo, and he could feel that he had not been stin[illegible]

In the fast failing light we made our way ca[illegible] among the bushes and found the three dead [illegible] We left Bigelow's, a big buck, for photograp[illegible] next morning, having the men bring in the o[illegible] immediate food. It was a hard haul to get the[illegible] in sections, across the river and through the d[illegible] grass, and we marched with guns on ready, for[illegible] encountering wounded buffalo.

Back at the huts our chairs and the mule wa[illegible] ing and with torches swinging and porters singi[illegible] lantly, the longed for meat lugged behind us, [illegible] borne through the dark.

(In another installment of "Caravans and Cannibals" next week Mrs. Bradley will tell of her first shot at a giant elephant—and its escape. Then of many hours of hunting through densest jungle forest, always just behind a great bull, and always eluded by the beast. And meantime Mr. Bradley, almost without warning, comes upon and lands his elephant. Then of the wearied hours of fighting the forest on fruitless trails, and at last Mrs. Bradley has her shot—and her elephant, a mighty giant of the jungles. Finally the gory feast of the natives on the huge remains—a feast of cannibals who had often delved as happily into human flesh and human blood.)
